PREFACE

This book is intended to facilitate the study of the development of the Spanish language in the earlier period of its history. As scholars know, it is unfortunately the case that many of the Old Spanish monuments have been published by editors who modernized their aspect. For scientific purposes their editions are, of course, very unsatisfactory. Therefore, in the present instance, care has been taken to print selections from editions which do not deform the historical conditions of the language. In the Introduction the more elementary matters of Spanish phonology are treated. The Notes are concerned with both linguistic and literary subjects. The Vocabulary has been made as complete as possible, and, in the discussion of certain points, supplements the Notes. Much yet remains to be done in the way of verifying the etyma of Spanish words; the Vocabulary calls attention to a few of the doubtful cases.

INTRODUCTION

Spanish is one of the Romance languages spoken in the Iberian peninsula. It is the speech of the larger and more central part of the region; in the western part we find Portuguese (with its dialect Galician, once much used for literary purposes), and in the eastern part Catalan (closely allied to Provençal). The Basques, who occupy the northeastern part of the territory, have a language of their own, with features quite unlike those of the general Indo-European group; it is thought by some scholars to derive from the ancient Iberian. Through colonial expansion Spanish has become the language of many millions of civilized beings in the New World: Mexico, Central America, Cuba, Porto Rico, and by far the greater part of South America (with the notable exceptions of Brazil and the Guianas), all own its sway. It was once much spoken in Texas and California; it still survives in New Mexico and sporadically in the neighboring districts. In the Philippines it has long been the official language, but has not displaced the native dialects; in the Canaries it has been firmly intrenched for over four centuries. The Spanish Jews, when expelled from Spain, carried the language with them, and they maintain it still in the places occupied by them in Turkey and elsewhere. Through colonial and general trading operations it has fixed itself in still other portions of the globe. On the whole, about twenty million persons speak Spanish in Spain and no less than forty million in foreign parts. As a medium of literary expression Spanish dates back to the 12th century.

In the Spanish of Spain there are discernible three chief dialects: Leonese-Asturian, Navarro-Aragonese, and Castilian. Andalusian does not differ radically enough from Castilian to oblige us to regard it as a separate dialect. Of these dialects, Castilian alone has attained to real literary importance; it is therefore the form of the language that we are now undertaking to study, and it may be said that for the natives of all parts of Spain — and even of all the Spanish-speaking world — el castellano means ‘Spanish.’

Spanish is one of the several modern spoken forms of Latin that we call the Romance languages. It does not represent in its essence the highly refined and somewhat artificial written Latin known to us as the classic speech of Vergil, Cicero, and the many writers of ancient Rome. On the contrary it perpetuates the Vulgar Latin, the spoken language of the masses in Italy and, in particular, of the Latin soldiers and colonists whom the Roman conquest brought to Spain and who settled there. This Vulgar Latin of everyday use, no less ancient than the classic form of the language, differed from the latter in not a few respects: morphologically it was simpler, disregarding as it did many of the flexional variations of the written Classic Latin; phonologically it differed also in no slight degree; and these differences are well reflected in the Romance languages. Written records of Vulgar Latin are scanty; inscriptions and the testimony of the Roman grammarians furnish us with some material, but it is mainly through a comparative study of the Romance languages that we have arrived at a knowledge of its forms. Of the Iberian and Celtic speeches already used in Spain before the advent of the Romans we need take little cognizance. So complete was the Romanization of the territory that they absolutely disappeared, barring some very few and doubtful survivals in the lexicon. The basis of the Spanish lexicon is Vulgar Latin, with certain accretions from Classic Latin, Germanic, Arabic, French, and Italian, and, in a less degree, from the Indian and other languages. In its phonology, morphology, and syntax, Spanish simply modifies or develops purely Latin features.

In the Notes and Vocabulary questions of morphology and syntax arising out of our texts have been given the notice that seemed necessary in this little manual. For the morphology and syntax of Spanish, reference may be had in general to the works of several authoritative scholars. The more important are these: G. Baist, Die spanische Sprache, in Gröber's Grundriss der romanischen Philologie, 2d ed., I. 878 ff.; R. Menéndez Pidal, Manual Elemental de Gramática Histórica Española, 2d ed., Madrid, 1905; A. Zauner, Altspanisches Elementarbuch, Heidelberg, 1908; id., Romanische Sprachwissenschaft, 2d ed., Leipzig, 1905; F. Hanssen, Spanische Grammatik, Halle, 1910; F. Diez, Grammatik der romanischen Sprachen, 3d ed., 1870-1872 (see also the French translation); W. Meyer-Lübke, Grammatik der romanischen Sprachen, Leipzig, 1890 et seq.; Bello-Cuervo, Gramática de la Lengua Castellana. A good and full etymological dictionary of Spanish has not appeared as yet; we can resort only to Diez's Etymologisches Wörterbuch der romanischen Sprachen, 5th ed., Bonn, 1887, and to G. Körting's Latein-Romanisches Wörterbuch, 3d ed., Paderborn, 1907, both of which leave a great deal to be desired. Valuable information respecting the Arabic element in Spanish may be gained from Dozy and Engelmann's Glossaire des mots espagnols et portugais dérivés de l'arabe, 2d ed., Leyden, 1869. This work is not definitive, however, and its lacunæ have not been filled up by Eguílaz, Pedro de Alcalá, Simonet, or the others who have treated of the subject. In what follows of our Introduction we shall deal with the more elementary matters of Spanish phonology; more complete information will be found in the various works just mentioned.

PHONOLOGY

I. VOWELS

The ordinary vowels and diphthongs of Classic Latin had in Vulgar Latin these counterparts:

Cl. L.	ā ă	æ ě	ē 'œ ĭ	ī	ō	ō ŭ	ū	au
V. L.	a	ɛ	ɛ	i	ɔ	o	u	au

In Vulgar Latin, qualitative distinctions of open and close vowel took the place of the Classic Latin distinctions of quantity, long and short. The dot under a vowel indicates the close pronunciation; the hook marks an open pronunciation. For the development of the Vulgar Latin vowels into Spanish we have to consider separately the history of the accented and the unaccented syllables, and we shall confine our examples in general to the popular words as distinguished from the learned words.

I. Accented Vowels

When the influence of contiguous sounds did not interfere, the Vulgar Latin accented vowels listed above usually developed as follows in Spanish:

V. L.	a	ē	e	i	o	o au	u
Sp.	a	ie	e	i	ue	o	u

It is seen that the open vowels diphthongized, and this diphthongization, contrary to the process followed in French and Italian, is carried out when the Vulgar Latin vowel is in a protected syllable as well as when it stands in a free syllable. When dealing with the individual Vulgar Latin vowels we shall consider the checking or modifying influences of the contiguous sounds. The Vulgar Latin oblique case, as denoted ordinarily by the accusative (whose -m was not pronounced except in monosyllables), became the norm for the development into Spanish.

- (1) a. (a) V. L. a, representing both the ā and the ǣ of Classic Latin, ordinarily maintained itself under the accent in Spanish:

āla > ala; pāter, pātrēm > padre; pars, partēm > parte.

- (b) An i (y) immediately following it, or attracted to it from the next syllable, could close the a to e. Hence a diphthong ei (ey), which simplified to e in Castilian:

laicus, laicum > lego; basium > beso; sartago, sartāgīnem > after loss of intervocalic g (e, i), sartén.

As often happens, dialectal Spanish and the sister language, Portuguese, show the intermediate stage: cf. Ptg. leigo; Leonese beiso, Ptg. beijo.

The following dī, gī (both y in V.L.), and ī might simply remain as y and leave the a unaffected:

radūm > rayo; V.L. plagiā* > playa; Maūm > Mayo.

- (c) A palatal consonant following the a may vocalize and produce an ī (y'), which then induces the same result, e:

factum > O.Sp. fecho, mod. hecho, cf. Ptg. feito; axis, axem, i.e. V.L. acse(m) > O.Sp. exe, mod. eje, cf. Ptg. eixo.

- (d) A u following, whether one already forming a diphthong with the a in Classic Latin (causa), or one forming such a diphthong in V.L. (L. amavit, V.L. amaut, found in inscriptions), or one attracted from a following syllable (sapui > saupi*), or one developed out of a following l before a consonant (alter, alterum > autro*), likewise reacted upon the a, as the a in its turn did upon the u. The result was o in Castilian. One of the intermediate stages was the diphthong ou, still found in Leonese and in (northern) Portuguese:

causa > cosa, cf. Ptg. and Leonese cousa; amavit, amaut > amó, cf. Ptg. and Leonese amou; sapui > saupi* > O.Sp. sope, mod. supe, cf. Ptg. soube; alt(ē)rum > autro* > otro, cf. Ptg. outro.

(2) V.L. ē for L. ē and ae.

- (a) If not checked by adjacent sounds, V.L. ē under the accent became in Castilian the diphthong ie. It has not yet been definitively ascertained whether the accent fell originally on the i or the e of the diphthong; most of the conditions resulting in Castilian are met by the theory that already in O.Sp. the accent rested on the e, some are not so easily satisfied thereby. Examples of the unchecked development:

pētra > piedra; tēnet > tiene; caelum > cielo; caecum > ciego.

- (b) A palatal element following the V.L. ɛ may close it to ɛ̄ and prevent the diphthongization; sometimes this palatal element remains, and again it is carried over to the ɛ and absorbed in it:

supĕrbĭa > soberbia; matĕrĭa > madera, cf. Ptg. madeira; sĕdĕat, V.L. sĕyat* > sea.

The palatalizing force may be the result of the vocalization of a following consonant:

lĕctum > leĭĭo* (i.e. ɛ + palatal y + a t infected with the palatalizing force of the y and approximating to tʃ or ch) > lecho, cf. Ptg. leito; integer, ĭntĕgrum, V.L. intĕgrum > entero, cf. Ptg. inteiro.

Here it is to be noticed that, although the closing seems to have occurred in spĕcŭlum > spĕdum* > espejo, it has not in vĕtŭlum > V.L. vĕclum > viejo. The V.L. veclum is attested by the Appendix Probi, and therefore, belonging to the pre-Romance period, would seem early enough to develop even as speculum did. While the palatal ĭ thus produced has usually been absorbed in the ɛ, it has remained in sĕx, i.e. sĕcs > seis; pĕcten, pĕctĭnem > peine.

- (c) Sometimes the diphthong ie was regularly developed and then a secondary ĭ (y), occasioned by the loss of an intervening consonant, changed it to ĭ:

tĕpĭdum > tiebido* > tĭebĭo, and this by the double palatalizing force > tibio.

In like manner a following palatal l changed ie through ĭeĭ to ĭ:

sĕlla > O.Sp. siella > mod. silla; diminutive suffix -ĕllum > O.Sp. -iello > mod. -illo.

A preceding l has taken up the ĭ of ie and been palatalized by it, at a rather recent date, in lĕvat > O.Sp. lieva (as opposed to lĕvare > O.Sp. levar) > mod. lleva.

The diphthong was thus simplified to e wherever it appeared, and then the ll was generalized: hence llevar, etc.

(d) In hiatus the ie became i:

Dēus > Dieos > Díos > Diós (with a later shift of accent); měum > mieo (still Leonese) > mío.

Also after the O. Sp. palatal sibilant dž, the i of the diphthong has been absorbed in the case of mulĭěrem, V. L. mulĭěrem > O. Sp. mugier > mod. mujer.

(e) Not well explained as yet are the cases in which O. Sp. ie before s + a consonant changed to i. Examples:

věspera > viespera > mod. víspera (note that the retention of the unaccented penult e is not wholly popular); věšpa > aviespa (with an a- probably due to the analogy of abeja < apĭcula) > mod. avispa; prěssa > priessa > mod. prieta and prisa.

It is possible that by the act of raising the tongue and narrowing the air chamber in the mouth — an act necessary for the production of sp and st — the e of ie was raised and closed to i, and the resulting combination was then reduced to i.

(3) V. L. e from L. ē, ĭ, oe.

(a) Except when subjected to the further closing influence of some following sound, V. L. e remained in Castilian:

sĕta > seda; plĕnum > lleno; cĭbum > cebo; bĭbit > bebe; poena > pena; foedum > feo.

(b) A palatal element of the following syllable may close the e to i. Usually this palatalizing element (i) remains in the Spanish word and is constantly exercising its force:

cĕrĕum > cirio; vĭtreum > vidrio.

A secondary i due to the loss of an intervening consonant produces the same effect and also remains:

lĭmpĭdum > limpio.

- (c) Where the palatalizing element is one that does not remain in Spanish, generally the e persists. The j (and e = j), if it follow the e directly, is absorbed by it; if it be separated by another consonant, its force appears to be consumed in the palatalization of that consonant. So, too, an j evolved out of a palatal consonant does not affect the e.

corrġġa, V.L. correġa* (correya) > correa; dġssġġum, V.L. desseġo* > deseo; vġtġum > vezo; tristġġa > tristeza (and so in the many abstracts in -itia > -eza); consġġum > consejo; cġġum, ntr. pl. cġġa > ceja; parġcġlum (through paricġlum*) > parejo (and so in all the diminutives in -ġcġlum); rġgula > reja; tġctum > techo; strġctum > estrecho; sġgnum > seño; lġgnum > leño.

In cases such as tiġe < tġngit, riġe < V.L. rġngit*, the i may be due to the analogy of other verbs with e in the infinitive stem and i under the accent in the stem-stressed forms. In tiġa < tġnġa we may see the influence of tiġe.

- (d) A following u (w) does not appear to have closed the e to i with any regularity. As opposed to O.Sp. mingua < V.L. mġnuat*, L. mġnġit, we have the mod. mengua; and so, also, lġngua has given lengua.
- (e) In hiatus the V.L. e became i:

vġa > via: -ġa (the impf. indic. ending, which arose in V.L. by dissimilation in such verbs as habġbam > habġa*, debġbam > debġa*) > -ia.

- (f) Final unaccented i reacted upon the accented e and closed it to i:

vġni > vine; fġcġ > O.Sp. fize, mod. hice.

- (4) V.L. j for L. i.

V.L. j remains in Spanish:

fġcum > higo; lis, lġtem > lid.

(5) V.L. ɔ for L. ǫ.

- (a) V.L. ɔ under the accent, if no checking influence prevailed, gave in Castilian the diphthong ue, an earlier stage of which was uo, still found in dialects as well as in the sister language, Italian. The Castilian ue has been found as early as the 10th century, but it has been argued (cf. Menéndez Pidal, Gramática del Cid, p. 143) that the 12th century Poema del Cid still has uó in rhyme. However this may be, Castilian had ue as the regular sound from the 13th century on, and uo appearing sporadically in the MSS. can then be only dialectal. Perhaps the e of ue had from the beginning the very open value (like that of French eu in peu) which it now has. Examples:

fōcum > fuego; mors, mōrtem > muerte; bōnum > bueno.

The passage of uo to ue, where there was no antecedent ǫ, is seen in quōmodo, V.L. quomo* > O.Sp. cuemo beside O.Sp. como (the proclitic and unaccented form), mod. como.

- (b) In general a following palatal, whatever its source, will close the V.L. ɔ to ɔ̄ and prevent the diphthongization in Castilian:

hōdŕe, V.L. hɔye* > hoy; pōdŕum > poyo; nox, nōctem > noche; V.L. coxum* (cf. L. coxo) > O.Sp. coxo (i.e. cošo with palatal s), mod. cojo; fōlŕum, ntr. pl. fōlŕa > hoja; ōcŭlum > ojo.

In cases like O.Sp. fuērça, mod. fuerva < fōrtŕa, the force of the i was consumed in the assibilation of the t and there remained no permanent palatal sound as there did in poyo, noche, O.Sp. coxo, O.Sp. ojo, or we may see here the analogy of fuerte. Apparently the palatal did not prevent the diphthongization in the combinations with n; cf.

lōnge > lueñe (but there is the possible influence of luengo); Saxōnŕa > Sansueña; Gascōnŕa > O.Sp. Gascueña, mod.

Gasconña (but cf. Gasconna in our texts, 41 4); sōmnūm > sueño (but there is the influence of L. sōmnum, in which the nasals may not have palatalized early enough to prevent the diphthongization).

- (c) In certain cases the ue was developed in O.Sp. and later reduced to e. In some instances there is no clear reason for this change. If a labial combination of consonants preceded or followed the ue, the reduction might be due to dissimilation of the labial u. Again, if the ue was in the same syllable with a foregoing group of two consonants, its disappearance might be due to the desire to soften a harsh combination of three consonants, since the u is itself a consonantal u. Examples:

frons, frōntem > O.Sp. fruenta, mod. frente; flōccum > O.Sp. flueco, mod. fleco; cōlūbra, V.L. cōlōbra*, O.Sp. culuebra, mod. culebra; stōrea > O.Sp. estuera, mod. estera.

If the word containing the ue passed into a proclitic unaccented position, through being compounded with another word, the ue seems to have been reduced to e:

hōstem antīquam > O.Sp. (h)uest antigua, mod. estantigua; pōst + aurīculum* > puestorejo, mod. pestorejo; pōst + coccēu* > puescuego, mod. pescuezo.

- (d) Some words developed in a double form. Their syntactical function explains the difference in development. If accented (and then they were generally used in a stronger and more literal sense), they had the diphthong; if thrown into a proclitic unaccented position, they did not diphthongize. Examples:

dōmīnum > dueño 'master,' 'owner,' but don (and this may be L. dōmīne) if it is proclitic to a name (Don Juan, etc.); comes, cōmītem > O.Sp. cuende, but conde when it stood before a name (Conde Fernán González); later on conde was generalized in use and displaced cuende; pons, pōntem > puente, in the ordinary use as a noun, but ponte in combinations forming place names (Pontevedra; but dialectal circumstances should be considered here);

fons, fōntem > fuenta, as a common noun, but fonte in place names (Fontefrída = Fuentefrída, Fuenfrída, in the ballads); homo, hōmīnem > O. Sp. uemme in independent use as a noun, but O. Sp. omne (whence mod. hombre) in unaccented pronominal use like that of French on and in apparent proclitic use in phrases such as omnes de Burgos = O. Sp. Burgeses (cf. Baist, in Gröber's Grundriss d. roman. Philol. I, 2d ed., p. 889). Omne became very early the general form in all uses. For mons, mōntem, the rather common appearance of the word in place names also gave currency to the undiphthongized form (cf. Montealegre, Montefrío, etc.).

The theory that the nasal adjacent to the o in all these words closed it has not received full approbation.

(6) V. L. o for L. ō and ŭ, and au.

(a) If unaffected by an adjacent closing force, the V. L. o remained as o in Castilian:

vōtum, pl. vōta > boda; hōra > hora; lūtum > lodo; mūsca > mosca.

(b) The V. L. diphthong au, corresponding to the L. au, likewise gave o in Castilian, as did also the secondary au due to the vocalization of a consonant or the attraction to the a of a u of the following syllable; cf. (1) (d). Apparently the u of the au — a semiconsonant in value — maintained itself long enough to prevent the following consonant from receiving the intervocalic treatment, and hence that consonant, if voiceless, did not voice:

aurum > oro; cautum > coto; talpa > topo (with change of gender); sapuit > O. Sp. sopo.

Where the au remains in Castilian, it is of late or learned development:

causa > causa; captivum > cautivo (cf. O. Sp. cativo); actum > auto (with apparently back or velar pronunciation of the c, which therefore vocalized as u and not as i).

(c) A palatalizing element preceding or following, whether primary or secondary (j derived from l or c before t; the palatal factor in \tilde{n} from gn , or $n\dot{i}$; etc.), closed the o to u :

jūgum > yugo;

cōgītō (rather than V.L. cōgito*, required for French), V.L.

cōyito*, cōyeto* > cuido;

fūgīō, V.L. foyo* > huyo (from this and other forms in which an \dot{i} closed the o to u , the u passed to all the rest of the verb; hence O.Sp. foir, foido < V.L. fūgīre*, fūgītum* became mod. huir, huído);

trūcta > truīta* > trucha;

mūltum > muīto* (cf. Ptg. muito) > mucho (the diphthong remains in muy, a proclitic reduction of muīto*); vultur, vūltūrem > vultre* > buitre (the \dot{i} remains because it was not consumed in a palatalization of the t ; before another consonant the t could not be palatalized);

pūgnum > puño;

cūneum > cuño (mn > nn palatalized too late to produce any effect: autūmnum > otoño);

rūbēum > rubio; plūvia > lluvia; tūrbīdum > torbīo* > turbio;

pūnctum > pōñto* (the \tilde{n} became n before the consonant) > punto.

The combinations cl, lī, tī did not affect the o ; their palatal force did not go beyond the reaction upon the l and t :

genūc(ū)lum, L. genūculum > kinojo (and in general the diminutive suffix -ūc(ū)lum gave -ojo); cūscōlūm > coscojo; pūtēum > pozo.

- (d) A situation not yet well understood has arisen when the \dot{i} has been attracted from a following syllable to the V.L. o . The result appears to be ue instead of the ui that we might expect; cf. vūltūrem > buitre:

cīcōnīa > cigüeña; V.L. rīsōnēum* > risueño; V.L. vītōnēum* > vidueño, but also viduño and veduño.

The form viduño (cf. also terruño, etc.) might be thus explained: vītōnēum* > vidonīo* > vidoiño* > viduiño*, and, with absorption of the \dot{i} by the \tilde{n} , viduño. For the result -ucño we have to suppose an opening of the epenthetic i to e , which seems rather unnatural, and yet appears to have happened also for the suffix -ōrium > -uero (co-opertorīa* > cobertuera, mod. cobertera; see the Vocab.), and in augūrīum > agüero (cf. note to 4 17 and the Vocab. s.v. verguença). Or was the process ói > óe > oé > ué? Portuguese and Leonese show the oi stage: agoiro, etc. Perhaps the whole matter is largely one of suffix interchange. In the case of fūit > fué (with shift of accent from fūe), it is usually assumed that the hiatus produced the closing of o > u; cf. O.Sp. foe and fo. But we must bear in mind the possible analogical force of fūi > O.Sp. fúi, fúe, fu, mod. fui; and then, too, the closing might have occurred first in fuéron, O.Sp. fuesse, etc.

(7) V.L. u for L. ū remains in Castilian:

mūtum > mudo; fūmum > humo.

2. Unaccented Vowels

The history of the unaccented vowels varies according as to whether they are initial (i.e. either begin the word or stand in the first syllable), medial, or final. In the initial position they are more likely to maintain themselves; in the medial and final positions they often disappear. As e and ē both became e, and o and ō both became o in Castilian, when not accented, we have but five vowels, a, e, i, o and u, to deal with (besides the V.L. au which became o in Castilian). In the final position these were reduced to three, a, e, and o, inasmuch as i there opened to e at an early stage of O.Sp. and u from L. ū hardly existed in V.L., at least in really popular words.

a. Final Position

(1) a. V.L. a remains:

amīca > amiga; amat > ama.

Any closing of the a to e is rather due to analogical influence or dialectal development: this is probably the case for the impf. indic. ending -ia etc. > O.Sp. -ie, and the poss. adjs. mie, tue, sue. Cf. the Notes, pp. 119 ff., and the Vocab. s.v. mí, tu, su.

- (2) e. (a) V.L. e, ē, and i all became e and this dropped in O.Sp. if the preceding consonant was one that could stand at the end of a word. Thus, after d (from L. intervocalic t and often written t in the final position in O.Sp., as it was there unvoiced), l, n, r, s, and z (for both z and ç, as the latter was not written in the final position), the e disappeared:

rete > red; civitātem > ciudad (also çibdat in O.Sp.); vīlem > vil; panem > pan; mare > mar; mensem, V.L. mese* > mes; vīcem > vez; pīscem > pez.

In verb forms the modern language has restored the e where O.Sp. occasionally lost it; valet > O.Sp. val, mod. vale; dīcīt > O.Sp. diz, mod. dice; fēcī > O.Sp. fizi, fize and fiz, mod. hice.

So, too, the modern language has restored the e often lost in O.Sp. in cases of enclisis: cf. manol = mano + le, 16 174; not = no(n) + te, 21 24; aquis = aquí + se, 17 1085; etc. The loss of the e often superinduced further phonetic changes in O.Sp.; thus the Cid shows the forms nimbla = ní + me + la and did el cauallo = dí te el c.; etc.

- (b) After a consonant combination, and after b, v, ll, rr, and x (i.e. š, the mod. j), the e remained as a vowel of support:

hom(ŕ)nem > hombre; ũnd(ŕ)cim > O.Sp. onze, mod. once; amab(ŕ)lem > amable; trabem > trabe; bibŕt > bebe; habŕi > O.Sp. ovi, ove, mod. hube; clavem > llave; fŕllem > fuelle; tŕrrem > torre; axem > O.Sp. exe, mod. eje.

While in O.Sp. the e sometimes dropped after a consonant combination, the modern language regularly writes it: puecnt = puent, 16 150; noch (= notš), 15 137; etc.; the e occasionally dropped, too, after one of the consonantal sounds just mentioned: the Cid has nuef = nueve (the v unvoiced in the final position), off = ove < habũ; etc.

- (c) Final e in hiatus may become y (i):

rēgem, V. L. reye* > reḡ > rey; bōvem, V. L. bōem* > buee > buey.

- (3) o. The o of V. L. remained in Castilian:

amo > amo; amīcūm > amigo.

The loss of the o, or the appearance of some other vowel instead of it, is to be explained as due to some syntactical reason (proclisis, etc.), or to analogy, or to some other cause; the phenomenon cannot be phonological. Thus un for uno, buen for bueno, etc. are all due to proclitic use.

b. Medial Position

- (1) The unaccented penult of words accented on the antepenult.

- (a) After the accent the unaccented vowel of the penult dropped, unless it was a or the resulting combination of consonants was impossible:

comītem > O. Sp. cuende and conde; lēpōrem > liebre; cōmpūtum > cuento. •

In some cases the loss had occurred already in V. L., as is shown by the failure of the voiceless intervocalic consonant to voice:

pōsitum, V. L. pōstum > puesto; rēputo, V. L. repto* > rieto.

- (b) But a maintained itself:

anas, anātem > ánade; raphānum > rábano; orphānum > huérfano.

- (c) Again, to prevent the juxtaposition of consonants that could not be pronounced together, the vowel remained:

lacrima > lágrima (but we expect lagrema*); hospes, hōspitem > huésped.

But most words of this class seem to be at least half-learned: e.g., ángel, césped, etc.

- (d) Some words in -idus lost the intervocalic d' early and the penult i remained as j in a word now accented on the penult:

tepīdum > tibio; sucīdum > O.Sp. suzio, mod. sucio.

In others, however, the i went first:

nītidum > neto.

- (2) The unaccented vowel between the secondary and the chief accent.

- (a) With the exception of a, a vowel between the secondary and the chief accent might drop, if the adjacent consonants permitted:

malēdīco > maldigo; comītātum > condado; catēnātum > O.Sp. cañado, mod. candado; septimana > O.Sp. sedmana, mod. semana.

- (b) But a remained:

paradīsūm > paratso; calamēllum > caramillo.

- (c) If the surrounding consonants could not come together, the vowel remained:

tempestas, tēmpēstātem > tempestad (but perhaps this is half-learned); multitudo, mūltitūdinem > muchedumbre (but this is perhaps only a formation on mucho).

- (d) In the verb system analogy often explains the retention of the vowel:

adjūto > ayudo, and therefore ayudar < adjutāre (cf. Fr. aider, Ital. aitare).

c. Initial Position

- (1) a. (a) Unless affected by a following palatal or labial sound, a remained:

caballum > caballo.

- (b) Under the influence of a following i or u, the a was affected as it was under the accent:

mansio, manstōnem, V. L. mansionem* > majon* > mesón; V. L. varǵla* > vaǵruela* > O. Sp. veruela, and, through the closing force of the u, > viruela; maxilla > O. Sp. mexilla, mod. mejilla; juclare > echar; autūmnus > otoño; sapūt-mus > O. Sp. sopimos, mod. supimos; altarūm > otero (with change of sense).

- (c) Assimilation, dissimilation, the interchange of real or seeming prefixes, etc. will explain other cases of alteration of the a:

abscondere, V. L. ascondere* > O. Sp. asconder, whence, under the influence of the prefix ex-, Sp. es-, esconder; V. L. anēthūlum* > anedlo* > O. Sp. aneldo, whence by assimilation eneldo.

- (2) e. (a) The e remains unless closed by an i or a u of the accented syllable following:

lēgālem (under the influence of ley) > leal; lētīcula > lenteja; praeco, praecōnem > pregón; V. L. sīmīllare* > semejar.

- (b) The closing of the e to i by the i of the following accented syllable is, like that of o to u under the same conditions, a marked feature of Spanish. It is especially prominent in the verb system:

semēntem > simiente; pre(he)nsionem > presjon > prisión; servāmus > sirvamos; servāvērunt > servajeron > sirvieron; serviēndum > servijendo > sirviendo.

- (c) The closing by u is less common:

aequalem > O. Sp. egual > igual; V. L. mīnūāre* > O. Sp. minguar beside menguar (only the latter has survived); O. Sp. veruela > mod. viruela.

- (d) Other changes in initial e are to be regarded as due to especial circumstances, such as the obscuring force of adjacent r, borrowing from foreign languages, etc.:

vervactum > barbecho (possibly e > a under the influence of the r); silvaticum > salvaje (through O. Fr. salvage).

- (3) i. (a) The i usually remained :

titio, tūtīōnem > tizón ; rīpārīa > ribera.

- (b) But by dissimilation from a following accented i, it may become e :

vīcīnum > vizino* (cf. Ptg. vizinho) > O.Sp. vezino, mod. vecino ; dīcēre, V.L. dīcīre* > dizir > O.Sp. dezir, mod. decir ; rīdēre, V.L. rīdīre* > O.Sp. riir, mod. reir.

- (4) o. (a) Unless closed by some preceding or following force, the o (including Sp. o from V.L. au) maintained itself :

nōmīnāre > nombrar ; fūgēre, V.L. fūgīre* > O.Sp. foir (the u of mod. huir, etc., is due to the analogy of fūgio > huyo, etc.) ; cōrōna > corona ; aurīcūla > oreja.

- (b) The change of o to u as the result of a preceding palatal seems to have occurred in

V.L. jōcāre* > O.Sp. jogar, mod. jugar.

There are cases like mod. lugar for O.Sp. logar, logal < lōcāle, and mod. pulgar < pōllīcāre, which are not readily explained. Vulgar wit may have connected the latter word with pūlex, V.L. pūlica*, Sp. pulga.

- (c) A following i or u closed the o to u :

mūliērem > O.Sp. mugier, mod. mujer ; cōgnātum > cuñado ; dōrmīvērunt > dormjeron > durmieron ; dōrmīāmus > dur-mamos ; dōrmiēndum > durmiendo.

- (d) By dissimilation from accented o, an initial o, especially if obscured by an adjacent r, may dissimilate to e :

formōsum > hermoso ; rotāndum > rodondo* > redondo ; F. horloge > rolož* (ž = Fr. j or g before e) > O.Sp. relox, mod. reloj.

- (5) u. The V.L. u maintained itself in Spanish :

mūtāre > mudar ; V.L. pūrītīa* > pureza.

II. CONSONANTS

The fate of the Latin consonants in Spanish was dependent upon their position as initial, medial, or final. In the initial position they maintained themselves to a considerable degree; in the medial position they underwent certain changes necessary to adapt them to the surrounding vocalic conditions (the voiceless consonants voiced, some of the voiced disappeared, etc.); and in the final position, as a result of a weakening in their enunciation, they tended to vanish.

a. Final Consonants

Since for substantives it is the oblique (accusative) case which is the basis of development for the Romance word, many consonants apparently final in Latin were not so in the V.L. sources of our Spanish words. Even for neuter nouns we often have to suppose an oblique stem; thus, L. mel has not a final l from our point of view; we start with a V.L. melle*, whence Sp. miel. It is chiefly in the parts of speech not substantival that we can accept a Classic Latin final consonant as final for our purposes.

(1) s, n, r. These remain in Spanish.

(a) s remains chiefly as the sign of the plural in substantives and as a flexional sign in verbs:

causas > cosas; amas > amas. Cf. also mīnus > menos; magis, V.L. max (i.e. macs) > mas; sex (i.e. secs) > seis.

(b) n was final in but a few words:

in > en; non > non. (From this came no, through a development in syntactical relation: non + me (enclitic) > O.Sp. nom(e); non + lo (enclitic) > O.Sp. nolo; non + se (enclitic) > O.Sp. nos(e). A redivision led to no me, no lo, etc.)

(c) A sure V.L. case of final r is difficult to find. We doubtless must assume a V.L. por (L. pro, but por- in composition), whence Sp. por. Instead of L. quattuor and semper we must postulate V.L. quáttoro*, sémpere*.

(2) t, nt, st. These are chiefly important in connection with the inflection of the verb.

(a) Final t disappeared :

amat > ama; stat > está; aut > ó.

Final nt > n :

amant > aman; sünt > son.

Final st > s :

est > es; pöst > pues and unaccented pos (en pos de).

While caput could give Sp. cabo, we should still postulate a V.L. capum*, in view of V.L. capŭcia* > O.Sp. cabeça, mod. cabeza.

(3) m. (a) In an unaccented final syllable m dropped :

fīlŭm > hijo; amīcum > amigo.

(b) In monosyllables, i.e. in the accented syllable, m > n :

quēm > quien; cŭm > con; tam > tan (but this may be tantum > tanto > tant > tan in proclitic use).

L. sŭm should have given son, but the influence of the 1 sg. forms in o (do, sto, etc.) and a desire to differentiate the form from sünt > son produced the O.Sp. so, whence mod. soy.

(4) l. There is no certain case of l in an accented syllable; it appears to have been lost in the single case of an unaccented syllable :

V.L. īnsēml* (cf. īnstmŭl and sēmel) > O.Sp. ensiemo.

(5) d. Final d was lost :

ad > a; quīd > que; alīd > ale* > O.Sp. al (still in use in the Golden Age).

(6) c. Final c was lost :

dīc > di; nec > ne* > ni; hīc > O.Sp. y 'there' (this is preserved in hay); eccum, V.L. accu* + hīc > aquí.

b. Initial Consonants

- (1) The simple stop consonants, whether labial stops, p, b, or dental stops, t, d, or guttural (velar) stops, c (before a, o, u), g (before a, o, u), remained :

pater, patrem > padre; bibit > bebe; tectum > techo; dentem > diente; colorem > color; gula > gola.

Before r also these remained :

probar, tratar, crecer, grano, dragón, bruno.

In a few cases the initial L. c (before a, o, u) appears in Sp. as g:

cattum > gato; crēta > greda.

This phenomenon is due to a weak enunciation of the c, which was thus confused with the voiced sound g; a similar change had occurred for certain Greek words passing into Latin, as, κυβερνᾶν > gubernare.

In the O.Sp. period the initial b from L. b seems to have remained the stop sound as did the intervocalic b from L. p; later on these b's became confused, as they are now, with the spirant labial derived from initial L. v and intervocalic L. b and v. In energetic pronunciation or after a word or syllable ending in a nasal the stop sound is heard: ¡basta!, un banco (= um banco), convidar (= combidar), investire > embestir. In d the explosive quality is now usually slight; the sound is in great measure a spirant one.

- (2) There also were preserved in Spanish the Latin initial l (lateral fricative), r (tongue-trilled fricative), m and n (labial and dental nasals), s (sibilant), and v (labial fricative or spirant):

lectum > lecho; rota > rueda; multum > mucho; novum > nuevo; seta > seda; vanum > vano.

The initial r was more strongly trilled than the intervocalic or final r or the r after most consonants; hence the scribes often wrote it as rr or R to indicate its specific value. After n they sometimes wrote it in the same way, onrra = honra.

The initial v (usually written u) had probably already in O.Sp. the modern bilabial spirant value.

Moorish mispronunciation of s as ʃ (written O.Sp. x) has produced certain variations, especially in geographical names which the Moors had to use:

sapo, sapōnem > O. Sp. xabon, mod. jabón; Salonem > O. Sp. Xalon, mod. Jalón.

- (3) L. h, meaning nothing in real pronunciation in Latin, was valueless in V. L. and also in Spanish; the scribes generally did not write it in O.Sp. (cf. aver < habere). Etymological considerations have restored the initial h frequently in modern spelling.
- (4) In popular pronunciation the L. f became a Spanish aspirate before a vowel sound; it remained as f, i.e. as a labio-dental spirant, before the diphthong ue and in combination with r:

fabulare > O. Sp. fablar, mod. hablar; fel, felle > O. Sp. fiel, mod. hiel; filium > O. Sp. fiyo, mod. hijo; folia > O. Sp. foja, mod. hoja; V. L. fugio > O. Sp. fuyo, mod. huyo.

The O. Sp. spelling with f in such cases as those just mentioned is only traditional; the sound had certainly become that of a strong aspirate (English h in hat, etc.). This is evidenced by the spelling in the Cid of fonta, fardida, etc., derived from the French honte, hardie, etc., with an aspirated h of Germanic origin. O. Sp. had no specific sign at hand to render accurately the aspirate value, and simply kept the sign denoting the sound which had changed to the aspiration.

The labio-dental value remained in such words as förtem > fuerte; frōntem > O. Sp. fruyente, mod. frente.

For f before l (the only other consonant combination that it could form), see below.

The many cases of f before a vowel (except ue) in modern Spanish are due to learned influence, which early began to restore it. The aspirate which was really developed in O.Sp. in such instances as fablar, fiel, fijo, foja, and fuyo began to be represented by h at the end of the Middle Ages. This still denoted the aspiration in the 15th and 16th centuries. The aspiration disappeared in Castilian in the 16th century, but the spelling with h remains. As a result we have an h in modern Spanish which represents an unpronounced L. h, and another which takes the place of an O.Sp. aspirate derived from L. f and now silent; both of these modern h's mean nothing in sound in modern Castilian, except that before ue (huerto < hörtum) a slight aspiration may be made. The written f of modern Castilian stands for a voiceless labio-dental spirant like the English f, unless, perchance, it have also a voiceless labial spirant value, comparable to the voiced labial spirant sound of b and v.

- (5) While the guttural (velar) c and g generally maintained themselves in Spanish, the palatal c and g, i.e. c and g before the front vowels e and i, underwent certain changes. Already in the V.L. period this g had become y (i) and was equivalent in the initial position to L. j and dj which also meant y in V.L.
- (6) In the unaccented syllable the V.L. y disappeared before e, i:

germanum > ïermano > ermano, now written hermano (with inorganic h); jactare > ïechar* > echar.

In the accented syllable and in popular treatment it remained as y before e, i, and also before a, u:

gypsum > yeso; jacet > yace; jam > ya; jugum > yugo (but cf. the many cases of mod. j = χ); deō(r)sum > O.Sp. yuso (cf. mod. ayuso).

Before ě of course the y had a double reason for remaining :

gĕnĕrum > yĕĕro* > yĕrno* > yerno ; gĕmma > yĕma* > yema ;
gĕlum > yĕlo* > O. Sp. yelo (now written hielo).

- (7) In many cases the V. L. y before a or a back vowel (o, u) seems to have become O. Sp. j (dʒ), whence the modern velar j (χ) ; this occurred before the accented or unaccented vowel :

jam magis > jamás ; dĭŭrnata > jornada (but this word is late and is probably a loan-word ; cf. Ital. giornata, Fr. journée, etc.) ;
Jōvis > jueves ; jōcum > juego ; jūncum > junco ; jŭvĕnem > joven ; justum > justo ; judicium > juicio, etc.

Some of the words of this last category are certainly learned, others may be loan-words. Before the ue the dʒ may have developed phonologically.

- (8) Before e (ae, oe) and i the c had perhaps begun to assibilate already in the late Latin period ; in O. Sp. it became the voiceless dental sibilant ts, written ç :

cĕra > çera ; cĕntum > çiento ; caelum > çielo ; coena > çena ;
civitatĕm > çibdad, çiudad.

The scribes wrote the cedilla pretty constantly in such cases, although it really became unnecessary in O. Sp. since the sibilant value was the only one possessed by the c before e, i. The retention was due to the appearance of the cedilla for the sibilant value in ça, ço, çi. In the 16th century the ts sound began to be lisped in Castilian, because the tongue, in the enunciation of it, was advanced onto the teeth or into the interdental position ; hence the modern voiceless th sound. In Andalusian and colonial Spanish the sound is that of s.

- (9) The combinations pl, fl, cl became palatalized tʃ, which is now written ll as a result of the fact that L. ll also palatalized. In the early O. Sp. period the scribes often wrote single l for the palatalized sound. In the case of cl the palatalizing force is evident ; in the case of pl and fl we may assume an intermediate stage of assimilation to double l; but the l itself must have had some palatal quality of its own in the original combination; cf. Ital. piano, fiamma, from planum and flamma. Examples:

planum > llano; plorare > llorar; plenum > lleno; flamma > llama; clamare > llamar; clavem > llave.

- (10) But there are many exceptions to the rule that pl, fl, cl palatalized to ll. Some of them are certainly due to learned influence and to the fact that the words were borrowed at a relatively late period:

planta > planta; placitum > plazo; flaccum > flaco; flos, flōrem > flor; clarum > claro.

In the case of fl it is likely that the palatalized l (ll) developed in certain cases and later became the simple l:

flaccidum > lacio; Flammūla > Lambla, Lambra (proper name in the epic Siete Infantes de Lara), beside Llambla.

- (11) In thoroughly popular use, the initial combination gl seems to have passed beyond the stage ll (palatalized l) to that of simple l:

V. L. glirōnem* (L. glis) > lirón (but cf. also Fr. liron); glattīre > latir; V. L. glandinem* (L. glans, glandis) > landre.

The words retaining the gl in Spanish are learned or half-learned.

- (12) The combination bl appears to have remained:

Germanic blank- > blanco; blītum > bledo.

If lastimar is to be connected with blasphemare, we seem to have one more case of initial palatalization leading to simplification to l; but this is doubtful.

- (13) The initial combination qu maintained itself as cu before accented a:

quando > cuando; qualem > cual; quattuor, V. L. quattōro* > cuatro.

In the sentence-stressed position the \underline{u} remained also before o in quomodo, V.L. quomo* > O.Sp. cuemo.

But the modern form of this word, como, is due to the atonic development.

- (14) In the unaccented position before a and o , the qu lost its labial \underline{u} element and became k (c):

quattuordecim > catorce; V.L. quomo* (not accented in the sentence) > como.

- (15) Before e , i , the qu regularly lost its labial \underline{u} element:

qui > O.Sp. qui (pronounced ki; the u is silent after q before e , i); quēm > quien; quīndecim > quince; quaero, V.L. quero* > quiero.

Quinque had already lost the \underline{u} in V.L. and become cinque*, whence cinco (for the analogical o cf. ocho, etc.).

- (16) Every Latin word beginning with s + a consonant has an e (originally i in the oldest Spanish) prefixed:

statum > estado; scribo > escribo.

c. Medial Consonants

- (1) In the intervocalic position the voiceless stops, p , t , c (a , o , u) voiced to b , d , g if single; if double they remained voiceless but simplified:

sapĕre, V.L. sapĕre* > saber; vita > vida; pacat > paga; cĭppum > cepo; cattum > gato; vacca > vaca.

The L. pt and ps became tt and ss ; the tt simplified to t , but the ss remained as voiceless s in O.Sp.:

captare > catar; ipse > O.Sp. esse > ese.

If followed by r , the voiceless stops also voiced:

capra > cabra; matrem > madre; sacratum > sagrado.

Intervocalic and before a , the combination qu voiced to $g\underline{u}$:

aqua > agua; aequalem > igual.

Before the other vowels the q (k) voiced to g, but the u was lost. Graphically the u has remained before e, i:

aliquot > algo; sequor, V. L. sequo* > sigo; sequi, V. L. sequire* > seguir; aliquem > alguien.

For the combinations pl, cl, etc. see below. In modern Castilian the b from p is a bilabial spirant indistinguishable from v and the b corresponding to L. b. After m or n, however, the sound of both b and v is that of the labial stop b. The modern d, from whatsoever source, has acquired a spirant value; in popular pronunciation and, to a certain degree, even in refined pronunciation it tends to disappear in the medial and final positions:

amado > amao (or amau); ciudad > ciuddá; usted > usté.

In the 2 pl. endings in verbs it vanished long ago:

amatis > O. Sp. amades > amdis; amate vos > amad (v)os > amaos.

Where j or u (i.e. a semiconsonant) followed the voiceless stop, the voicing did not occur:

sapiat > sepa; sapui > O. Sp. sope > mod. supe.

- (2) Between vowels the Latin voiced consonants b, d, and g either maintained themselves (with some modification in sound for b and d) or tended to disappear.

The L. b became the bilabial spirant and as such was equal in value to the Sp. result from L. intervocalic v; in O. Sp. the spelling with v (u) was the usual one:

probare > O. Sp. provar, mod. probar (with etymological b); bibēre, V. L. bībēre* > O. Sp. bever, mod. beber; nōvum > nuevo.

While L. v disappeared after L. i, L. b remained as a bilabial spirant. However, after a preceding labial (rounded) vowel (o, u) the b could disappear:

rīvum > río; ūbi > ob(e)* and this, in proclitic position before a word beginning with a consonant, could become ou*, whence O. Sp. o, still found in poetical do from de ūbi; sūbūndare* > sondar; sūbūmbrarium* > sombrero. (In cases like these last where a labial vowel both follows and precedes, the complete assimilation of the labial consonant does not seem unnatural.)

In some instances the b seems to have been lost before a following labial vowel:

sabūcum > saūco; sabūrra > sorra.

For buey we appeal to V.L. bōem* (cf. L. gen. pl. boum) instead of bovem.

In a number of words of undoubtedly popular development, the intervocalic d has vanished; it should have been easy for it to do so since even the secondary d from L. t could be lost under certain conditions:

sedēre > O.Sp. seer, mod. ser; pēdem > pie; vīdet > O.Sp. vee, mod. ve; ridere, V.L. ridire* > reir; fīdem > fe; limpīdum > limpio; audīre > oir; foedum > feo; etc.

The reasons for the retention of the d in such words as sudar, sudor, nido, nudo, crudo are not clear. Cf. Ptg. suar, ninho (for ñō), nu, cru. A learned influence or some especial circumstances must be appealed to for an explanation.

Before e, i, the L. g was already y in V.L.; it disappeared in Spanish:

rēgem > V.L. reye* > reḡ > rey; sigīllum > O.Sp. seello, mod. sello; regīna > reina.

Before the other vowels, the intervocalic g remained:

negare > negar; plaga > llaga; Augūstum, V.L. Agustum* > agosto; augurium, V.L. agurium* > agüero.

Leal for L. legalem and real for realem would appear to be reformed on ley and rey, whence leyal, reyal, whose y regularly disappeared after the e in Castilian. Certain verb forms seem to present difficulties; the g seems lost before a, o in liar, lio (ligare), rumiar, rumio (rumigare), humar (fumigare), lidiar (litigare). One wonders whether the loss of the g did not commence in them with the forms of the verb whose ending began with e:

ligent > lien, etc.

(3) The nasals and so-called liquids remain :

ramum > ramo ; lana > lana ; pīlum > pelo ; parare > parar.

While mm merely simplified to m, nn and ll palatalized (although, seemingly, not in the earliest O. Sp. period, since they did not prevent the diphthongization of preceding é and ó) and rr remained as a reënforced r, trilled as forcibly as the initial r :

flamma > llama ; annum > año ; callem > calle ; föllem > fuelle ; pëllem > pielle* > piel ; carrum > carro.

In words of late adoption from Latin or some other language (e.g. French), nn and ll were occasionally rendered as nd, ld :

Fr. pennon > pendón ; cella > celda.

(4) The Latin voiceless sibilant s became voiced, i.e. equivalent to the English z, in Castilian ; this voiced sound (regularly written s in O. Sp.) again unvoiced in the 16th century :

usum > O. Sp. uso (s = Eng. z), mod. uso (s = Eng. ss).

The Latin voiceless ss remained voiceless ss in O. Sp. and is now written s :

amavíssem, amassem > O. Sp. amasse, mod. amase ; prëssa > O. Sp. priessa, mod. priesa, prisa.

The intervocalic O. Sp. ss sometimes resulted from the assimilation of another consonant preceding the s :

ēpse > O. Sp. esse, mod. ese ; ūrsum > O. Sp. osso, mod. oso.

The combination ns in popular use was reduced to s in V. L., and therefore a voiced sound must have resulted in O. Sp. :

menses > meses ; pensare > V. L. peşare* > O. Sp. and mod. pesar.

(5) O. Sp., and to a certain degree already V. L., developed new sibilant sounds from Latin stop sounds which through their juxtaposition with front or palatal vowels assibilated. The assibilation of L. c before e, i, and of L. ty, cy (tj, cj), must have been developed early in the Middle Ages if not already in Late Latin.

- (a) Intervocalic c (e, i) and tj produced in O.Sp. a voiced dental sibilant dz written z. In the 16th century this unvoiced to ts and therefore was confused with the voiceless O.Sp. ç from L. c (e, i) after a consonant, L. ty and cy after a consonant, and L. intervocalic cy; by the end of that century the interdental pronunciation (lisp), i.e. the voiceless th of modern Spanish, had been established in Castilian:

facĕre, V.L. facĕre* > O.Sp. fazer, mod. hacer; vĭces > O.Sp. vezes, mod. veces; vacĭvum > O.Sp. vazio, mod. vacío; ratio-nem > O.Sp. and mod. razón; pŭtĕum > O.Sp. and mod. pozo; abstract suffix -itĭa > O.Sp. and mod. -eza.

Before e it seems that cy (cj) early became c and also voiced in O.Sp.:

aciēs > O.Sp. azes; faciĕndum, or V.L. facĕndum* > O.Sp. faziendo, mod. haciendo.

- (b) After a consonant, c (e, i), ty, and cy became ts, written ç in O.Sp. This voiceless dental sibilant became confused with the unvoiced result of the corresponding z (dz), in the 16th century, and both have become the modern interdental th, now written c before e, i, and z otherwise. Examples:

vincĕre, V.L. vĭncĕre* > O.Sp. vençer, mod. vencer; cognoscere, V.L. conoscĕre* > O.Sp. conoçer, mod. conocer; merces, mercĕdem > O.Sp. merçed, mod. merced; piscem > O.Sp. and mod. pez. In the final position the scribes wrote only z for both the ts and the dz sound; both meant ts, since the voiced dz unvoiced in the final position. Note that s disappeared regularly in Spanish before ç = ts: so also crescĕre, V.L. crescĕre* > creçer; piscēs > O.Sp. peçes, mod. peces; fŏrtĭa > O.Sp. fuerça, mod. fuerza; martĭum > O.Sp. março, mod. marzo; calcea > O.Sp. calça, mod. calza; lancea > O.Sp. lança, mod. lanza.

- (c) In really popular treatment it is likely that intervocalic cy also gave voiceless O.Sp. ç:

Still, intervocalic cy seems to have yielded a real z (voiced dz) in O.Sp. in quite a number of cases. These are chiefly instances of forms having the suffixes -īcium, -īciam (as in O.Sp. ceniza); -īcium, -īciam (as in O.Sp. corteza); -acēum, -acēam, and -aċium, -aċiam (as in O.Sp. fogaza < focaceam*); and -ūcēum, -ūcēam, and -ūcium, -ūciam (as in O.Sp. fiuza < fiducia and lechuza < lactucea*). These cases are not old, and learned or analogical influences may explain their O.Sp. z instead of ç.

- (d) Where the sound ts entered before a consonant in O.Sp. (as in later O.Sp. it did before a consonant plus a or o in inceptive verbs), the scribes denoted it by z (not by ç), just as they also wrote z in the final position for an indubitable ts:

O.Sp. meresco > mereço (through the analogy of mereçes, mereçe, etc.) and written regularly merezco; ad + sat(i)s > O.Sp. assaz, mod. asaz.

- (6) In Classic Latin of course f was hardly to be found in the intervocalic position; in composition (derivatives, etc.), however, it did acquire the intervocalic relation, and then, when developed in Spanish, it became the spirant b, v, and might even, undergoing attraction into a preceding syllable, become u:

profectum > provecho; suffix -ificare > -ivegar* > -iugar* > -iguar (ad-pacificare > apaciguar).

In learned acceptance the ph of Greek origin was equivalent to L. f, and also voiced:

Stephanum > O.Sp. Estevan, mod. Esteban; raphanum (ῥάφανος) > O.Sp. ravano, mod. rábano.

If, in the Latin derivative, the f was still felt as initial, it did not voice :

defensa > dehesa (i.e. the f was lost like other initial h's. Cf., however, the more popular development of the same word to devesa).

d. Consonant Combinations in the Medial Positions

We have already considered the doubled consonants and some of the combinations of which y is the second element. There are several other groupings.

(1) r, l, m, n, s before another consonant may remain equally unaffected with that consonant :

pōrta > puerta; arcum > arcu; altum > alto; falsum > falso; tempu- > tiempo; mantum > manto; fungum > hongo; musca > mosca.

But in popular pronunciation rs > ss, mod. s :

ursum > O. Sp. osso, mod. oso.

After r, and also after n (in a few cases), g followed by e, i, seems to have become the voiced dental palatal sibilant dʒ (English j in jam, etc.), which then lost its palatalization and became dz (written z) in O. Sp. :

spargēre, V.L. spargīre*, O. Sp. esparzir, mod. esparcir; V.L.
 singellum* (for singulum) > O. Sp. senziello, mod. sencillo.

But, in general, ng before e became ñ.

The combinations ns, nf were popularly reduced to s, f (with compensative lengthening, i.e. closing, of the preceding vowel) in V.L. :

mensa > mesa; īnfans, īnfantem > O. Sp. ifante.

When followed by b, an m had a tendency to assimilate that consonant, whence mm and then m :

lūmbum > lomo; palūmba > paloma; ambos > O. Sp. amos, mod.
ambos.

The combination mn in certain cases, whether the combination was original in Latin or only secondary (i.e. found in V.L.), gave by assimilation nn, whence in later O. Sp. palatalized ñ :

damnum > daño ; dōmīnum, V.L. dōmnum* > dueño.

But the secondary mn also proceeded otherwise ; it dissimilated the second nasal to r, and the vocal organs, in the passage from m to r, produced a labial stop b :

nomen, nom(ĭ)ne > nombre ; homo, homīnem > O. Sp. omne, omre > hombre.

Mpt > mt > nt :

comp(ŭ)tare > contar ; assumptum > asunto.

The story of the development of l before a consonant is one not too well understood. Sometimes the l has vocalized to u (especially before a voiceless consonant), as in talpa > topo ; alt(ĕ)rum > otro ; saltum > soto ; again the l has remained, as in altum > alto (cf. altarĭum > otero) ; and yet again, after u it has palatalized and changed the following voiceless dental stop t to the voiceless dental palatal sibilant tʃ, written ch :

multum > mucho ; cultellum > cuchillo.

The intermediate stage of ĭ is shown in buitre < vũltũrem and in muy, which represents a proclitic development of mũltum (mũltum bōnum > muĭto bueno > muĭt* [with loss of the palatalization before another consonant] bueno, >, by assimilation of the t, muĭ, i.e. muy, bueno).

There are many cases of the retention of l, especially before a voiced stop, or before a spirant or a sibilant.

- (2) In the combination ct, the palatal c vocalized to ĭ and reacted both on the preceding vowel, which it closed, and the following t, which it palatalized to tʃ, written ch :

factum > O. Sp. fecho, mod. hecho ; derectum > derecho.

For the three consonants nct the result was nt in Spanish, but the palatal c has exercised its closing force upon a preceding vowel :

V.L. pũnctum* > punto.

The L. $x = \text{cs}$ developed through palatal ɟ (which affected a preceding vowel) + palatal s (ʃ , written x in O.Sp.) to modern j , a velar spirant which came into existence by the end of the 16th century; a recession in the mouth of the place of articulation from the palatal to the velar position would necessarily produce the modern Castilian sound.

The effect of a preceding palatal element in a consonant combination is seen also in gn , which became palatalized \tilde{n} :

lignum > leño.

Although learned pronunciation keeps the gn , e.g. dignum > digno, the people at large simplify it to n , dino.

- (3) There were several combinations of consonants with a following l or r : pl , bl , fl , cl (tl), gl , pr , br , fr , tr , dr , cr , gr . In many cases these were secondary combinations, arising in V.L. through the loss of an intervening vowel.

Intervocalic pl > bl :

dūplare > doblar; pōp(ũ)lum > pueblo.

After a consonant the pl > ch :

amplum (if not amplium*) > ancho.

Fl apparently occurred in ffl, which seems to have simplified to fl, whence palatalized ll:

afflare > faflare* > O.Sp. fallar, mod. hallar; sufflare > sollar.

After a different consonant the fl seems to have acted like pl :

inflare > hinchar.

Intervocalic bl remains:

fab(ũ)lare > hablar; neb(ũ)lam > niebla.

Intervocalic cl and gl became palatalized tʃ , which became wholly a palatal y and then developed further to the O.Sp. dž written j and also g (if before e, i):

oc(ũ)lum > ojo (Ptg. olho shows the intermediate stage of t);
reg(ũ)la > reja (cf. Ptg. relha).

The combination lʲi between vowels likewise palatalized and became O. Sp. j, g (e, i), i.e. dʒ, a voiced dental plus a voiced palatal sibilant:

allium > ajo; cilla > ceja.

In V.L. the secondary combination tl became cl, which acted like the other cl:

vetulum > veclum > viejo.

After a consonant the cl produced the voiceless ch (i.e. tʃ, the voiceless sound corresponding to voiced dʒ):

masculum > macho (tʃ absorbed the preceding s).

In the combination ngl, the nasal triumphed:

ung(ŭ)la > uñla* > uñya* > uña.

Intervocalic pr and fr > br:

aprire > abrir; capra > cabra; Africum > ábrego.

Intervocalic br remained:

fibra > hebra.

Intervocalic cr voiced to gr:

sacratum > sagrado; lacrima > lágrima.

Intervocalic tr voiced to dr:

patrem > padre; latrōnem > ladrón.

Intervocalic gr seems to have vocalized the g and been reduced to r in really popular treatment:

intēgrum > enteiro* (cf. Ptg. inteiro) > entero; pigritia > pereza.
Therefore, in nigrum > negro we have a learned treatment.

Intervocalic dr was reduced to r in quadráginta > cuarenta; cathēdra > cadera. Therefore cuadro < quadrum and yedra < hēdēra do not seem wholly popular.

- (4) A number of consonants formed combinations with the following semiconsonant j.

Intervocalic dy and gy became y in V.L. and had the same history as L. j; the y was lost after e, i, otherwise it remained:

radĭum > rayo; exagĭum? > ensayo; maĭorem > mayor; sedĕat > sea; corrigĭa > correa.

The cases of a supposed development of dy to z or ç are open to question; the etyma may not be correct, the words may be loan-words, etc.: this is so for gozo, berza (O.Sp. berça), vergüenza (O.Sp. verguença), said to come from gaudium, viridia*, verecundia, etc.

For ty and cy, which assibilated, see p. xxxvi.

It would seem that sty and scy were able to produce a palatal sibilant š written x:

angustia > O.Sp. congoxa (with change of seeming prefix) > congoja; fascia > O.Sp. faxa, mod. faja.

But compare V.L. ūstium* > O.Sp. uço.

For intervocalic ly which became j, see p. xli.

After a consonant the ly, like cl, produced voiceless ch:

cochlĕāre > cuchara.

Ny became palatalized ñ:

cuneum > cuño.

In py, sy, and ry the y was attracted to the preceding syllable, and the p remained voiceless:

sapiat > sepa; caseum > queso; corium > cuero.

My, by, and vy remain:

vindemiā > vendimia; labium > labio; pluvia > lluvia.

Instead of fovea we probably have to suppose a V.L.

fodĭa* (cf. fodere) as the source of hoya.

- (5) The diphthong au of V.L. seems to have retained its u as a semiconsonant late enough to prevent the voicing of an adjacent voiceless stop:

cautum > coto; paucum > poco.

So did also the u which was attracted to the a of a preceding syllable:

capui > caupe* > O. Sp. cope, mod. cupe.

Cf., however, O. Sp. yogo < jacuit and plogo < placuit.

In spite of the u the s seems to have voiced, as O. Sp. writes regularly s and not ss in such cases as ausare > osar, causa > cosa, etc.

For the many other problems arising in connection with the consonantal system we cannot stop here; Baist in the Grundriss, l.c., Menéndez Pidal, and Hanssen have taken them up.

 Delos sos oios tan fuerte mientre lorando

 Vio puertas abiertas z vços sin cañados,
 Alcandaras uazias sin pieles z sin mantos,
 E sin falcones z sin adtores mudados. 5
 Sospiro myo Çid, ca mucho auie grandes cuydados.
 Fablo myo Çid bien z tan mesurado :
 “Grado ati, señor padre, que estas en alto !
 Esto me an buelto myos enemigos malos.”
 Alli pienssan de aguiar, alli sueltan las Riendas. 10
 Ala exida de Biuar ouieron la corneia diestra, E entrando a Burgos ouieron la siniestra.
 Meçio myo Çid los ombros z en grameo la tiesta :
 “Albriçia, Albarffanez, ca echados somos de tierra !”
 Myo Çid Ruy Diaz por Burgos en traua, 15
 En su conpañã .Lx. pendones leuaua ; exien lo uer mugieres z uarones.
 Burgeses z burgesas por las finiestras son,
 Plorando delos oios, tanto auyen el dolor.
 Delas sus bocas todos dizian una Razon :
 “Dios, que buen vassalo, si ouiesse buen Señor !” . . . 20
 Fablo myo Çid, el que en buen ora çinxo espada : 78 “Martin Antolinez, sodes ardida lança !
 Si yo biuo, doblar uos he la soldada. 80
 Espeso e el oro z toda la plata,

- Bien lo vedes que yo no trayo auer, z huebos me serie Pora toda mi compana :
Fer lo he amidos, de grado non aurie nada.
- 85 Con uuestro consego bastir quiero dos archas ;
Yncamos las darena, ca bien seran pesadas,
Cubiertas de guadalmeçi e bien en clauedadas.
Los guadameçis uermeios z los clauos bien dorados.
Por Rachel z Vidas uayades me priuado :
- 90 Quando en Burgos me vedaron compra z el Rey me a ayrado, Non puedo traer el auer, ca mucho es pesado,
En peñar gelo he por lo que fuere guisado ;
De noche lo lieuen, que non lo vean christianos.

En cuenta de sus aueres, delos que auien ganados.
Lego Martin Antolinez aguisa demenbrado :

En poridad flablar querria con amos."
- 105 Non lo de tardan, todos tres se apartaron.
"Rachel z Vidas, amos me dat las manos, Que non me descubrades a moros nin a christianos ;
Por siempre uos fare Ricos, que non seades menguados.
El Campeador por las parias fue entrado,
- 110 Grandes aueres priso z mucho sobeianos,
Retouo dellos quanto que fue algo ;
Por en vino aaquesto por que fue acusado.
Tiene dos arcas lennas de oro esmerado.
Ya lo vedes que el Rey lea ayrado.

- Dexado ha heredades z casas z palacios. 115
 Aquelas non las puede leuar, sinon, ser yen ventadas ;
 El Campeador dexar las ha en uuestra mano,
 E prestalde de auer lo que sea guisado.
 Prended las archas z meted las en uuestro saluo ;
 Con gran iura meted y las fes amos, 120
 Que non las catedes en todo aqueste año.”
 Rachel z Vidas seyen se conseiando :
 “ Nos huebos auemos en todo de ganar algo.
 Bien lo sabemos que el algo gaño,
 Quando atierra de moros entro, que grant auer saco ; 125
 Non duerme sin sospecha qui auer trae monedado.
 Estas archas prendamos las amas,
 En logar las metamos que non sean ventadas.
 Mas dezid nos del Çid, ¿de que sera pagado,
 O que ganancia nos dara por todo aqueste año? ” 130
 Respuso Martin Antolinez a guisa de menbrado :
 “ Myo Çid querra lo que ssea aguisado ;
 Pedir uos a poco por dexar so auer en saluo.
 Acogen sele oñes de todas partes menguados,
 A menester seys çientos marcos.” 135

E bien gelas guardarien fasta cabo del año ;
Ca assil dieran la fe z gelo auien iurado,
Que si antes las catassen que fuessen periurados, 165 Non les diesse myo Çid dela ganancia un dinero malo.

Leualdas, Rachel z Vidas, poned las en uestro saluo ;
Yo yre con uuso, que adugamos los marcos,
Ca amouer a myo Çid ante que cante el gallo.”

 Lo que lis prometiera el Padre uerdadero 370
 Tardar non gelo quiso por al dia terçero, Desembargo al Moro que era carçelero
 De gujsa que non ouo delli vn mal dinero.
 Sopieron del captiuo qual hora escapo, 371
 Vidieron que fue essa que la mjssa canto, Entendien que el Padre sancto lo basteçio :
 Esta fue la ayuda que lis el prometio. . . .

Por que lidiar queremos e tanto lo amamos, 335
 Nunca folgura tenemos sy non quando almas saquamos,

Luego que el fue muerto su pueblo fue vençido. . . .

Mas una sedmana antes que las bodas se acabassen, mando Roy Blasquez parar un tablado muy alto en la glera, 15 çercal rio, et fizo pregonar que qui quier quel crebantasse quel darie ell un don muy bueno. Los caualleros que se preçiauau por alañar fueron todos y allegados, mas pero nunca tanto se trabaiaron que pudiesen dar en somo delas tablas nin llegar a ellas. Quando esto uio Aluar Sanchez, que era primo cormano 20 de donna Llanbla, caualgo en so cauallo, et fue alañar a aquel tablado, e dio en las tablas tan grand golpe quel oyeron dentro en la villa, segund dize la estoria. Donna Llanbla quando lo oyo, e sopo que so cormano Aluar Sanchez fiziera aquel golpe, plogol mucho, e con el grand plazer que ende ouo, dixo ante donna 25 Sancha, su cunnada, et ante todos siete sos fijos que seyen y con ella: “agora veet, amigos, que cauallero tan esforçado es Aluar Sanchez, ca de quantos alli son allegados non pudo ninguno ferir en somo del tablado sinon el solo tan sola mientre, et mas valio el alli solo que todos los otros.” Quando aquello 30 oyeron donna Sancha et sos fijos, tomaronse a riir; mas los caualleros, como estauan en grand sabor de un iuego que auien començado, ningun dellos non paro mientes a aquello que donna Llanbla dixiera, sinon Gonçaluo Gonçaluez, que era el menor daquellos siete hermanos ; et furtose de los hermanos, et caualgo en so cauallo, et tomo un bofordo en su mano, et fuesse solo, que non fue otro omne con ell sinon un so escudero 5 que le leuaua un açor. Et Gonçaluo Gonçaluez, luego que llego, fue alañar al tablado, et dio un tan grand golpe en el, que crebanto una de las tablas de medio. Quando esto vieron donna Sancha et sos fijos, ouieron ende grand plazer, mas en verdad peso mucho a donna Llanbla. Los fijos de donna Sancha cau-

10 garon estonçes et fueronse pora ell hermano, ca ouieron miedo que se leuantase dend algun despecho, cuemo contescio luego y, ca Aluar Sanchez començo luego de dezir sus palabras tan grandes, por que ouo a responder Gonçaluo Gonçaluez et dixo :
“ tan bien alañades uos, et tanto se pagan de uos las duennas, 15 que bien me semeia que non fablan de otro cauallero tanto como de uos.” Aquella ora dixo Aluar Sanchez : “ si las duennas de mi fablan, fazen derecho, ca entienden que valo mas que todos los otros.” Quando esto oyo Gonçaluo Gonçaluez, pesol muy de coraçon et non lo pudo sofrir, e dexosse yr a ell
20 tan braua mientras, et diol una tan gran punnada en el rostro, que los dientes et las quexadas le crebanto, de guisa que luego cayo en tierra muerto a pies del cauallo. Donna Llanbla quando lo oyo, començo a meter grandes bozes, llorando muy fuerte e diziendo que nunca duenna assi fuera desondrada en
25 sus bodas, cuemo ella fuera alli. Roy Blazquez quando aquello sopo, caualgo a grand priessa, et tomo un astil en la mano, et fuese pora alla, do estauan ; et quando llego a los siete infantes, alço arriba el braço con aquell astil que leuaua, et dio con ell un tan grand golpe en la cabeça a Gonçaluo Gonçaluez que 30 por çinco logares le fizo crebar la sangre. Gonçaluo Gonçaluez quando se vio tan mal ferido, dixo : “ par Dios, tio, nunca uos yo meresçi porque uos tan grand golpe me diessedes como este ; et ruego aqui a mios hermanos que si yo por uentura ende muriero, que uos lo non demanden, mas pero tanto uos ruego que me non firades otra uez, por quanto uos amades, ca vos lo non podria soffrir.” Roy Blasquez quando aquello oyo, con la grand yra que ende ouo, alço otra uez aquella uara por darle otro golpe, mas Gonçaluo Gonçaluez desuio la cabeça del golpe, assi quel non alcanço sinon poco por ell onbro, et 5 pero tan grand ferida le dio que dos pieças fizo ell asta enel. Gonçaluo Gonçaluez quando uio que non auie y otra mesura nin mejor que aquella, priso en la mano ell açor quel traye ell escudero, et fue dar a Roy Blasquez con ell vna tan grand ferida en la cara a bueltas con el punno, que todo gele crebanto 10 enel rostro daquel golpe, de guisa que luego fizo crebar la sangre por las narizes. Roy Blasquez estonçes quando se uio assi tan mal trecho, començo a meter bozes, et a dezir, “armas, armas,” muy apriessa, que luego fueron y ayuntados con ell todos sos caualleros. Los inffantes quando aquello uieron, 15 apartaronse a un logar con su conpanna, et podrien seer por todos dozientos caualleros, ca bien veyen que sse darie a grand mal aquel fecho si Dios non lo desuiase. Mas el cuende Garçi Ferrandez, que era sennor et era y en Burgos, et Gonçaluo Gustioz, padre de los inffantes, luego que sopieron aquella 20 pelea, fueron pora alla, e metieronse entrellos e departieron los, que non ouo y estonçes otro mal ninguno; et tan bien andido y el cuende Garçi Ferrandez que luego y los fizo perdonar. Sobresto dixo alli estonçes Gonçaluo Gustioz a Roy Blasquez: “don Rodrigo, vos avedes mucho mester caualleros, 25 ca sodes del mayor prez darmas que otro que omne sepa, de guisa que moros et christianos vos han por ende grand enuidia, et uos temen mucho; et por ende ternia yo por bien que uos siruiessen mios fijos et uos aguardassen, si uos por bien lo touiessedes et uos ploguiesse, et vos que les fuessedes bueno et 30 lo fiziessedes en manera que ellos valiessen mas por uos, ca vuestros sobrinos son, et non han de fazer al sinon lo que uos mandaredes et touieredes por bien.” Et ell otorgol que assi serie et le cumplirie.

[CHAPTER V.] DE COMO EL CONDE FERNAND GONÇALUEZ LLAMO
SUS UASSALLOS A CONSSEIO E DE LO QUE DIXO GONÇALUO DIAZ

Andados V annos del regnado daquel Rey don Ramiro, e fue esto en la era de DCCCC e XL e tres annos, e andaua otrossi estonces ell anno de la Encarnation del Sennor en DCCCC e V annos, e el dell imperio de Loys Emperador de 5 Roma en VII. En este anno aqui dicho, Almançor, que era el mas poderoso moro de aquend la mar so Abderrhamen Rey de Cordoua, quando oyo dezir como el Conde Fernand Gon-çaluez auie preso el castiello que dizien Caraço, ouo ende muy grand pesar e touose por maltrecho. E enuio luego muchos 10 porteros con sus cartas por toda tierra de moros que fuessen luego con ell caualleros e peones. E cuenta la Estoria que tan grand fue el poder que ayunto de Reys e de caualleros e de otros omnes de armas, que ouo y mas de VII legiones. . . .
E el Conde Fernand Gonçalez, quando oyo dezir que Alman-15 çor auie mouido con tan grand hueste e uinie amenazando quel non fincarie tierra nin logar o nol fuesse buscar, enuio luego sus cartas por toda Castiella que uiniesen a el todos sos uassallos ca mucho era mester. E ellos, luego que uieron las cartas, uinieron se por el muy de grado. E el ouo con ellos so 20 acuerdo e rogo les quel conseiassen qual serie lo mejor, de yr a los moros o atender los. E estonces fablo Gonçalo Diaz, un cauallero muy sesudo, e dixo: "Sennor, non me semeia que tiempo tenemos nin sazon pora lidiar con los moros. Mas si alguna carrera pudiessemos fallar poro se desuiasse esta lid, 25 tenerlo ya yo por bien. E non nos deuemos recelar de pecho nin de otra cosa qualquier poro pudiessemos amanssar los moros e ganar dellos treguas, ca en muchas otras cosas se despiende ell auer." . . .

[CHAPTER VI.] DE COMO EL CONDE FERNAND GONÇALEZ ESFORÇO
SOS CAUALLEROS POR LA BATALLA

El conde non se pago del conseio que Gonçalo Diaz daua e fue muy sannudo por ende, pero que lo non mostro nin le recudio brauamiente mas contradixol todo lo que dixiera, e razono assi: “Quiero responder a don Gonçalo e contar quanto el dixo, que las cosas que ell a aqui moŝtrado sol non son de 5 oyr nin de retraer. Dixo de la primera que escusemos el lidiar, mas pero digo yo a esto que pues que omne non puede escusar la muerte nin foyr della, deue morir lo mas onrradamiente que pudiere. E en ganarnos treguas de los moros por pechar les algo, de sennores que somos fazer nos emos sieruos; e en uez de 10 sacar Castiella de la premia en que esta, doblar gela emos. . . . Quando el Rey Rodrigo perdio la tierra, assi como sabedes, non finco en toda Espanna tierra de cristianos si non Asturias e Castiella Uieia sennera. E es esta en que nos uiuimos agora e la que nuestros auuelos deffendieron con muy grand lazeria, ca 15 fueron muy affrontados por que eran pocos e tenien muy poca tierra e padescieron mucha lazeria de guerra e de fambre. E con tod aquello, de lo ageno siempre ganaron e de lo suyo non perdieron. E por miedo de muerte non quisieron fazer yerro nin cosa que les mal estidiesse, e por esta carrera uencieron sos 20 enemigos. . . .

15 les esta razon : ¿como podiedes asmar atamana nemiga et tamanna traycion como esta, ca yo nunca me apparto mucho con tales como uos nin esto sennero, mas siempre muy accompanado, por que deuedes entender que non me podriedes uos matar. Respuso el copero: sennor, la fabla fue tal que te diesse

- 16 Non tengades que es libro neçio de devaneo, Nin creades que es chufa algo que enel leo ;
 Ca, segund buen djnero yaze en vil correo,
 Ansi en feo libro esta saber non feo.

El axenuz de fuera mas negro es que caldera, 17
Es de dentro muy blanco, mas quela peña vera ;
Blanca farina esta so negra cobertera,
Açucar negro e blanco esta en vil caña vera.
Sobre la espina esta la noble Rosa flor, 18
En fea letra esta saber de grand dotor ;
Como so mala capa yaze buen beuedor,
Ansi so el mal tabardo esta buen amor. . . .

ENSSIENPLO DEL LEON E DEL CAVALLO

Vn cavallo muy gordo pasçia enla defesa ; 298
Venje el leon de caça, pero conel non pesa ;
El leon tan goloso al cavallo sopessa :
“Vassalo ” — dixo — “ mjo, la mano tu me besa.”
Al leon gargantero rrespondjo el cavallo, 299
Dyz : “ tu eres mj Señor e yo tu vasallo ;
En te besar la mano yo en eso me fallo,
Mas yr aty non puedo, que tengo vn grand contrallo.
Ayer do me ferrava, vn ferrero mal dïto 300
E[c]ho me en este pie vn clauo tan fito, Enclauo me ; ven, Señor, con tu djente bendito Sacamelo e faz de ñy como de tuyo quito.”
Abaxose el leon por le dar algund confuerto, 301
El cavallo ferrado contra sy fizo tuerto,
Las coçes el cavallo lanço fuerte ençierto,

ENXIENPLO DE LA PROPIEDAT QUEL DJNERO HA

Mucho faz el djnero e mucho es de amar, 490
Al torpe faze bueno e oñe de prestar,
Ffaze correr al coxo e al mudo fabrar,
El que non tiene manos dyneros quiere tomar.

- 491 Sea vn ome nesçio e Rudo labrador,
 Los dyneros le fazen fidalgo e sabydor,
 Quanto mas algo tiene, tanto es mas de valor,
 El que non ha djneros non es de sy Señor. . . .
- 497 El djnero quebranta las cadenas dañosas, Tyra çepos e grujllos e cadenas peligrosas ;
 El que non tiene djneros echan le las posas ;
 Por todo el mundo faze cosas maravillosas.
- 498 Yo vy fer maravillas do el mucho vsaua,
 Muchos meresçian muerte quela vida les daua,
 Otros eran syn culpa e luego los matava, Muchas almas perdja e muchas salvaua :
- 499 Fazer perder al pobre su casa e su vyña,
 Sus muebles e Rayzes todo lo des alyña,
 Por todo el mundo anda su sarna e sutyña,
 Do el djnero juega, ally el ojo gujña. . . .
- 509 El djnero es alcalde e juez mucho loado,
 Este es conssejero e sutil abogado,
 Alguaçil e meryno, byen ardyt, esforçado,
 De todos los ofiçios es muy apoderado.
- 510 En suma te lo digo, tomalo tu mejor :
 El djnero del mundo es grand rreboluedor,
 Señor faze del syeruo, de señor serujdor,
 Toda cosa del sygro se faze por su amor. . . .

EL LIBRO DEL CAUALLERO ET DEL ESCUDERO

(From the edition of S. Gräfenberg in the Romanische Forschungen, VII. 443 ff.)

Asi commo ha muy grant plazer el que faze alguna buena obra, señalada mente si toma grant trabajo e[n] la faz[er], quando sabe que aquella su obra es muy loada et se pagan della mucho las gentes, bien asi ha muy grant pesar et grant
 5 enojo, quando alguno a sabiendas o aun por yerro faze o dize alguna cosa por que aquella obra non sea tan preciada o alabada commo deuia ser. Et por probar aquesto, porne aqui vna cosa que acaeçio a un cauallero en Perpinnan en tiempo del primero Rey don Jaymes de Mallorcas. Asi acaeçio que
 10 aquel cauallero era muy grant trobador et fazie muy buenas cantigas amarabilla et fizo una muy buena ademas, et avia muy buen son. Et atanto se pagauan las gentes de aquella cantiga, que des[d]e grant tiempo non querian cantar otra cantiga si non aquella. Et el cauallero que la fiziera auia ende muy
 15 grant plazer. Et yendo por la calle un dia, oyo que vn çapatero estaua diziendo aquella cantiga, et dezia tan mal [et] errada mente, tan bien las palabras commo el son, que todo omne quela oyesse, si ante non la oyie, tenia que era muy mala cantiga et muy mal fecha. Quando el cauallero quela fiziera 20 oyo commo aquel çapatero confundia aquella tan buena obra commo [fiziera], ovo ende muy grant pesar et grant enojo et descendio de la bestia et asentose cerca del. Et el çapatero, que non se guardaua de aquello, non dexo su cantar et quanto mas dezia mas confundia la cantiga que el cauallero fiziera. Et desde que el cauallero vio su buena obra tan mal confundida por la torpedat de aquel çapatero, tomo muy passo vnas tiseras et tajo quantos çapatos el çapatero tenia fechos, et esto fecho, 5 caualgo et fuesse. Et el çapatero paro mientes en sus çapatos, et desde que los vido asi tajados, entendio que avia perdido todo su trabajo, ovo grant pesar et fue dando voces en pos aquel cauallero que aquello le fiziera. Et el cauallero dixo le : amigo, el Rey nuestro señor es aqui, et uos sabedes que es muy buen 10 Rey et muy justiçiero, et uayamos antel, et librelo commo fallare por derecho. Anbos se acordaron a esto, et desde que legaron antel Rey, dixo el çapatero commo le tajara todos sus çapatos et le fiziera grant danno. El Rey fue desto sannudo et pregunto al cauallero si era aquello verdat, et el cauallero dixole 15 que si, mas que quisiesse saber por que lo fi[zi]era. Et mando el Rey que dixiese, et el cauallero dixo que bien sabia el Rey que el fiziera tal cantiga que era muy buena et abia buen son, et que aquel çapatero gela avia confundida, et que gela mandasse dezir. Et el Rey mando gela dezir et vio que era asi. 20 Estonçe dixo el cauallero que, pues el çapatero confundiera tan buena obra commo el fiziera et enque avia tomado grant dampno et afan, que asi confundiera el la obra del çapatero. El Rey et quantos lo oyeron tomaron desto grant plazer et Rieron ende mucho, et el Rey mando al çapatero que nunca dixiesse aquella 25 cantiga nin confundiesse la buena obra del cauallero, et pecho el Rey el danno al çapatero et mando al cauallero que non fiziesse mas enojò al çapatero.

EL LIBRO DE LOS ENXIEMPLOS DEL CONDE LUCANOR
ET DE PATRONIO

(From the edition of Knust and Birch-Hirschfeld, Leipzig, 1900, pp. 43 ff.)

EXEMPLO X

DE LO QUE CONTESCIO A UN OMNE QUE POR POBREZA ET MENGUA
DE OTRA VIANDA COMIA ATRAMUZES

Otro dia fablava el conde Lucanor con Patronio [su consejero], en esta manera : “ Patronio, bien conosco a Dios que me ha fecho muchas mercedes, mas quel’ yo podria servir, et en todas las otras cosas entiendo que esta la mi fazienda asaz con
5 bien et con onrra ; pero algunas vegadas me contesce de estar tan afincado de pobreza que me paresce que quer[r]ia tanto la muerte commo la vida. Et rruegovos que algun conorte me dedes para esto.”

“Sennor conde Lucanor,” dixo Patronio, “para que vos
10 conortedes, quando tal cosa vos acaesciere, seria muy bien que sopiesedes lo que acaescio a dos omnes que fueron muy rricos.”

E el conde le rrogo quel’ dixiese commo fuera aquello.

“Sennor conde Lucanor,” dixo Patronio, “de estos dos
15 omnes el uno dellos llevo a tan grand pobreza quel’ non finco en el mundo cosa que pudiese comer. Et desque fizo mucho por buscar alguna cosa que comiese, non pudo aver cosa del mundo sinon una escudiella de atramizes. Et acordandose de [quando] rrico solia ser e que agora con fambre era et con
20 mengua avia de comer los atramizes que son tan amargos et de tan mal sabor, començo de llorar muy fiera mente, pero con la grant fanbre començo de comer de los atramizes et en comiendolos estava llorando et echava las cortezas de los atramizes en pos [de] si. Et el estando en este pesar et en esta coyta sintio que estava otro omne en pos del et volvio la cabeza et vio un omne cabo del, que estava comiendo las cortezas de los atramizes que el echava en pos de si, et era aquel de que vos fable desuso. Et quando aquello vio el que comia los atramizes, pregunto a aquel que comia las cortezas que porque fazia aquello. Et el dixo que sopiese que fuera muy mas rico que el et que agora avia llegado a tan grand pobreza et en tan grand fanbre quel' plazia mucho quando fallava aquellas cortezas que el dexava. Et quando esto vio el que comia [los] atramizes conortose, pues entendio que otro avia mas pobre que el, et que avia menos rrazon porque lo devie seer. Et con este conorte esforçose, et ayudol' Dios, et cato manera en commo saliese de aquella pobreza, et salio della et fue muy bien andante.” 15

“Et [vos], sennor conde Lucanor, devedes saber que el mundo es tal et aun que nuestro sennor Dios lo tiene por bien que ningun omne non aya conplida mente todas las cosas. Mas pues en todo lo al vos faze Dios merced et estades con bien et con onrra, si alguna vez vos menguare[n] dineros o 20 estudiierdes en afincamiento, non desmayedes por ello et cred por cierto que otros mas onrrados et mas rricos que vos estaran afincados, que se ternian por pagados si pudiesen dar a sus gentes et les diesen aun muy menos de quanto vos les dades a las vuestras.” 25

E al conde plogo mucho desto que Patronio [le] dixo, et conortose et ayudose el, et ayudol' Dios, et salio muy bien de aquella quexa en que estava.

Et entendiendo don Johan que este enxienplo era muy bueno, fizolo poner en este libro et fizo estos viessos que 30 dizen asi :

Por pobreza nunca desmayedes,
Pues otros mas pobres que vos veedes.

PERO LÓPEZ DE AYALA

RIMADO DE PALACIO

(From a MS. in the Biblioteca Nacional at Madrid — MSS. 4055. A paleographic edition of the whole poem will be published by Professor A. F. Kuersteiner of Indiana University, who has kindly furnished the present extract.)

AQUI COMIENÇA DE LOS FECHOS DEL PALAÇIO

- 422 Grant tienpo de mi vida pase mal despendiendo,
A señores terrenales con grant cura seruiendo ;
Agora ya lo veo e lo vo entendiendo,
Que quien y mas trabaja mas yra perdiendo.
- 423 Las cortes de los rreyes, ¿ quien las podria pensar ?
¡ Quanto mal z trabajo el oñe ha de pasar,
Perigros en el cuerpo z el alma condenar,
Los bienes z el algo sienpre lo aventurar !
- 424 Si mill años los siruo z vn dia fallesco, Dizen que muchos males z penas les meresco ;
Si por ellos en cuytas z cuydados padesco,
Dizen que como nesçio por mi culpa peresco.
- 425 Si por yr a mi casa liçençia les demando, Despues a la tornada, nin se como nin quando, Fallo mundo rrebuelto, trastornado mi vando, z mas frio que nieue en su palaçio ando.
- 426 Fallo porteros nuevos, que nunca conosçi, Que todo el palaçio quieren tener por sy :
Sy llego a la puerta, dizen : “ Quien esta y ? ” “ Señores,” digo, “ yo, que en mal dia nasçy.

- Grant tienpo ha que cuydaua esta corte saber ; 427
Agora me paresçe que non se que fazer ;
Querria, sy pudiese, al rrey falar z veer.”
Dizen : “ Estad alla, ca ya non puede ser.
- Esta el rrey en consejo sobre fechos granados, 428 z non estan con el si non dos o tres priuados, z a todos mando que non sean osados De llegar a la puerta, avn que sean onrrados.”
- “ Señor,” le digo yo, “ de ver al rrey non curo ; 429
Mas acojed me alla, sy quiera en eso escuro, z de mi vos prometo, z por mi fe vos juro, De uos dar vn tabardo, desto vos aseguro.”
- Dize el portero : “ Amigo, non podes entrar, 430
Ca el rrey mando agora a todos daqui echar ;
Esperad alla vn poco, podredes despues tornar ;
Alla estan otros muchos con quien podedes falar.”
- “ Señor,” le digo yo, “ alla estan mas de çiento : 431
Desde aqui oyo yo el su departamento ;
Pues non so yo agora de tan astroso tiento Que alla non este tan quedo que non me sienta el viento.”
- “ Tirad uos alla,” dize el portero tal ; 432 “ Paresçe que auedes sabor de oyr mal :
Yo nunca vi tal oñe z tan descomunal ;
O vos tiraré dende, sy Dios me val.”
- “ Señor,” le digo yo, “ sy quier esta vegada 433 Me acojed alla z yd a mi posada, z dar vos he vna hopa que tengo enpeñada.”
Diz : “ Entrad agora muy quedo z non fabledes nada.”
- Entro dentro apretado z asiento me muy quedo ; 434
Que calle z non fable me faze con el dedo.
“ ¿ Quien sodes,” diz otro, “ que entrastes y tan çedo? ” “ Señor,” le digo yo, “ vn oñe que vengo de Toledo.”

- 435 "Salid luego," diz, "fuera, aqui non estaredes."
Trauo me luego del braço, yo apego me a las paredes:
Viene luego el otro, dize: "Vos fincaredes, Mas lo que me mandastes luego cras lo daredes."
- 436 "Si señores," digo luego, "yo lo dare de grado, Todo lo que ouiere e mas de lo mandado."
Con esta pleytesia finco asosegado,
E esto entre los otros como oñe asonbrado.
- 437 Leuanta se el consejo z veo al rrey estar;
Vo luego espantado por le querer fablar;
El buelue las espaldas z manda luego llamar Que vengan rreposteros, que quiere yr çenar.
- 438 Yo esto en mi ^{con}comidiendo: "Mesquino, ¿que fare?"
Muy grant verguença tengo, non se si lo fablare,
O por ventura cras mejor ge lo dire:
Desputando comigo nunca buen tiento he.
- 439 Pero allego a el, asy como a morir.
"Señor," digo yo, "merçed, quered me agora oyr:
Yo so vuestro vasallo z mandastes me venir Aqui a vuestra guerra, z agora mandastes me yr.
- 440 De sueldo de tres meses non puedo ser pagado,
De la tierra de antaño dos terçios no he cobrado;
He perdido mis bestias, mis armas enpeñado;
A dos meses que yago doliente, muy lazado."
- 441 Rresponde me vn priuado: "Los contadores an carga De librar los tales fechos, quel rrey nunca se enbarga."
Desque veo mi fecho, que va asy a la larga, Leuanto me muy triste, con boca muy amarga.
- 442 Viene luego el portero, quexoso a mas andar, Dize: "Amigo, auedes librado, ca vos vi agora fablar
Con el rrey; por tanto vos vengo a acordar Que me dedes lo mandado, dar lo hedes en buen logar."

LA ESTORIA DEL RREY ANEMUR E DE IOSAPHAT
E DE BARLAAM

(From the edition of F. Lauchert in the Romanische Forschungen, VII. 376 and 379)

A. Vn rrey non podia auer fijos maslos e estaua muy triste e teniase por esto por muy mal auentorado. E el qual commo estouiese en este cuydado, nasçio le vn fijo, e tomo muy gran gozo. E dexieron le los menges muy sabios que sy fasta X años viese sol o fuego, que seria de todo priuado de la lumbre ; 5 ca aquello synificauan los sus ojos. E es dicho, que commo el rey lo oyese, fizo tajar vna cueua en vna piedra e ençerolo y con sus amas, por que non viese claridat de luz fasta los X años conplidos. E acabados los X años, sacaron el moço de la cueua non auiente conosçençia ninguna de las cosas mundanales por 10 los ojos. Entonce ma[n]do el rrey que le diesen e le mostrasen todas las cosas, cada vna de su manera, e que le muestren en vn logar varones e en otro mogeres e aqui oro e plata e alli margaritas e piedras preçiosas e vestiduras muy fermosas e afeytamientos e carros anchos con caualllos rreales. E por que 15 fable breuemente, mostraron al moço todas las cosas por orden, e preguntando el commo fuese llamada cada vna de aquellas cosas, los ministros del rey mostraron le commo llamauan a cada vna cosa. E commo demandase que le dixiesen commo dezian a las mogeres, dezien que vn adelantrado del rey que le 20 dixiera jugando que eran demonios los quales engañan a los omnes. Mas el coraçon del moço sospiraua mas por el deseo dellas que por las otras cosas. E despues que le mostraron todas las cosas tornaron lo. Entonce preguntole el rey, qual cosa amaua mas de todas las que viera. E dixo el fijo : que, 25

padre, sy non aquellos demonios los quales engañan a los omnes. Ca ninguna de aquellas cosas que me son oy mostradas non ame tanto commo la amistad dellas. E marauillo se el rey de la palabra del moço e vey que cosa cruel es el amor de las 5 mogeres. . . .

B. Por muchas oras orando con lagrimas e fincando muchas vegadas los ynojos, posose [Iosafat] en el suelo ; e dormiendo vn poco vio a sy mismo arrebatado de vnos espantables e pasar por logares que nunca viera. E aduzido a vn prado grande
10 afeytado de flores bien olientes de fermusura, do via los arboles de todas maneras e afeytados de desuariadas flores estraños e marauillosos ; e las fojas de los arboles dauan dulce son meneadas de vn viento agradable e echauan olor non fartable ; e estauan siellas puestas de oro muy limpio e fechas de piedras
15 preçiosas e dantes muy gran rresplandor, e lechos luzibles de colchas e de estrados, los quales por su fermusura sobran todo rrecontamiento ; e pasan aguas muy linpias alegrantes los ojos. E aquellos espantables pasando lo por aquel canpo muy grande e marauilloso, metieron lo en vna çibdat rresplandesçiente de
20 rresplandesçimiento non fablable ; e los muros eran de oro puro e de piedras preçiosas, las quales nunca vio omne, e los muros eran muy altos. E quien puede rrecontar la fermusura e la claridat de aquella çidat. E luz derramada de suso con rrayos alunbra todas las plaças della. E moran en ella vnas 25 conpañas çelestiales rresplandesçientes cantantes canto el qual nunca oyo oreja mortal. E oyo boz deziente : esta es la folgança de los justos e esta es la alegria de aquellos que plogieron a Dios. . . .

Amicus verus est qui, cum seculum defecit, tunc succurrit

El amigo es de alabar

Que al tiempo de la priessa quiere ayudar.

Vn omne de Arabia, estando a la muerte, llamo a su fijo e dixole : “¿Quantos amigos tienes?” E el fijo rrespondio e dixo : “Segund creo, tengo çiento.” E dixo el padre : “Cata 5 que el philosofo dixo : non alabes al amigo fasta que lo ayas prouado. E yo primero nasci que tu e apenas pude ganar la meytad de vn amigo, e pues assi es, ¿como tu ganaste çiento? Ve agora e prueualos todos, porque conoscas sy alguno de todos ellos te hes acabado amigo.” E dixo el fijo : “¿Como me 10 consejas que lo faga?” Dixo el padre : “Toma vn bezerro e matalo e fazelo pieças e metelo en vn saco en manera que de fuera paresca sangre, e quando fueres a tu amigo, dile assy : amigo muy amado, trago aqui vn omne que mate, rruegote que lo entierres secretamente en tu casa, que ninguno non avera 15 sospecha de ty e assy me podras saluar.” El fijo lo fizo commo le mando el padre. El primero amigo a que fue dixole : “Lieua tu muerto a cuestras, e como feziste el mal, parate a la pena. En mi casa non entraras.” E assy fue por todos los otros amigos e todos le dieron aquella misma rrespuesta. E tornosse 20 para su padre e dixole lo que feziera e dixo el padre : “A ti acaescio segund dixo el philosofo : muchos son llamados amigos e al tiempo de la nescesitat e de la priessa son pocos. E ve agora al mi medio amigo e veras lo que te dira." E fue a el e dixole : " Entra aca en mi casa, porque los vezinos non entien-

5 çebo vio lo que avia fecho e la buena voluntad de aquel medio amigo de su padre, descubriole el negoçio como era, dandole muchas gracias. E dende tornosse a su padre e contole lo que

EL POEMA DE JOSÉ

(From the transcript made by M. Schmitz, Romanische Forschungen XI. 357 ff., of the edition of the aljamiado text published by H. Morf, Leipzig, 1883)

Zaliha, wife of Potiphar, complains of Joseph and he is cast into prison.

- I cuando aquesto fue fecho, Zaliha fue rrepentida, 89
 No le ab(i)ria quesido fazer en dias de su vida, Diciendo : “ ¡ O meçquina ! nunca sere guarida D'este mal tan g(a)rande en que soy caida.
 Que si yo supiera qu'esto abia de venir, 90
 Que por ninguna via no se a podido cump(i)lir, Que yo no e podido d'este mal guarir,
 Por deseyo de Yuçuf abre yo de morir.”
 Alli jaze dieç annos, como si fuera cordero, 91
 Daqui a que mando el rrey a un su portero
 Echar en la p(e)resion dos omb(e)res yel terzero, El uno su escançiano yel ot(o)ro un paniçero.
 Porque abian pensado al rrey de fer t(a)raición, 92
 Qu'en el vino yen el pan que le echasen pozon ;
 P(o)robado fue al paniçero yal escançiano non,
 Porque mejor supo catar yencubrir la t(a)raición.
 Alli do'staban p(e)resos, muy bien los castigaba ; 93
 I qualquiere qu'enfermaba, muy bien lo curaba , Todos lo guardaban por doquiere qu'el estaba, Porqu'el lo mereçia, su fegura gele daba.

- 94 Sonno el escançiano un suenno tan pesado, Contolo a Yuçuf, i sacoselo de g(a)rado ;
Disso : "Tu fues escançiano de tu sennor onrrado, Mas aun seras a tu ofiçio tornnado.
- 95 Yabras perdon de tu sennor,
Ayudete el seso i guiete el k(i)riador,
Ya quien Allah da seso, dale g(a)rande onor, Volveras a tu ofiçio con muy g(a)ran valor."
- 96 Disso el paniçero al su compannero :
"Yo dire a Yuçuf qu'e sonnado un suenno
De noche en tal dia, quando salia el luzero,
I vere que me dira el su seso çertero."
- 97 Contole el paniçero el suenno que queriá,
I sacosele Yuçuf i nada no le mentia ;
Disso : "Tu fues paniçero del rrey todavia, Mas aqui jazeras porque fiziestes falsia.
- 98 Que al terçero dia seras tu luego suelto
I seras enforcado tu cabeça al tuerto,
I comeran tus miollos las aves del puerto,
Alli seras colgado fasta que sias muerto."
- 99 Disso el paniçero : "No sonne cosa zertera, Que yo me lo dezia por ver la manera."
Disso Yuçuf : "Esta es cosa verdadera, Que lo que tu dixestes, Allah lo envio por carrera."
- 100 Disso Yuçuf al escançiano aquesta rrazon :
"Rruegote que rrecuerdes al rrey de mi p(e)resion, Que arto me a durado esta g(a)ran maldiçion."
Disso el escançiano : "P(a)lazeme de coraçon."
- 101 Que al terçero dia salieron de g(a)rado,
I fueron delante del rrey, su sennor onrrado,
I mando al paniçero seyer luego enforcado ;
Disso al escançiano : "A su ofiçio a tornnado."

- Olvidosele al escançiano de dezir el su mandado, 102
I no le memb(o)ro por dos annos ni le fue acordado
Fasta que sonno un suenno el rrey apoderado ;
Doze annos p(e)reso estuvo, yesto a mal de su g(a)rado.
Aqueste fue el suenno qu'el rrey obo sonnado : 103
De que salia del agua un rrio g(a)ranado :
Annir era su nomb(e)re, p(e)reçiado i g(a)ranado,
I vido qu'en salia[n] siete vacas de g(a)rado.
Eran bellas i gordas i de ley muy cargadas, 104
I vido otras siete magras, f(a)lacas i delgadas ;
Comianse las magras a las gordas g(a)ranadas,
I no seles pareçia, ni enchian las illadas.
I vido siete espigas muy llenas de g(a)rano, 105
Verdes i fermosas como en tiempo de verano,
I vido otras siete secas, con eng(a)rano vano,
Todas secas i b(a)lancas, como cabello cano.
Comianse las secas a las verdes del dia, 106
I no seles pareçia ninguna mejoría, Tornabanse todas secas, cadaguna vaçia,
Todas secas i b(a)lancas como de niebla f(i)ria.
El rrey se maravillo de como se comian las f(a)lacas a las gor- 107 das g(a)ranadas,
I las siete espigas secas a las verdes mojadas,
Yentendio qu'en su suenno abia largas palabras,
I no podía pensar a que fuesen sacadas.
I llamo a sus sabidores yel suenno les fue a contar, 108
Que selo sacasen i no ye diesen vagar, Yellos le dixerón : “ No's querais aquexar, Miraremos en los libros i no te daremos vagar.”

DANÇA GENERAL

(From the edition of C. Appel in the Beiträge zur romanischen und englischen Philologie dem X. deutschen Neuphilologentage überreicht, etc., Breslau, 1902, pp. 12 ff.)

PRÓLOGO EN LA TRASLADAÇION

Aquí comjença la dança general, en la qual tracta commo la muerte dize abisa a todas las criaturas que pare mjentes en la breujedad de su vjda e que d' ella mayor cabdal non seã fecho que ella meresçe. E asy mesmo les dize e Requiere que vean e oyan bien lo que los sabios pedricadores les dizen e amonestan de cada dia, dando les bueno e sano consejo que pugn. . . en fazer buenas obras, por que ayan conplido perdon de sus pecados ; e luego syguiente mostrando por espiriencia lo que dize, llama e Requiere a todos los estados del mundo que vengan de su buen grado o contra su voluntad.

Començando dize ansy :

DISE LA MUERTE :

I

Io so la muerte çierta a todas criaturas Que son y serán en el mundo durante.
 Demando y digo : o, omne, por qué curas
 De vida tan breue, en punto pasante,
 Pues non ay tan fuerte njn Rezio gigante Que d'este mj arco se puede anparar ?
 Conuiene que mueras quando lo tirar
 Con esta mj frecha cruel traspasante.

II

• Qué locura es esta tan magnifiesta
Que piensas tu, omne, que el otro morrá
E tu quedarás por ser bien conpuesta
La tu conplisyon ! e qué durara ?
Non eres çierto sy en punto verná
Sobre ty a dessora alguna corrupcion
De landre o carbonco, o tal ynplisyon
Por que el tu vil cuerpo se dessatará.

III

O piensas por ser mançebo valiente
O njnno de dias, que a luenne estaré
E fasta que liegues a viejo inpotente
La mj venjda me detardaré ?
Avisate bien, que yo llegaré
A ty a desora, que non he cuydado Que tu seas mançebo o viejo cansado, Que qual te fallare, tal te levaré. . . .

DISE EL PEDRICADOR :

Sennores honrrados, la santa escriptura
Demuestra e dize que todo onre nascido
Gostará la muerte, maguer sea dura,
Ca traxo al mundo vn solo bocado ;
Ca papa o Rey o obispo sagrado,
Cardenal o duque e conde exçelente
E 'l enperador con toda su gente Que son en el mundo, de morir han forçado. . . .

VII

Fazed lo que digo ! non vos detardedes, Que ya la muerte encomjença a hordenar

Vna dança esquiuva de que non podedes
 Por cosa nġuna que sea, escapar,
 A la qual dize que quiere leuar
 A todos nos otros, lançando sus Redes.
 Abrid las orejas, que agora oyredes
 De su charanbela vn triste cantar !

VIII

A la dança mortal venjt los nascidos
 Que en el mundo soes de qual quiera estado !
 El que non quisiere, a fuerça e amjdos
 Fazer le he venjr muy tost' e priado.
 Pues que ya el frayre vos ha pedricado Que todos vayaes a fazer penitencja, El que non quisiere poner diligençia non puede ser mas esperado.

IX

Esta mj dança traxe de presente
 Estas dos donzellas, que vedes fermosas.
 Ellas vinjeron de muy mala mente
 Oyr mjs cançiones, que son dolorosas.
 Mas non les valdrán flores e Rosas
 Njn las conposturas que poner solian.
 De mj, sy pudiesen, partir se querrian ;
 Mas non puede ser, que son mjs esposas. . . .

DIZE EL RREY :

XVIII

Valia, valia, los mjs caualleros !
 Yo non querria yr a tan baxa dança.

Llegad vos con los vallesteros !
Hanparad me todos por fuerça de lança !
Mas qué es aquesto? que vèo en balança
Acortarse mj vida e perder los sentidos ;
El coraçon se me quexa con grandes gemjdos.
Adios, mjs vasallos ! que muerte me trança.

DIZE LA MUERTE :

XIX

Rey, fuerte tirano, que syenpre rrobastes
Todo vuestro rreyno e fenchistes el arca, De fazer justiçia muy poco curastes,
Segunt es notorio por buestra comarca.
Venjt para mj, que yo so monarca Que prenderé a vos e a otro mas alto.
Llegat a la dança cortés en vn salto ! —
En pos de vos venga luego el patriarca. . . .

DIZE EL ABOGADO :

XLII

Qué fué ora, mesquino, de quanto aprendy
De mj saber todo e mj libelar?
Quando estar pensé, estonçe cay.
Çegó me la muerte, non puedo estudiar.
Resçelo he grande de yr al lugar
Do non me valdrá libelo njn fuero, Peores amjgos, que syn lengua muelo.
Abarcó me la muerte ; non puedo favlar.

DIZE LA MUERTE :

XLI

Don falso abogado, preualicador,
Que de amas las partes leuastes salario,

Venga se vos mjente commo syn temor
 Boluistes la foja por otro contrario.
 El Chino e el Bartolo e el Coletario
 Non vos librarán de mj poder mero.
 Aquí pagaredes commo buen Romero. —
 E vos, canónigo, dexad el breujario ! . . .

DIZE EL MONJE :

LII

Loor e alabança sea para sienpre
 Al alto sennor que con piadad
 Me lieua a su santo Reyno, adonde contemple
 Por syenpre jamas la su magestad.
 De carçel escura vengo a claridad,
 Donde abré alegria syn otra tristura.
 Por poco trabajo avré grand folgura.
 Muerte, non me espanto de tu fealdad !

DIZE LA MUERTE :

LIII

Sy la Regla santa del monje benedicto Guardastes del todo syn otro deseo,
 Syn dubda tened que soes escripto
 En libro de bida, segunt que yo creo ;
 Pero sy fezistes lo que fazer veo
 A otros que handan fuera de la Regla, Vida vos darán que sea mas negra. —
 Dançad, vsureño ! dexad el correo ! . . .

LO QUE DIZE LA MUERTE A LOS QUE NON NONBRÓ :

LXXVIII

A todos los que aquí non he nonbrado,
 De qual quier ley e estado o condycion,

Les mando que vengan muy tost' e priado
A entrar en mj dança syn escusaçion.
Non Resçibiré jamas exebçion
Njn otro libelo njn declinatoria.
Los que bien fizieron avrán syenpre gloria,
Los que 'l contrario, avrán danpnaçion.

DIZEN LOS QUE HAN DE PASAR POR LA MUERTE:

LXXIX

Pues que asý es que a morir avemos
De nesçesidad, syn otro Remedio,
Con pura conçiencia todos trabajemos
En serujr a Dios, syn otro comedio ;
Ca el es prinçipe, fyn e el medio,
Por do, sy le plaze, avremos folgura,
Avn que la muerte con dança muy dura
Nos meta en su corro en qual quier comedio.

NOTES

I. DOCUMENTS OF THE CHURCH OF VALPUESTA FROM THE NINTH TO THE ELEVENTH CENTURY

L. Barrau-Dihigo, who has published the documents in question in the Revue hispanique VII. 273 ff., writes as follows regarding them: "Les chartes que nous publions ci-après sont extraites des deux cartulaires de Valpuesta [a town in the province of Burgos], conservés récemment encore à la Bibliothèque provinciale de Burgos, et classés aujourd'hui sous les numéros 1166 B et 1167 B à l'Archivo histórico nacional de Madrid. Elles vont de 804 à 1087, et limitées ainsi, forment un tout, car elles embrassent la période pendant laquelle Valpuesta a été le siège d'une église cathédrale." Of these two cartularies, 1167 B is a copy of 1166 B, made in 1236, and therefore useful chiefly for the help which it affords in deciphering the doubtful readings in 1166 B. This latter is not itself a homogeneous document: "c'est un recueil où l'on a réuni pêle-mêle, sans souci de l'ordre chronologique, des fragments divers, qui renferment une série de pièces dont les plus anciennes remontent à 804, et dont les plus récentes datent de la fin du XI^e siècle." (Barrau-Dihigo says XII^e siècle, but this must be an error.) . . . "De plus, quoique l'on ait parfois désigné ce volume sous le nom de becerro gótico [i.e. an ecclesiastical register in Gothic script], il n'est pas entièrement écrit en letra gótica; la letra francesa [i.e. the French minuscule of the 11th and 12th centuries] y est fréquente; et si cette dernière semble due à des copistes du début du XIII^e siècle, la première offre des spécimens du X^e et du commencement du XI^e siècle. Beaucoup de scribes ont pris part à la transcription des originaux visigothiques."

Having made clear that the documents are not all in a hand contemporary with the operations recorded in them, Barrau-Dihigo gauges the dates of the writing of those from which we give extracts, as follows: I, probably of the end of the 9th or of the early 10th century; XV, of the end of the 10th century; LII, of the end of the 10th or of the early 11th century; LXVI, of the second half of the 11th century.

Among the traits in the documents indicative of the Vulgar Latin stage or of the rise of the Spanish vernacular are these (some of which, of course, are found generally in Romance regions):

Acc. -m is gone: eglesia 13; collatu 17; uilla alta 18; uinea 112; etc.; limite 112; etc.

h- is gone: odie 115; abeas 116; etc.

-b- intervocalic appears for -v- (-u-): confirmabi 15; nobi 111; bobes 113; temptaberi 23. This peculiarity, perhaps more common in documents written in Spain than elsewhere, may indicate that Lat. -b- and -v- (-u-) intervocalic had both become a bilabial spirant, as in mod. Spanish; the scribe, in view of the identity of sound, was puzzled as to what character to use: cf. Gundesalbiz 26 with Gundesaluo 28. See Cuervo in Revue hispanique II. 1 ff. for a discussion of b and v.

-np- is written for -m̃p-: comparatione 29; conparau 29, 14; inprimis 217; Conposita 12. This is only a scribal convention: the np means m̃p, and does not necessarily denote a nasalization of the preceding vowel as has sometimes been said. Cf. Romania XXVII. 176 ff. It is frequent in manuscripts of Classic Latin texts, and is common in Spanish texts from the 12th century on, as is evidenced by the many cases contained in our extracts following.

Double consonants are simplified: comorantes 16; quatuor 113; excommunicatus 28.

ae > e: Sancte Marie 13; 210, 21; anime mee, anime nostre, 210, 20; etc.

This, of course, is common in manuscripts of Classic Latin texts and also represents the Vulgar Latin pronunciation.

ǣ > o: pretio 113; 23; plumazo 114; iudicio 23; atrio 210 (cf. atrium 221); etc. This is Vulgar Latin.

uu > u: perpetum 225.

The unaccented penult of proparoxytones is lost: Domna 219.

-ct- after ī > i: fitā 13.

-cl- intervocalic > gl: eglesia (V. L. eclesia*) 13, 5.

-cy- intervocalic > z, which may denote a voiced sound or a voiceless one, but, at all events, shows the assibilation: plumazo 'mattress,' 'pillow' (V. L. plūmac̃um*), 114.

-ty- intervocalic > cy, a learned treatment, showing, however, the assibilation of the sound: uindicionis (Lat. venditio, venditionis) 24.

-ty- after a consonant > ç = voiceless ts, a popular change, showing the assibilation: ifançones 'nobles' (Lat. infans, infantem, V. L. infantiones*) 216.

-ny- intervocalic > ñ: uinga 'vineyard' (Lat. vīnēta) 2 13; cf. uinea 1 12, 16; etc. This confusion of ng and ñg, which are equivalent at all only in that both gave palatalized n under certain conditions, shows that the palatalization had already taken place.

ge l > ye: iermanis, coniermanis, 2 27. Later this i = y from initial g before unaccented e (Lat. germanus) disappeared entirely: cf. mod. hermano, obs. cormano = cohermano. The O. Sp. Glosses, no. 198, show the form iermano. Priebisch (Ztschr. f. roman. Philol. XIX. 29) remarks thereon: "coniermano Urkunde vom Jahre 974 bei Escalona 418 a, cojermano jermano (j = i) ib., giermanis Urkunde vom Jahre 997 Escalona 473 a gegen hermanos aus dem IX. Jahrh. belegt bei Muñoz 153. S. Meyer-Lübke, Gramm. I, 329."

d before voiceless consonant > t: adque = Lat. atque, 1 11; aput te for Lat. apud te, 1 15. Of course adque is an erroneous spelling due to the fact that original d > t in such a position.

-d final disappeared as a sound: quiquid for Lat. quiqui, 2 26; i.e. the -d is written erroneously here because it still continued to be written in cases in which it was not pronounced. Of course this may be also the quid which regularly gave Span. que.

-nf- intervocalic > ff or f: ifañçones 2 16. This n, lost in V. L., was restored later.

-xt- > st: iusta (Lat. juxta) 1 12; 2 22, 23.

Lat. -x- intervocalic > š: usor 2 19. It is likely that this s stands for palatalized s.

Metathesis of r has not yet occurred: Fredenando 2 6.

The breaking down of the Latin cases (for the development of Spanish the accusative took on, in general, the functions of the other Latin cases) is clearly seen in the mistakes made by the writers of the documents. Thus, the acc. appears in an abl. construction:

in caput 2 12; used of rest in a place;

cum meos gasalianes 1 6;

sapiente [for sapientes] meos confratres 2 13;

spontaneas nostras uoluntantes [for uoluntates] 2 20.

Cf. also these examples:

Domino Adefonso (as gen.) 1 4;

Didacus (dat.) 1 10; (acc.) 2 2;

filiis meis (nom. pl.) 2 1;

iermanis, coniermanis, neptis, (nom. pl.) 2 27;

posteritas tua (acc.) 2 2;

sagone (nom.) 2 16;

Ranemiri (abl.) 26;

abbate (dat.) 26.

The use of prepositional phrases to denote genitive and dative relations is seen in these instances:

de + noun = gen. of the noun:

de Pineto 17; de Munio 113; 213; de terris, de uineis, 29; de monte 212; de regula 222; etc.;

ad + noun = dat. of noun:

tibi et ad tuos gasalianes 111;

ad episcopo 211;

abeas ad me 23;

excommunicatus ad fide 229. (The last two cases are datives of deprivation.)

In Sancti Emeteri (Santander) 19, we seem to have the genitive-locative with the preposition.

que (Lat. quēm, unaccented, and quīd; cf. Vocabulary) appears as a relative pronoun, sing. and pl., 12; 29, 22, 23; cf. qui (which remained for persons in O.Sp.) 226.

latus appears seemingly as a prep. = juxta: latus uinga = cerca de la viña, 212. Cf. Fr. prep. lès, Prov. latz.

sedere appears as the verb "to be": sedeat ipsa terra . . . confirmata 225.

Among the more interesting of the remaining word forms are these. uindere (Lat. vendere) 111 and uindicionis (Lat. venditionis) 24. The i instead of e in the unaccented first syllable appears also in early western (Portuguese) texts. It indicates, doubtless, the accent on the inf. ending in uindere (Sp. vender), as the accented Lat. e could not easily have become i. In the çi of uindicionis we see a common Late Lat. confusion of ty and cy.—For moiare 18 there occurs the variant molare (Lat. molaris 'millstone,' but here 'boundary-mark'). If = Sp. mojon (Lat. moles, V. L. moliōnem*), 'boundary-mark,' moiare may mean mojar(e) from a V. L. molīārem based on moles 'pile,' 'heap' (of stones etc.), 'mark.'—In canape 114 we appear to have the modern word: doubtless an early loan-word in the peninsula, it corresponds to a Late Lat. form of Gk. κωνωπεῖον (also κωνωπεῖον).—The spelling nicil 115 accords with a frequent nichil found in the Latin documents of the Middle Ages; if the c denotes a real pronunciation, it reflects the influence of nec; the O. Sp. Glosses show mici for mihī and therefore the c may be meaningless.—The patronymic -az, -iz, of unknown origin (Basque? Latin genitive -acis?), appears in Beilaz 213 and Gundesalbiz 26.—In adtorralinia

1 14 we may have a formation on Lat. toral 'valance of a couch'; but? —conllatione 2 26 represents the learned colación. — Is uocita 2 22 for vocitant 'people call'? — An interesting word is gasalianes 1 6, 12, which harks back to Germanic gasalho, mod. Ger. Geselle, 'room-mate' etc. Diez (Etym. Wörterbuch der roman. Sprachen, p. 158) says that gasalianes — citing our passage — must have been formed according to the Gothic plural gasaljans. The word remains in mod. Sp. agasajar, agasajo, etc.

II. OLD SPANISH GLOSSES

According to Priebisch (cf. p. 5) there are about 400 words of the Spanish vernacular contained in the MS. with which he deals. This was known, in the 18th century, to the Benedictine monk Francisco de Berganza, who utilized it in his Antigüedades de España, Madrid, 1719–1721. (Cf. Menéndez Pidal in Revista Crítica de Historia, etc., Madrid, 1895, and see also Romania XXVI. 148.)

The glossator strove sometimes to give a Latin aspect to the endings of his words: cf. his retention of intervocalic t in the participial ending -atu, etc.; *fuere*t for fuere, 8, 57, etc.; *fuere*nt for *fuere*n, 92; *ficiere*t = fiziere, mod. hiciera, 28; etc.; but he revealed his real pronunciation when he wrote fuere 167; son < Lat. sūnt, 233; sierben 46; matan 82; etc. Of course he Latinizes, keeping the etymological vowels and consonants, in many other cases; as when he writes infinitives with a final e.

The diphthongization of accented Lat. ē and ō is seen in lieben < lēvent (mod. Sp. lleven), 56; mientras 91, 116; sierben < sērent*, 46; ierba 61; muerte 53; mueran 182; luenge 76; cuerpos 274; etc. The loss of the labial element in Lat. qu(e,i) is clear in the use of k in kematu 9; ke 31, 42, 233; etc.; cf., however, que 182, and quisieret 96, beside kisieret 244. For the voiceless velar stop, Lat. c(a,o,u), we find k in kadutu 167, beside cadutu 86 (not included here). In aplekan 112, aplekat 208, the k renders imperfectly the voiced velar stop g; while g itself, if not etymological, seems to appear in the Glosses with the value of γ, cf. siegat 11, 27, 211, 240, etc. But the interpretation of the g in siegat is doubtful. Cf. also 74 negant = necant.

The equivalence of b and v (μ) as a bilabial spirant may be inferred from cases like labatu 11; grabe 91; sierben 46; lieben beside leuatos 56; ueuetura 61; etc.

The prosthetic e is not indicated, stando 76.

The vocalization of ī shows itself in sotare < saltare, 216; sota 222. This passed, of course, through the stage au, whose change to o, where the au was originally Lat., is seen also in cosa 31.

In -ct-, vocalization of the first element has occurred: adduitos < adductos, 56; aflitos 25. In the latter case the resulting ī has been absorbed by the preceding i, Lat. ī. 54 etc. matare seems to show assimilation of c.

The assibilation of c(e, i), t_z, c_z, is visible in mortizino < mortīcīnus -um (mod. Sp. mortecino), 260; anzas < anties*, 161; brazaret (based on brac(ch)ium) 122.

The assimilation of p to t is seen in acetore (mod. azor; cf. Vocab. s.v. açor) < acceptorem, 272.

For other changes phonological, morphological, and lexical cf. Pribsch l.c., and see also the notes below and the Vocabulary. The sense-difficulties in the Glosses are sometimes baffling because we have not the whole Latin text before us.

3 1-2 (5, 8) aflare = O. Sp. fallare (fut. subj. 3d sg.). — aflatu = O. Sp. fallado; cf. Vocab. s.v. fallar. The writing of u for final unaccented ū in aflatu and other participles here — cf. 9 kematu, 11 labatu, 122 constrinitu, 35 incentitu, 167 kadutu, 211 osatu — is a Latinism; the o is properly written in 57 focato: cf. 260 the adj. mortizino, and 44 the noun periculo. For intervocalic Lat. -t- the Glosses show regularly only t, although the voicing to -d- must have already occurred in Castilian. — The change of unaccented Lat. ī to e is shown in fueret < fuerit, cf. 57 etc., 92 fuerent, 96 quisieret, 244 kisieret, 167 fuere, 61 ueuetura < bibitūra*, etc., just as that of the accented vowel appears in 81, 185 estos < īstos, 112 aplekan < applīcant, 208 aplekat < applīcat, 166 uece < vīcem, etc. Early in Sp. the accent passed from u to the more sonorous e following.

The initial f of O. Sp. fallar, as in all other f- words treated popularly (unless before original u or r, as in fuerent, frente, etc.), became an aspirate h and then disappeared from pronunciation later on.

3 3-4 (9, 11) kematu: cf. Vocab. s.v. quemar. — Here we have two examples of a Romance periphrastic construction taking the place of the Lat. passive voice. Neither of the glossed words passed into Romance. — In sieyat (cf. also 27, 211, 240) we have a peculiar form. Lat. sēdēt > V. L. seyat* > seya, with a closing of the e due to the following palatal, > Castilian sea, with the usual Castilian absorption of y after e. The form siega is well attested in the Glosses, for Pribsch finds it there six times, along with siegant three times, siegan three times, and siegam twice (this last exhibiting a Portuguese-Galician feature in its -m). He is loath to regard the g of these forms as a device to prevent the hiatus (i.e., apparently, as representing y, for in a few instances the Glosses seem to have a g meaning y), and finds the diphthong surprising in view of the usual development and the Aragonese sia, sian. Finally, he states his suspicion that the form is derived from a V. L. sēdat* and owes its g to the analogy of diga and faga. He cites the Catalan sigui (estigui), Valencian siga. Taking all in all, the form appears to indicate, unless it goes back to sēdat*, a non-Castilian origin for our glosses. In sense siegar is a pres. subj. form of the substantive verb and copula "to be"; cf. Vocab. s.v. seer and ser. This weakening of the original sense of sedere is seen also in 211 and 240, and in 65 esse: sedere.

3 5-9 (16, 26, 29, 119, 286) Everywhere in Romance territory, Lat. ignōrāre seems to have been a learned word: for the people at large its place was supplied by V. L. non sapēre*: cf. Vocab. s.v. saber. The p of sapet, sapiendo, sapiento is probably a Latinism for the already developed b. Sapiento is a mistake for sabiendo, whether the glossator (or scribe) was thinking of sapiens, sapientem, or inadvertently wrote a t = d simply because he still represented the intervocalic d of the vernacular by t, cf. 8 aflatu, 9 kematu, etc. — The qui of Gloss 16 is the O. Sp. qui; cf. ante 2 26 note, and Vocab. s.v. qui. This qui, used only of persons, still lives on in quizá(s), O. Sp. quiça(b), probably from Lat. qui te sapet*, in which the te is an ethical dative, "who knows for thee," i.e. "who can tell thee," whence quit sabe, i.e. quitsab, quiça(b), since O. Sp. wrote ç for the ts sound.

3 10-12 (20, 91, 116) Cf. Vocab. s.v. mientre. The glossing words show the tendency to express adverbial ideas by phrases rather than by single words. The za of 116 is probably a scribal error.

3 13 (25) Neither of the glossing words, although both remain alive, is entirely popular in its development, as the i of debiles and the fl of aflitos show. Cf. Pribsch: "aflito from afflictum, like Sp. hito, O. Sp., Ptg., and Aragonese fito, from fictum." The Glosses also have 293 anteditos < Lat. ante dictos. In mod. Sp. the c has been restored in aflicto, which is therefore more learned still: it is less used than the regular participial form afligido. — As often in the Glosses, the glossing words ignore the case relation of the words glossed. — The b of inbalidis = invalidis shows that the scribe is so accustomed to the identity of b and v that he confuses them in the Latin word. Of course, in mod. Sp. even etymological v becomes the real labial stop b after a nasal (cf. embestir < V. L. investire).

3 14 (27) Like all other Latin passive verbs, fieri disappeared in Romance, except for traces in Italian, Roumanian, etc.

3 15 (28) Apropos of mentiru, cf. Priebsch: "The MS. clearly shows u as opposed to the mod. Sp. and Ptg. fem. mentira." Meyer-Lübke (Grammatik der roman. Sprachen I. 480) considers mentira as a case of forward (i.e. from the accented syll. toward the beginning of the word) dissimilation of t-t > t-r, i.e. the participial (res, causa, etc.) mentita > mentida > mentira. Diez (Etym. Wörterbuch der roman. Sprachen, p. 211) regards the Sp. word as an incomprehensible deformation of mentida, which appears properly in Catalan and Sardinian. Perhaps the r is rather due to analogy; cf. the r of the correlative verdadero -a, vero -a, de vero, veras. One may think also of a possible influence of the abstract ending -ura.—In ficieret for the usual O. Sp. fiziere < Lat. fut. perf. indic. and perf. subj. fecerit with the ending of the Lat. 4th conj. (audīverit etc.), we see the retention of etymological intervocalic c(e,i), as also in 166 uece and 224 faces; cf., however 260 mortizino showing the voiced dental sibilant clearly.

3 16 (31) periuratusset = perjuratus esset (?) or sit (?).—The gloss shows in se periuret = mod. se perjure the Romance reflexive substitute for the Lat. passive.—ke = que; cf. Vocab. s.v. que. The form appears here both as pron. and conjunction: cf. 42 (but 182 que), 233, 237, 79, 146, 234, 240.—Instead of so < Lat. sūm, O. Sp. seems rather to have preferred su < Lat. sua before a fem. sg. noun: cf. Vocab. s.v. so and su. The Glosses also show 125 sos < sūōs, 187 so caput, and 250 (not given here) so membra. This last case is peculiar, since the poss. adj. stands before a glossing word derived from a Lat. ntr. pl. noun. Referring back to a plural antecedent, that is = 'their,' the Glosses show 224 lures. This is a pl. based on the Lat. gen. pl. of the pron. ille, [il']lor[um]. Cf. Priebsch: "Lur, lures, as opposed to general Sp. so (su) sos (sus) in Gl. 250 and 125, is confined to the east of the peninsula, Aragon and Catalonia, and is of Provençal stock." This last form is apparently, then, another non-Castilian trait in our Glosses.—For sobre, the regular Sp. derivative from Lat. super, cf. Vocab. s.v.

3 17 (42) The Latin construction with the future passive participle (gerundive) disappeared in Romance: instead of it we have here an infinitive phrase plus a que clause.—por: cf. Vocab. s.v.—fere is the O. Sp. fer; cf. Vocab.—Instead of Lat. faciat (which gave Ptg. faça), it was a V. L. facat* that gave the true O. Sp. form faga, mod. haga.—Priebsch rightly indicates that instead of omiciero we expect omicio here as an equivalent to the Lat. homicidium: omiciero is rather the agent noun 'homicide' = 'slayer.' As a term of the law, the Lat. homicidium and its derivatives passed to the people and produced a variety of forms more or less popular. For the simplex we have omezo beside [h]omicio etc.; for the agent noun in -ero < Lat. -arius we find homiciero, omeciero, etc.; for the diminutive (Lat. -ellus), omicillo, omecillo, etc. Cf. Priebisch: "Omecillo (which is the form occurring most frequently) denotes in the legal monuments not only the death-stroke and every crime of violence but also the fine imposed therefor, e.g. pechará omecillo in the Fuero Juzgo and the Fuero Viejo de Castilla" [i.e., in two of the oldest legal documents in Spanish]. Another early sense was that of 'hate,' 'deadly hate,' which still persists in the Don Quijote, Part I, Ch. XX, where Sancho uses it. Clemencín, in his ed. of the Don Quijote, points out that Juan Valdés, in his Diálogo de la Lengua (first half of the 16th century), marks it as a word passing into disuse in the sense of enemistad. Of course, locally it could maintain itself longer. A form with z, i.e. omezillo (cf. omezo), would seem more popular still.

3 18 (46) The Lat. praebēre, as a verb = 'to offer,' 'serve,' disappeared in Romance. As a learned word, Sp. ministrar < Lat. ministrāre remains. — Although glossing the same word, ministrent (sbj.) and sierben = mod. sierven < V. L. sērvent* for Lat. serviunt do not agree in mood here.

3 19-4 1 (49, 54, 74, 82, 85) Among the words glossed here, negare for Lat. necare is interesting as showing that the scribe really pronounced as g in Sp. an originally intervocalic Lat. c(a,o,u). He inadvertently wrote the g here, while, with a zealous endeavor to Latinize, he still wrote the c (k) in 112 aplekan, 208 aplekat, 244 consico, etc. Lat. necare still lives in Sp. anegar 'to drown,' which shows a specification of the method of "killing." Lat. enecare, which, according to Diez, Etym. Wtb., p. 221, had already the sense of 'to drown' in Gregory of Tours, may be back of anegar. An influence of the prefix ad- must be supposed however: one might argue for V. L. adnecare*. Interficere disappeared in Romance. Ex(s)tinguere did not survive in Spanish, although it is present in Italian, French, Portuguese, etc. — With regard to occidunt, Priebisch remarks that "occidere, supplanted in the Iberian peninsula by mactare, has been preserved there only in the old Catalan aucire." This, of course, is related to the Prov. aucire, which has been ascribed also to a V. L. abūdere* from ab and caedere. The noun occisión still survives in Sp. as a learned formation. — According to Diez (Etym. Wtb.) the Lat. strages remains in the Sp. verb estragar, 'to ravage,' 'destroy,' etc., and the noun estrago, 'havoc,' 'ruin,' etc. Priebisch, following Parodi (Romania XVII. 67), prefers as etymon a V. L. extrahicare* from Lat.

trahere; but the case against strages is not settled. — For matare = mod. Sp. matar, cf. Vocab. s.v. — matata, scribal for matada, seems an abstract = mod. matanza. Priebsch cites also older Sp. andada = andanza.

4 2-4 (53, 92, 182) Interitus did not survive in Romance. Pūnīre, probably as a purely learned word, occurred in older Sp., but the popular term was castigar from Lat. castigare, in the ordinary sense of 'punish,' 'discipline.' Here the gloss shows a stronger sense. — muertos < Lat. mōrtūos, V. L. mōrtos*, has here the meaning 'killed,' 'put to death,' which it still preserves — only in the p.p., and even in the transitive use — in mod. Sp., when employed with reference to persons. — As to fuerent = O. Sp. fueren, cf. Vocab. s.v. seer and ser. — infinem = in finem, both of which remain in en and fin. — usque did not remain. It is represented here by the O. Sp. ata que, mod. hasta que. For the second element of this, cf. the Vocab. s.v. Apparently O. Sp. ata comes from the Arabic hatta 'up to,' 'until,' and appears also in the earlier form of fata (f = aspirate h as in Arabic). Sp. hasta (O. Sp. fasta with f = aspirate h) is troublesome. Diez, Etym. Wtb., p. 458, although with misgivings, explained the word as Sp. hácia + ata. As to hácia, cf. Diez, ibid. p. 130, s.v. faccia: "Spanish knows the form hácia (fácia) used as a prep. instead of Lat. versus: andaba hacia (á) la puente really means 'he went with his face turned toward the bridge.'" Hacia + ata is impossible as the source of hasta. One might think of the O. Sp. faz, mod. haz, < Lat. facies, faciem, + ata. But fazata, if with syncope it could become fazta*, ought to result in haza*, cf. Lat. recitare > Sp. rezar. The s may simply be intrusive in O. Sp. fata, for which the ata of the Glosses probably stands, and may be due to some analogy. Cf. the Ptg. te, ate, O. Ptg. atem, whose history is also somewhat obscure.

4 5 (56) It would seem that already O. Sp. levar < Lat. levare, like mod. llevar, was used as an auxiliary with the past participle (i.e. here with both adduitos and leuatos treated as synonymous terms). The gloss does not exclude, however, the use of lieben in a literal sense. As to the relation of levar and the mod. llevar, cf. Vocab. s.v. leuar. — In leuatos = levados, the u, as so often in medieval documents, is scribal for v: the equivalence in O. Sp. of intervocalic b and v — both the bilabial spirant — may be seen in lieben beside leuatos. Cf. gl. 295 leuare. — adduitos < Lat. addūctos represents a prior stage to that of Sp. aduchos, m. pl. p.p. of O. Sp. aduzir, mod. aducir, < V. L. addūcīre*, Lat. addūcēre. The ġ element infected the t of adduitos in Castilian, palatalizing it to ġ > ch, and was itself absorbed. In dialects, the ġ remained. Gl. 128 has fruitu < frūctum, which appears elsewhere in O. Sp., e.g.

in Berceo, as frucho, while mod. fruto is a Latinism. In mod. Sp. the p.p. of aducir is of the regular type, aducido, and the word is used rather in the figurative sense of 'to adduce,' 'quote,' 'cite,' than in that of 'to bring.' Early in O.Sp. dd > d.

4 6 (57) The Lat. verb vēxāre lives on in the mod. Sp. vejar, but the latter has not the strong sense which the glossed word, vexatus a demonio, 'injured (suffocated) by the devil,' seems to have in the text; hence the gloss focato = mod. ahogado, O.Sp. afogado. Priebisch, however, thinks that the meaning here is that of oprimir, acongojar. Afogar, ahogar, like the Lat. suffocare, points to Lat. faux, faucem, hence a V.L. affocare* with the f of the main part of the word treated as initial. "To kill by stopping the throat" was the original sense: by extension the verb has come to signify 'suffocating' in other ways, as by 'drowning.'

4 7 (61) The glossed word, poculum, has here the meaning 'potion,' 'poison,' as the gloss 'herb-drink' shows. — Instead of ueuetura, we find bebetura in glosses 51 and 280 not included here: the forms show again the equivalence of b and v. The V.L. basis is bībītūra* from Lat. p.p. bībītus. Cf. Priebisch: "bebetura [we might write it bebedura or bevedura] and also bebienda [which likewise appears in early Sp.] stand for the usual mod. bebida; . . . póculo = bebida is limited to poetical diction." — ierba < Lat. hērba; cf. mod. hierba beside yerba, like yedra beside hiedra.

4 9-10 (233, 237) The glosses show the substitution in Spanish of relative clauses for the convenient and pithy Lat. infinitive of the accusative and infinitive construction. — Of course esse gave way in Sp. to sedēre in so far as the infin. and certain other parts of the verb are concerned: cf. Vocab. s.v. ser, seer. — deesse, having disappeared, needed the explanation, "which is missing." — iet < Lat. ēst is not Castilian, for in that dialect the form received atonic treatment; hence es. Cf. Priebisch: "The diphthongization of Lat. est, already appearing in almost regular fashion in the oldest Asturian texts, is still a specific characteristic of that dialect: West-Asturian yié yia (the Fuero Juzgo has ia ya, once each); Bable-Asturian ye yes; and yes in the dialect of Miranda, which has Asturian elements." He refers to Munthe's Anteckningar om folkhället i en trakt af Vestra Asturien, Upsala, 1887, p. 51; Morel-Fatio's remarks in the Romania IV. 30, 35; and E. Gessner's study of Old Leonese (1867), p. 27. E. Staaff, in his Étude sur l'ancien dialecte léonais d'après des chartes du XIII^e siècle, Uppsala and Leipzig, 1907, registers (p. 200) the forms yes and ye, and he thinks that "there is no reason to doubt that we are face to face with a case of real diphthongization. These forms could very well bear the accent, and there was doubtless a diphthongized form for the accented position and a form without the diphthong for the atonic position. Soon the two forms began to be employed the one for the other, and sometimes ye is the only form used. . . . If the verb is placed after the predicate, it takes on a certain accent, and then we have, doubtless, one of the cases in which the diphthongized form arose." On p. 310 he says: "Yes often becomes ye [and we may regard the t of our iet = yet as merely etymological] as a result of a tendency to bring this form into accord with the 2d person yes," i.e., the s was lost by dissimilation and in accord with the principle that 3d pers. sg. forms of the pres. indic. do not regularly end in s. Cf. Baist in Groeber's Grundriss der roman. Philol., 2d ed., I, p. 914: "in the West and in Asturian ye, . . . in the Northeast, down to the Glosses of Silos, yet." — ke = mod. que: cf. Vocab. s.v. que. — son and menos are perfectly regular developments of sūnt and mīnūs.

4 11 (76) The Lat. absens, absentem, remains in the non-popular mod. Sp. ausente. — In luenge = the obsolete lueñe < Lat. adv. lōnge 'afar,' 'away,' we have doubtless the palatalized n, not yet sufficiently indicated any more than in 45 punga = obs. puña 'battle,' 224 tingen = tiñen 'dye,' 'color,' etc. It is better indicated in 77 inpreinnaret, 179 preinnaret (cf. mod. preñado, empreñar), from V.L. praegnare*, impraegnare*. Cf. Vocab. s.v. luenne. Pribsch records a variety of early forms of this word, finding lueñe (luenne) among the most usual. It is notable that the palatalized sound did not prevent the diphthongization of the preceding ø: in like fashion somnium may have given sueño; of course one thinks of a possible influence of luengo. Cf. Baist in Grundriss I. 889. — In stando = estando the prosthetic e is not yet indicated, although undoubtedly a vowel sound was already developed before initial s + consonant. In the earliest O. Sp., however, as still in Italian, the prosthetic vowel may not have arisen in cases of close syntactical relation, if the preceding word ended in a vowel. We seem to have here a case of the use of estar to denote position: but O. Sp. did not differentiate consistently between estar and seer, ser, in this regard; cf. Ford, "*Sedere, Essere and Stare in the Poema del Cid," in Modern Language Notes XIV, No. 2.

4 12 (79) Cf. Vocab. s.v. por and que. — quod with the sense of 'because' did not survive in Spanish.

4 13-14 (81, 185) Except in certain combinations, as in pero < per hoc, hogaño 'this year' < hoc anno, agora 'now' < hac hora, the pure demonstrative adjective hic, haec, hoc, did not survive in Spanish. In ordinary usage its place was taken by one of the other Lat. demonstratives, as here by iste, istos > estos.

4 15 (93) inici = injici, pres. infin. passive of injacere, which did not survive. — The frequentative jactare took the place of jacere and its derivatives, as here. So gl. 50 relictis: iectatis. Priebsch finds iectar, ietar, getar, in such early Sp. documents as the Fuero de Aviles (12th cent.) and the Fuero Juzgo (13th cent.), and calls attention to the mountaineer form jitar, the Aragonese getar gitar, the Portuguese geitar. Körting, s.v. ejectare, lists also the dialectal Sp. jitar. Cf. Vocab. s.v. echar. Diez (Etym. Wtb., p. 161) felt that jactare explained sufficiently the Sp. echar, but, in view of the It. gettare, he set up the Lat. ejectare as the etymon. Cornu (Romania VII. 354) returns with good reason to jactare for the Sp. word. The j was lost before the unaccented syllable, as in the infin. and the p.p. (cf. iectatis): jactare jactatum > jaitar* jaitato* > jeiřar* jeiřado* > jechar* jechado*, and, with the usual loss of initial j before unaccented e, > echar echado. Under the influence of the forms not accented on the first syll., those accenting the first syll. dropped the j. — The por here is apparently not part of the gloss equivalent.

4 16 (96) Although glossed here, the Lat. něgāre seems to have developed in Sp. as a popular word. — For O. Sp. non cf. Vocab. — In quisieret = quisiere < Lat. quaesivērit we see the loss of v after i, which frequently happened also in classic Latin, and already the closing effect of the ĩ of the accented syll. upon a preceding unaccented e (Lat. ae, V. L. e). The ĩ was caused by the usual V. L. shift of accent in ie to the more sonorous second element; cf. mulierem > V. L. mulierem*.

4 17 (100) Of course augŕřřm became masculine in Romance. In V. L. the first u of the combination au-ŕ disappeared, hence V. L. agŕřřm*, mod. Sp. agüero. In the Sp. development, apparently the ĩ closed the V. L. o (Lat. ŕ) to u and then, by epenthesis, joined it as e, which, as the more sonorous vowel, soon assumed the accent. This is, however, a doubtful phonetic process. — The practice of augury continued throughout the Middle Ages in Spain, in spite of the condemnation of it by the Church: the Penitential in question here arraigns it.

4 18 (111) According to the scribe's usual process of writing the Lat. voiceless for the Romance voiced consonants, alquantre = alguandre. Cf. Priebsch: "In the welcome alquantre we perceive clearly the rare alguandre, 'jamás,' which is found twice in the Cid and once, reinforced by nunquas, in the Reyes Magos [cf. 7 34 and Vocab. s.v. alguandre].

According to Cornu, Romania X. 75, this is Lat. aliquando. The difficulty which the t presents is resolved if we suppose a contamination with aliquantum. [Or, rather, the t may be scribal and erroneous for original d, written just as the scribe still wrote t for Lat. t which had become d.] The word probably did not live after the 12th century; it is lacking in documents of the archives." The -re Priebisch does not seek to explain; cf. Vocab.

4 19-20 (112, 208) Both the Romance verb forms are inexact as to mood, since the glossed words require the subjunctive; the sense is that of "coming forward," or in general that of mod. Sp. llegar. In O. Sp. allegar may have had occasionally the intransitive sense of 'arrive,' 'come forward'; cf. Poema de Fernán González, ed. Marden, 101 d. In mod. Sp. allegar is used only in the transitive sense, 'to bring together,' yet Diez (Etym. Wtb., p. 463) is of the opinion that the intransitive sense began with the derivative allegar, Lat. applicare ('to adapt to,' 'tend toward'), and passed thence to the simplex llegar. The present glosses seem to bear him out. As their k probably represents the already developed g, they are forms of a verb aplegar < applicāre, found in variants in Berceo, Santo Domingo, 518 and 667, in the reflexive and passive use, and in the reflexive use in the Libro de Alexandre (ed. Morel-Fatio, stz. 137), all with the sense of 'to reach,' 'arrive.' The transition to the intransitive sense is parallel to that of pasear, transitive, which, through pasearse, has become pasear, intransitive. The simple verb llegar corresponds to Lat. plīcare, and, independently of the influence of Lat. applicare, it should be remarked that the change of sense from 'bend,' 'wend,' to 'go' is illustrated also in the history of the English verb "wend," "went," "he turned his way," "he wended his way," therefore "he went." Among other examples of an early date, Priebisch cites one from the Fuero de Castrojeriz: "et plegamos nos totos, et fuimus ad illos." The same development may still hold true of O. Sp. troçir as from V. L. torcere*, torcīre*, Lat. torquēre, in spite of Baist's assertion in the Kritischer Jahresbericht ü. d. Fortschritte der roman. Philol. VIII. i. 214. The history of llegar, allegar, ought to be considered by him, as well as the history of the English wend, went. The writing of pl in aplekan, aplekat, plegar, etc. may be only conventional and etymological: the sound may have been already the palatalized sound of l.

4 21 (122) In the Lat. complexu observe np for mp. The gloss seems to mean 'shall embrace constrained,' i.e. tightly.—constrinitu = constrñido < V. L. constrīngitum*, p.p. of Lat. constrīngere, instead of Lat. constrictum. The mod. word is constreñir constreñido, but older Sp. shows also co(n)stringir, co(n)strinir, co(n)striñir, etc. — In the fut. sbj. brazaret = mod. abrazare we note the absence of the prefix — perhaps as a result of a scribal error — and the early use of z for the sibilant developed out of Lat. c̃. In the later period, when conditions became fixed, z was reserved, in the intervocalic position, for the voiced dental sibilant, and ç denoted the corresponding voiceless sound of the present word, abraçar < ad + brac(h)ium, abbrac(h)itare*.

4 22 (124) Femur has left no traces in Romance. — The gloss campas has also passed from mod. Sp. Pribsch calls attention to the entry in the Cassel Glosses, so interesting for Old French, campa: hamma, in which the sense of 'ham' or 'upper leg' is clear. He says further: "This interesting gloss agrees with the camba of the Alexander [i.e. the Libro de Alexandre] and the cama of the Cid. The later Spanish and Catalan gamba, Portuguese gambia, with a voiced initial consonant . . . are certainly not native, but probably came from Italy. In the first edition of the Dictionary of the Spanish Academy, it is said of gamba: 'Es voz italiana y de poco uso.'" The word is general Romance: cf. Italian gamba, French jambe, and English gammon, jamb, etc. Diez supposed it to be of Celtic origin, and related to the stem cam (cam-, camm-) 'crooked,' 'bent,' found also, as general Indo-European, in Greek καμπή. So he says (Etym. Wtb. p. 155): "The root is found in the Latin domain in cam-urus, cam-erus, 'crooked,' cam-era 'vault,' cam-erare 'to arch over,' French cambrer, in the simplex in the Celtic cam 'bent,' 'crooked' (Cymric camîneg, 'felly of a wheel,' like the Portuguese camba)." Whatever the case may be with regard to a Celtic source (cf. Thurneysen, Keltoromanisches, s.v. gamba), the word has affinities with the English ham. In mod. Sp. pierna has supplanted campa, camba, gamba. See Körting, Lat.-Roman. Wtb., 3d ed., s.v. camba. The development of the idea "crooked," "crooked limb," into that of "upper leg," "ham," is certainly not impossible. Descriptive features and pleasantry have much to do with the evolution of the Romance terms for the parts of the human frame. See also Gröber in Archiv f. lat. Lexicographie II. 432 and Rönsch in Jahrbuch f. roman. u. engl. Sprache XIV. 174.

4 23 (125) Of course propriis stands for the dat. and abl. pl. propriis. Proprius -a -um has survived in Sp. as propio -a and is often used as an intensive with the possessive adjective. — For sos, cf. Vocab. s.v. so; it is interesting to find sūōs > sos in the 11th century. Cf. 187 so < sūūm.

4 24 (138) In Romance there is no trace of a popular development of quot. — Quantus -a -um, with its flexional capabilities, had better fortune: hence mod. Sp. cuanto -a.

4 25 (146) Of course the deponent utor, like all other deponent verbs, disappeared in V. L. The p. p. usus and its derivatives have had a better fate: cf. Sp. uso, usar, usual < Lat. ūsualis, usualem. — The aiat here, and in the next gloss 188 habeat: aiat, represents the regular V. L. contraction of the pres. subj. habeat, especially for the Western part of the Romance territory and certainly for Sp. From V. L. (h)ayat* we obtain Sp. (h)aya, for which the gloss aiat stands. The reduction of the Lat. word is due to proclitic and enclitic use in verbal combinations, e.g. in perfect tenses, in which the accent in V. L. was thrown on the accompanying and more important p. p. As a result the auxiliary verb was slurred and soon was shortened in pronunciation. In direct phonological development -by- did not become y in Spanish. — The word lege in Gloss 146 — whose correspondence with uti is not perfectly clear — is the Sp. ley, ‘law’: lex lēgem > lege > lee (since intervocalic g was lost before e, i, and in fact had already become y in V. L.) and > ley (since the last e, being in hiatus, is really a y); cf. Vocab. s.v. ley.

4 27–31 (153, 223, 274, 35, 88) All these glosses illustrate the early Spanish use of the definite article. In 153, 223, 274, we have the full forms of the article, corresponding directly to the Lat. demonstrative adj. ille etc., with its first syllable retained. Priebisch deems these forms, in so far as elo, ela, elas are concerned, common to the earliest Old Spanish, and he states: “They have maintained themselves longest (as late as the 13th cent.) in Leonese texts, as numerous examples from the Alexandre, from the decrees of the Councils at Leon, and from the archives of this province as published by Muñoz, Guerra y Orbe, and Escalona prove.” He calls attention to Gessner, Das Altleonische, Berlin, 1867, and Morel Fatio in Romania IV. 53. We have now the well founded judgment of E. Staaff in his Étude sur l’ancien dialecte léonais d’après des chartes du XIII^e siècle, Uppsala and Leipzig, 1907, pp. 262 ff. He finds the forms ela (ella), elas (ellas), elos (ellos) instead of la, las, los, i.e. the Latin forms preserved without apocopation of the final syllable as regards the sing. ela, and, what is more interesting, without loss of the initial syllable for all of them. The forms with a single l prevail, and he says, “The almost constant reduction of ll to l is due doubtless to the influence of the masculine form”; i.e., Lat. ille > elle* > elle > ell, with loss of palatalization before a word beginning with a consonant, el. But it should be observed that aquella, aquellas, aquellos, have maintained themselves in spite of aquel. Menéndez Pidal, El Dialecto Leonés (Madrid, 1906), p. 50, also registers ela, elas, elos for Old Leonese, but does not find the forms in the modern dialect. While there is a tendency in modern Asturian and in part of the Leonese territory to palatalized initial l, the shortened forms of the article, la, las, etc., do not show the palatalization (cf. ibid. pp. 31 and 50, and Staaff p. 265). In the original demonstrative use our Glosses show 62 and 168 elos and 178 ela(s). In gloss 88 lo appears to be the masc. sg. of the article, and it may be the same form — if not the neuter — in 35. Like the other short forms, la, los, las, which at an early date became regular in Castilian, lo arose in the combination with a preceding preposition, e.g. de illü(m) > de ello > del(l)o, and this, by redivision, > de lo. So also de illa(m) > del(l)a > de (l)la, cf. de la of Gloss 61. In Gloss 214 we see alas = á las. While Castilian preferred the masc. form el, Leonese used lo, but generally only in combination with a preceding preposition, as in our Glosses; cf. Staaff, l.c., p. 265, note 2. Cf. the still more westerly form o of Portuguese, which appears to have arisen in such combinations as a + lo, alo >, with the usual Ptg. loss of intervocalic l, ao, and, by redivision, a + o. Some think that ille became ile*, ila*, etc. in V. L., but the history of the Sp. pron. el, ella, etc. must be borne in mind. Staaff, l.c., p. 253, says: "An important trait of the Leonese dialect consists in the tendency which this dialect has to assimilate the final consonant of certain words and the initial consonant of certain other words. This is the case above all with the final n of the prepositions en and con and the initial l of the article and the personal pronoun." He gives examples of en + lo(s) > enno(s), en + la(s) > enna(s), en + los > enos, en + la(s) > ena(s); con + lo(s) > conno(s), con + la(s) > conna(s), con + lo(s) > cono(s), con + la(s) > cona(s). The forms with nn seem to be in the majority in the 13th-century charters examined by him. Perhaps the n of our eno, ena, enas, in Glosses 44, 200, 222, 105 (4 32-33; 5 1-2) represents nn, but the matter is open to discussion. It is of importance in that it raises the question as to a Leonese or Western Spanish origin of our document. Gessner, in his article Das Leonesische, Ein Beitrag zur Kenntniss des Altspanischen (Berlin, 1867), had called attention to enno, conno. Staaff (p. 256) says that these forms "can go back only to the form lo of the article, a form which is that of Portuguese, and which . . . has also left traces in Leonese. This form represents the final syllable of illum, while the Sp. article goes back to the nominative illi, whose vowel has undergone the influence of ellum." Here he follows Baist, Gröber's Grundriss I, 2nd ed., 909. But there is no real need of asserting a V. L. elli as the basis. The occasional O. Sp. elli (masc. sg.), in view of which Baist supposes elli, may have its -i explained as a pronominal i due to the influence of Lat. qui, O. Sp. qui. Staaff (p. 257) discusses an Old Leonese enne, ene, in which, he says, "we must see a trace of the nominative [i.e. of ille] with a loss of the initial syllable: en + elle > en le > enne and likewise tras elle > tras le." It is much more likely that we start with en le, i.e., the first syllable of elle was probably lost first of all in combinations such as de + elle > delle, dele, whence, by redivision, de (l)le. Another significant statement of Staaff is this (p. 257): "the assimilation of n and l gives either nn or n, spellings which are often found in the same document. The forms with single n increase toward the west. In the central and eastern region it is probable that en was first combined with the article when the latter was pronounced with palatalized l: en + llo > enno (eño), after which ñ was frequently reduced to n under the influence of the preposition." The feminine article el, still used in mod. Sp. before a fem. noun beginning with accented a or ha, was much more used in early Sp., occurring both in Castilian (cf. Vocab. s.v. el) and in Leonese (cf. Staaff, p. 264) before fem. nouns and adjs. in general, provided they began with a vowel. It is to be noted that Cornu has endeavored — but hardly with success — to establish the fuller forms of the article, elle etc., for the Poema del Cid: cf. Études romanes dédiées à G. Paris; Ztsch. f. rom. Philol. XXI; etc.

As a learned adjective predator-ora of Gloss 153 lives on in mod. Sp. The noun is seen in the somewhat more popular depredador. O. Sp. had the verb prear < Lat. praedare, which was truly popular in form.

In 223 the unpronounced h of habitus has been omitted. — The gloss similia (Lat. ntr. pl. of similis treated as a V. L. fem. sg.) has given the Sp. semeja, 'likeness,' 'resemblance,' 'mark,' 'sign.' In the latter senses it is used rather in the pl. than the sing., but the word is not very common.

In 274 it is evident that cuerpos is really a pl. and not the representative of a sg. Lat. cōrpūs. Of course it is not impossible that a form cuerpos could do duty as both a sg. and a pl., but the chances are that a sg. cuerpo already existed. Cf. Menéndez Pidal, Manual elemental de gramática histórica española (Madrid, 1905), pp. 134–135. — The mod. Sp. cadáver is purely learned: in his writing of the Lat. word as cadavera the scribe shows again his inability to distinguish between b and v in the intervocalic position.

Lat. incēndium remains in the learned development incendio. — The gl. incentitu owes its erroneous first t to the constant tendency of the scribe to write a t where the pronunciation was that of d. The word is the p.p. used with substantival force: mod. Sp. encendido, p.p. of encender, Lat. incēndere, V.L. incēndere*.

Lat. hostilis maintains itself as Sp. hostil, but is hardly a word of common use. — gentile = mod. gentil 'Gentile' < Lat. gentilis; here it may be used with the sense of gente. — aduersario = adversario, which remains as a learned form < adversarius.

collituras: this word, according to Priebisch, p. 22, "is mod. Sp. cogedura (cf. Ital. coglitura) 'the act of collecting something,' and goes with O.Sp. coller, Ptg. colher, more usually colligir, mod. Sp. coger." The ll (palatalized l, if it is really such) of coller and of our collitura may indicate Leonese origin: cf. the early examples of ll < ly given by Staaff (coller etc., already listed by Cuervo in Rev. hisp. II. 52 ff.) p. 227 ff. and by Menéndez Pidal in Dialecto Leonés p. 38 (fillo 'son,' muller 'wife,' etc.). In mod. Leonese the ll > y, which, indeed, appears relatively early also.

pullutione is represented in Castilian by the learned polución < Late Lat. pollutio -onem. — For periculo, mod. Cast. peligro, cf. Vocab. s.v. perigro.

With sota cf. 216 saltare: sotare. The sense is that of 'jumping' and 'hopping' in a dance, and the verb is the Lat. saltare, 'to dance,' 'hop.' Cf. Priebisch, p. 30: "For older sotar 'bailar, alegrarse' the mod. language has again saltar. . . The substantive sota (mod. Sp. saltación and salto, which latter is also Portuguese, < saltus) is derived from the verb." If the forms sotar, sota are Castilian, one wonders why the reversion to saltar, salto, etc. took place. Cf. the noun soto 'grove' < Lat. saltus -um, which shows the same process of development as these old Sp. words (saltum > sauto* > souto* > soto) and has maintained itself. It should be indicated that l before a voiceless consonant has shown different treatments, now vocalizing to u (or to i, y, after u), and again persisting: cf. Baist in Gröber's Grundriss I, 2d ed., pp. 886 and 903, and Menéndez Pidal, Gramática elemental, 2d ed., p. 87.

53 (161) prius: anzes. Lat. prius did not remain in Sp. The glossing word anzes is a decidedly interesting form, with which Diez was not familiar when he wrote (Etym. Wtb. p. 21), s.v. Ital. anzi: "The derivation from antea is contradicted by the Sp. form [i.e. antes, the regular Sp. form]. . . Ménage [in his Dictionnaire étymologique] argues for an undiscovered but easily admissible antius, as the comparative of ante, which is satisfactory for anzi as well as ains [the corresponding Old French word], but throws antes out of court. And yet it must be a guiding principle of etymologizing, in so far as the letter does not stand in decided contradiction therewith, to hold to a common origin of words of the different sister languages which are alike in meaning and close in form." The anzes of our Glosses belongs to the same category as anzi and ains, and therefore Ménage's etymology deserves serious consideration. This it has received from Schuchardt in the Ztschr. f. roman. Philol. XV. 240, where he explains anzi as from antie*, an adverb framed on antius* -a -um. In O.Sp., antie* should give anze ançe (the spelling with ç for the voiceless sibilant being the better), and this might assume an adverbial s. Cf. Vocab. s.v. antes. Cf. Pribsch, p. 26: "Anzes, which must be referred to an antie* + s (cf. Ital. anzi), is, in the presence of Sp. and Ptg. ante antes, very strange. Perhaps from the present form [i.e. anzes], which unfortunately has not been found elsewhere, we may infer a derivative anzano, now also lost, which would correspond better to antianum* than the mod. anciano (ancião in Ptg.)." Of course, it must be said that anciano corresponds perfectly to antianum*, but as a learned development.

5 4 (166) Aside from certain Italian dialect forms, and possibly certain Provençal forms, semel seems to have left no trace in Romance, although the related insimul insēmūl* has given an O.Sp. ensiemo as well as other Romance forms. — In the gloss uece = vece is from Lat. vīcem. Cf. Pribsch, p. 26: "vice is common Romance: Ptg. and Sp. vez (beside vegada, now obs., from vīcata*), Provençal vetz, French fois. See the Reichenau Glosses 205: semel: una vice, and a marginal gloss of the MS. of the British Museum Add. 30,851, fol. 120 verso: uicissimi: aveces (as in mod. Sp.)."

5 5 (167) Cf. Gloss 86, lapsi sunt: cadutu fueret. In both cases it is notable that ser is used as auxiliary with a verb of motion, as it often was used in O.Sp. — Pribsch, p. 21, registers also gloss 89 cadieret = mod. cayere, and cadiot (see below gl. 234) = cayó. He judges that this cadudo (for which cadutu and kadutu stand), which has not been discovered anywhere else, must early have given way to ca(d)ido, i.e. caído < caditum*. He mentions as common in O.Sp. such past participles as cognozudo, defendudo, venzudo, etc. He says: "In a very old, richly illuminated Lat. MS. from Silos I find the gloss casus (subst.): caditas, and this latter word represents mod. caída 'fall.'" Pribsch also mentions the O.Sp. infin. cader, with preserved intervocalic d: cf. Menéndez Pidal, Gramática elem., 2d ed., p. 200.

5 6 (187) The so caput corresponds to the se ipsum; the conj. si is not concerned here in the gloss. The sense is then that of the mod. si mismo, according, as Priebisch indicates, to the figure of the part for the whole, the head for the whole person. He has found in a document of 1233 the expression ueuir en so cabo = vivir por sí. We may add here the mod. Sp. en su solo cabo = á sus solas, the French de son chef = de son propre mouvement, and the Ital. di suo capo = di proprio arbitrio. Some doubt has been thrown on the derivation of cabo from the V.L. capūm*. Baist, Grundriss, 2d ed., I. 895, would derive it directly from Lat. caput; cf. Bernitt, *Lat. caput u. capum, etc. (Kiel, 1905). Of course final t would drop in caput and we should be reduced to capu-* just as in capu(m)*. But Sp. cabeza points to a capiciam* based on capum*.

5 7 (191) noverce represents the Lat. genitive novercae of noverca: the interchange of intervocalic b and v occurs as in other cases; the final e shows the V.L. change to ɛ. During the Middle Ages the scribes often used e for ae in transcribing classic texts. — Cf. Priebisch, p. 28, with regard to matastra: "for matrastra (with dissimilation, i.e. of the r), mod. Sp. madrastra beside madrasta (also Portuguese) from matrasta (in Isidore of Seville)." The ordinary dictionaries do not record a mod. madrasta for either Sp. or Ptg. As Priebisch indicates, Ducange (Glossarium Infimae Latinitatis) lists matrasta. The French marâtre is the same word and keeps both r's. — Priebisch is doubtless right in regarding the obs. noverca, given in the Sp. dictionaries, as a term of legal usage and not a popular word.

5 8 (192) Perhaps the use of cusina here as a glossing word is due to a tendency to distinguish between the meaning of the Lat. sobrina, which became limited in Sp. to the sense 'niece,' and the more general meaning of Lat. consobrina, which appears to have given the Fr. cousine, Ital. cugina, etc., 'cousin.' In Lat. sobrīnus -a, standing as it did for sororīnus -a, was properly used of cousins by the mother's side, while consobrīnus -a seems to have had its sense extended to that of 'cousin' and 'relative' in even a remote degree. It is not certain, however, that the glossator was refining in this way. For Priebisch, our cusina is a French loan-word [i.e. represents Fr. cousine, which some regard as a deformation in child's speech — where it occurred frequently, and often too in the proclitic use — of the Lat. consobrina]. As Fr. loan-words he regards also the Old Galician cosino and a 15th-century Aragonese cosino, and he has found the word in Portuguese courtly poetry of the 15th century, which underwent French influence.

In both Sp. and Ptg. the usual term for 'cousin' is primo -a, i.e. first in relationship after 'brother' and 'sister.'

5 9-11 (193, 194, 243) Lat. matertera 'aunt on the mother's side' did not survive in Sp. In matertere we have the genitive materterae. — abunculi stands for Lat. genitive avunculi. In Sp. there seems to be no trace of Lat. avunculus 'uncle on the mother's side.' It is, of course, the French oncle, whence the Eng. uncle. In Romance no attempt was made to distinguish by different words the uncle and aunt on the mother's side from those on the father's side. — Like Italian, Sp. and Ptg. have derived their words for 'uncle,' 'aunt,' from the Greek θεῖος, θελα, which included the uncles and aunts on both sides of the house. Thence came the V.L. thūs*, thā*, Italian zio, zia, and our Sp. terms.

5 12 (211) In Romance the Lat. audēre gave way to a frequentative, V.L. ausare*, whose pp. ausatum* > our form osatu = osado, just as in gl. 230 its pres. sbj. auset > oset = ose. — Apropos of 211, Pribsch says: "Sit ausus for audeat is a constant expression in the old legal monuments and documents. In a document of 964 it is said, nullus homo aus(e)us non sedeat per ibi entrare; and in a document of 1277, no sea ossado."

5 13 (214) Lat. nūptiae (with influence of novius) has been potent in the other Romance languages; cf. French noces, Ital. nozze, etc.; but in Sp. it has been supplanted by the ntr. pl. vōta '(marriage) vows,' 'marriage,' 'wedding.' Hence O.Sp. vodas represented by our gloss. The C.Sp. tendency to use b even for etymological v in the initial position seems to have fixed the mod. spelling bodas. There is also exemplified here the tendency of a Lat. ntr. pl. in -a to be treated popularly as a fem. sg.; hence the new pl. in -s. In nubtias the scribe follows the reverse process and erroneously writes the voiced b for voiceless p, while he maintains voiceless -p- in capo for mod. cabo. In mod. Sp. a b before a voiceless consonant, if pronounced at all, becomes p: cf. abstener, pronounced either apstener or astener.

5 15 (224) The gloss, 'who stain their faces,' corresponds to the fuller expression in the Penitential qui . . . monstruose fūgunt, 'who make themselves up strangely (unnaturally),' which it therefore interprets rather specifically. — On the O.Sp. rel. pron. qui, cf. Vocab.s.v. and the remarks to 3 5 ff.; of course quien < quēm appears regularly as the rel. and interrog. pron., used of persons, in mod. Sp. — As to the non-Castilian lures cf. the note on 3 16. — tingen = tiñen corresponds to V.L. tingent* for Lat. tingunt. It is difficult to say whether the i is the Latin vowel preserved or is the fully developed Sp. i of teñir, tiño, tiñen, etc. Palatalization under certain conditions explains the Sp. i. — According to Pribsch faces is not clear in the MS. It is, however, the form that we should expect from the pl. factes of the Lat. factes faciem, as it is probable that the combination -cfe was early reduced to -ce: cf. Ford in Studies and Notes in Philology etc. VII (Boston, 1900), p. 48, and Horning, Lat. C im Romanischen (Halle, 1883), p. 8. The resulting form in O. Sp. was fazes, for which our gloss stands.

5 16 (234) Emersise seems to be the active perf. infin. of emergere (emersisse): this part of the verb did not survive in Romance, and its place was taken most often by a subordinate clause, such as the ke cadiot = que cayó here. The Lat. text glossed is si quis dicit diabolum . . . ex cahos emersise, etc. — Apropos of the pret. indic. 3d sg. form cadiot cf. Pribsch, p. 18, where he deals with the pret. tollit 'took away' of gl. 38: "tollio tolló from tolluit* through tolluit like cadiot out of caduit* through caduit; later cadíó cayó (caíó)." In a note he says: "absorbiut is in a document of 969." Just what process Pribsch is thinking of is not clear, or what part tolluit* and caduit* play in the supposed development. In ui preterits the u generally passed beyond the consonant to join a preceding a; whence au > ou > o in O. Sp., cf. habuit > ovo, sapuit > sopo, etc. So from caduit* we might expect codo*. We are really dealing here with a weak preterit developed on the analogy of the pret. of the Lat. 4th conjugation, which became very important for Spanish and took over many verbs from other conjugations and certainly imposed itself for certain tenses. In Lat. we find already the development audīvit > audīit. This form, continuing in V. L., could by analogy to the 1st conjugation, amāvit > amāut, become audīut*, or perhaps we may say, without appealing at all to audīit, that Lat. audīvit (whose v should regularly be lost in Span. after ī) was made over straightway to audīut* through the analogy of amāut. The accent on the i could also be explained by the analogy of audīsti for audīvīsti, audīmus for audīvīmus, etc., which all tended to produce a uniform accent on the characteristic vowel i throughout the 1st, 2d, and 3d sg. and the 1st and 2d pl. See, for various statements as to the lines of development pursued by these preterit forms, Baist in the Grundriss I, 2d ed., 913; Meyer-Lübke, ibid. 479; Menéndez Pidal, Gram. elem., 2d ed., 216 ff.; and in general A. Gassner, Das altspanische Verbum (Halle, 1897). If now we suppose a V. L. cadīūt*, its development would be cadlot >, with a shift of accent to the more sonorous vowel o, ca(d)íó, cayó. The shift of accent may have been helped by the analogy of the accented -ó from -aut in the 1st conjugation, and also by the fact that in the 3d pl. ending -ivērunt > -iērun > Sp. -jéron, the accent was regularly on the second element of a diphthong. It is not without interest that the Glosses contain, as 1st conjugation forms, 80 duplicaot, mod. Sp. duplicó < Lat. duplicavit, and 266 betait [mod. vedó] < Lat. vetavit. Here we seem to have indicated two different developments of -avit. Baist, Grundriss I. 913, says: "In the Glosses of Silos, betait vetavit beside duplicaot, tolliot, corresponds to mod. North Aragonese costé [i.e. -dít > -é] etc., as also to the Provençal." Accordingly, just as we find western (Leonese) traits in our Glosses, we seem to find eastern ones also. Baist, ibid. p. 895, finds the final t of tolliot etc. surprising, because he does not think that they were forms influenced easily by Latin considerations. But it must be obvious to all who go through the Glosses that the glossator or scribe usually added a -t to all 3d person forms and Latinized as much as possible.

5 17 (240) The Latin text runs here mulier quamvis docta et sancta, "a woman however much (= although) learned and holy." The gloss then means "although she be." — The word macare is both interesting and fraught with difficulty as to its source and development. It is certainly the same as the O. Sp. maguer (cf. Vocab. s.v. mager), which has often been written erroneously as magüer (cf. Cuervo in Romania XXXIII. 255). It seems also to be the Italian magari, magara, which Petrocchi (Dizionario universale della lingua ital.) terms an "exclamation which expresses an affirmation of probability or wish, desire"; i.e., the general sense is 'Yes, indeed!' 'I hope so!' He finds it combined with Dio in Magari Dio, Magaraddio, in uses quite like those of the Span. ¡ojalá! and, what is more in point still, he finds it in the sense of quand' anche 'although,' as in Deve andar di lì: magari ci andasse tutto il patrimonio, i.e. 'even though all his patrimony were concerned.' Diez (Etym. Wtb., p. 381) says, treating of the Italian forms: "Macari, magari, magara (popular), an interjection, 'utinam'; from the Greek μακάριος 'blessed,' 'happy' (mod. Gk. μακάρι), vocative μακάριε. In the old poem of Ciullo [i.e. C. d'Alcamo or Cielo dal Camo] it has the sense of a concessive particle: macara se dolessesi 'even though thou didst grieve.'" He treats also of its appearance in Wallachian (Roumanian), Rhæto-Romance, and mod. Provençal, and continues: "Whether the O. Sp. concessive particle maguar, maguer, maguera (mager de pie 'even though on foot,' Poema del Cid) is from the same source, or, as Sánchez [Poema del Cid, note to v. 755, in his Colección de Poesías Castellanas, etc.] will have it, is a deformation of the French malgré, maugré, may be regarded as still a subject of consideration; a Ptg. maguer of the 12th cent. is given by Santa Rosa [in his Elucidario]. Baist (in Vollmöller's Kritischer Jahresbericht, VIII. i. 213) has very well called attention to a case in Juan Ruiz's Libro de Buen Amor, stz. 1034 (ed. J. Ducamin), of the exclamative use of maguera in Sp. Pribsch, pp. 33-34, has given examples of the forms of the concessive particle in the oldest Sp. texts, and thinks that its diffusion in Old Ptg. was not great. "It is strange," he says, "that neither the Sp. nor the Ptg. archives show a trace of the forms cited." In Bable-Asturian he finds magar and de magar in the temporal sense of desde que, desde cuando. He confesses himself unable to decide whether the Hispanic forms have any relation to the Italian interjections, and he rejects the possibility of a relation with the Fr. maugré.

As we have seen, Petrocchi notes a concessive as well as an exclamative use of the Italian word, and, on the whole, the Hispanic and the Ital. words would appear to hark back to the same source. Menéndez Pidal, Gramática elem., p. 242, has accepted μακάριε for maguer. As to the appearance of the word with and without a final a, cf. such pairs in Sp. as siquier and siquiera, etc. Perhaps, when all is said and done, one may be pardoned for still wondering whether the Gk. etymon proposed is the correct one. The difficulties of semasiology are, perhaps, not insurmountable, but have they been met yet? Then, too, what are the historical conditions back of the adoption and preservation in Romance of such a Greek word? Körting (Lat.-Roman. Wtb., s.v. μάκαρ) refers to the doubts cast by Miklosich on Diez's derivation of the Ital. word from the Oriental word, but he does not himself deal with the Hispanic and other forms mentioned above.

5 18 (244) As the scribe seems regularly to write the Lat. voiceless intervocalic stop for the Romance voiced form of it, consico probably means consigo. Therefore we see that in sigo the sense of the prep. was gone already and cūm > con had to be added. Already, also, we see in si a prepositional form of the pers. pron., as opposed to se the conjunctive obj. form with the verb; cf. Vocab. s.v. sí.

5 19 (260) Judging by the correspondence of suffocato and its Sp. Gloss mortizino (mod. mortecino -a < Lat. mortificinus -a), the latter has here the strong sense of the Lat. word, 'dead' (of animals), 'carrion' (of flesh). This sense remains in Sp., which has, however, developed the further sense of 'dying away,' 'pining,' 'half-dead.' To the assimilation of Lat. -c(e,i), as illustrated here, attention has already been called.

5 20 (272) V. L. acceptor-em (based on the p. p. of accipere) supplanted Lat. accipiter in V. L. Acceptorem > açetór (the acetore of our Gl.) > açtor > O. Sp. açor = mod. azor 'falcon,' 'hawk.' The transition from açtor to açor is due to a simplification of adjacent consonant sounds: $\zeta = ts$ in O. Sp. therefore açtor = atstor, and the combination tst, by dissimilation of the second t, > ts, i.e. ζ ; hence açor: cf. recitare > rezdar, i.e. redzdar, > redzar, i.e. rezar, since O. Sp. z = dz in sound. See Ford in Studies and Notes in Philol., Boston, 1900, VII. 37.

5 21 (295) ferre disappeared in Romance. — In Lat. lĕvāre had the senses 'to make light,' 'lift,' and 'take away.' For O. Sp. levar, mod. llevar (cf. Vocab. s.v. leuar, and the remarks to 4 5), the senses 'to carry,' 'to take away' (this latter especially in the reflexive use in mod. Sp.), prevail. The mod. Sp. levar is used in the limited sense 'to lift (anchor),' 'to weigh (anchor).'

III. AUTO DE LOS REYES MAGOS

The best edition of this oldest monument of the Spanish drama, termed generally the Misterio de los Reyes Magos, is that published by R. Menéndez Pidal, — in the Revista de Archivos, Bibliotecas y Museos and in a reprint, Madrid, 1900, — who indicates earlier editions of importance and gives a description of the manuscript. The latter is now in the Biblioteca Nacional of Madrid (Ith-115). Along with several documents in handwriting of the 12th century, it contains, on folios 67 verso and 68 recto, our Auto in script of the early 12th century. In the ed. of 1900 Menéndez Pidal stated that the script was of the middle of the 13th century, but linguistic and scribal considerations have since led him to deem it of the 12th: cf. his Gramática del Cid, p. 144. Menéndez Pidal includes in his edition a slightly enlarged facsimile of it.

Among the early editions are the unscientific one of J. Amador de los Ríos in his Historia Crítica de la Literatura Española III. 655 ff. (Madrid, 1863), which gave rise to a study of the play and an attempt at an arrangement of the dialogue by the Italian littérateur Arturo Graf, in his Studii drammatici, Turin, 1878, pp. 251 ff.; that of E. Lidforss, in the Jahrbuch für romanische und englische Litteratur XII. (1871), pp. 44 ff., with a distribution of the parts not indicated in the MS., and accompanied by scholarly but improperly founded remarks regarding the date and the language of the piece; that of K. M. Hartmann, Ueber das altspanische Dreikönigspiel, Bautzen, 1879, which textually marks no advance on the edition of Lidforss, but in its study of the language of the document and the question of its date brings up important matters which attracted the attention of A. Morel-Fatio and G. Paris in Romania IX. 464, and of G. Baist in the Zeitschrift für romanische Philologie IV. 443; and the paleographic edition of G. Baist, Das altspanische Dreikönigsspiel, Erlangen, 1887, which is surpassed only by Menéndez Pidal's edition. Reprints of the editions preceding Baist's and Menéndez Pidal's appear in A. Keller, Altspanisches Lesebuch, Leipzig, 1890; in E. Monaci, Testi basso-latini e volgari della Spagna, Rome, 1891; in E. Gorra, Lingua e letteratura spagnuola delle origini, Milan, 1898 (with a useful bibliographical note); and in E. de la Barra, Literatura arcáica, Valparaiso, 1898 (rather unscholarly). For various opinions regarding the nature and the versification of the Misterio, see also F. Wolf, Jahrbuch für romanische und englische Literatur VI. 60 ff.; A. Mussafia, ibid. pp. 220 ff.; M. Beer, Spanische Literaturgeschichte, Leipzig, 1903, I. 100 ff.; E. Mérimée, Précis d'histoire de la littérature espagnole, Paris, 1908, pp. 48 f. See further Von Schack, Geschichte der dramatischen Literatur u. Kunst in Spanien; Creizenach, Geschichte des neueren Dramas; Puymaigre, Les Vieux Auteurs castillans; and Morel-Fatio and Rouanet, Le Théâtre espagnol.

In the Grundriss, II. ii. 400, Baist has characterized the Misterio in succinct terms. "It could hardly fail to be the case that, along with the French ritual [which was adopted by the Church in Spain as a result of the large influx of French ecclesiastics in the 11th century], the dramatic ceremonies appertaining thereto should be taken over. . . . There is preserved, besides the isolated fragment of an Easter play [which Baist thinks Berceo introduced into his Duelo de la Virgen, stz. 178 ff.], only the first half of a Christmas mystery, the so-called Misterio de los Reyes Magos. An inexperienced hand of the first half of the 13th century has written it, in a rather defective way, on the last pages [it is on pp. 67 verso and 68 recto] of a MS. of the Chapter Library at Toledo. Its four scenes (the entrance of the Magi, their meeting one another, the Conversation with Herod, and the Council) show a rich metrical structure in lines of 8, 12, and 6 syllables, such as similar French and Latin pieces present; the prototype must, however, have been in Latin. The rime is somewhat imperfect, the conception and the language clerkly and simple; the place of the performance was in any event the Church. A rather advanced point of view is revealed in the way in which the elements of the liturgy are broken up and distributed; of a primitive character seem to be the lack of a pastoral prologue and the individual entrance of the Shepherds, while the dismissal of the Wise Men before the Consultation of the Jews is peculiar to the piece. . . . In view of the general development of the drama, the model of the piece must have belonged to the 12th century."

Hartmann, in his opusculc referred to above, discusses many matters of importance. He has been successful in disproving the arguments of Lidforss, who, basing himself on the fact that the diphthongs ie and ue are not written in the MS., maintained that the document belongs to the period when these latter were not yet fully developed and is therefore of the second half of the 11th century, if it is Castilian at all (and there are no traits in it, he thinks, belonging to the northeast or the northwest of the peninsula). Lidforss simply confused spelling and pronunciation. He was of the opinion that the diphthongization of Lat. ē and ō to ie, ue did not take place before the 12th century. Our 11th-century Glosses show it already, and other earlier documents display it. Moreover, an examination of our Misterio shows that the scribe writes now e (which may be the etymological spelling) and now i for an original Latin ē: celo < caelum, V. L. celum*; seglo, seclō, < saeculum, V. L. seculum*; but cilo; bine < bēne; uinet < vēnit; quin < quēm; tine < tēnet; quiro < quaero, V. L. quero*; tirra < tērra. So also he writes now o (which may be etymological) and now u for an original Lat. ō: morto < mōrtūm; bono; longa; uostros < vestros, V. L. vōstros*; but pusto < pōsitum, V. L. pōstum*; pudet < potest, V. L. pōtet*; cudo < cōgitat (or cōgitat). These forms show, as Hartmann declares, and as Morel-Fatio agrees (Romania IX. 468), that the Latin vowels in question had changed their sound in Spanish, and had really become sounds of which the first element was i and u respectively. Sometimes the scribe, bothered as to what he should do, held to the etymological vowel: again he wrote a character which rendered more exactly the first part of the diphthong developed out of it. The late Gaston Paris remarked (Romania, l.c.): "cette graphie [i.e. i < ē and u < ō] est surtout intéressante en ce qu'elle paraît bien attester l'ancienne prononciation de ie, uo (plus tard ue) avec l'accent sur la première voyelle: cilo est pour cielo, pudet pour puodet ou puedet. Celo et bono peuvent s'interpréter ou comme graphies latines ou comme indices du déplacement de l'accent." There are good phonological reasons for supposing that the accent, in the development of a diphthong out of a simple vowel, rested originally on the first element of the new sound (cf. the history of the German diphthongs evolved from simple vowels), but it is open to discussion whether the accent, at the time when our Misterio was written down in the extant MS., still remained on that first element. For ie one is tempted to think so — although there is no absolute necessity — in view of the development of Lat. é before ll: castéllum > castiello > castillo. (Were the intermediate stages castiello > castieïlo, i.e. æ^{t} = palatalized l from ll, > castillo, somewhat as lectum > lieit > lit in French? The process would be ie^{t} > ie^{t} > ie^{t} > finally i. But perhaps a stage -iei-, with forward and back assimilating force of i, may suffice to explain the change.)

In so far as uo > ue is concerned, it should be said that Menéndez Pidal, in his Cantar de Mio Cid, Texto, Gramática, etc., Vol. I (Madrid, 1908), pp. 144 ff., argues for uó, with the accent on the second element, in both the Misterio and the Poema del Cid.

Lidforss stressed also the preservation of final t, in forms like pudet and vinet, as indications of the antiquity of our document. But the appearance of this t is due to a Latinizing tendency (Paris, l.c., p. 469, note, thinks it simply archaic and therefore indicative of a pronounced final t in such cases in O.Sp.), as it is in the Glosses: besides, other forms in the Misterio show that the -t is gone: cf. fure < fuert, trae < trahit, V.L. tragit*, tine < tenet, salue < salvet, etc.

Having disposed of Lidforss's phonological arguments, Hartmann seeks to fix somewhat exactly the date of the Misterio by studying the history of the Magi in the Latin dramatic literature of the Middle Ages. Spain does not possess, in so far as the discovered documents are concerned, any early Latin plays of a liturgical nature. France and Germany, however, have examples of the literary tradition concerned. The liturgy being the same in all these lands, and especially in France and Spain, there is every reason to believe that the liturgical dramas, which paraphrase the liturgy, had in Spain a composition not unlike that of French and German pieces. After studying the French liturgical plays or offices, — and the added play of Freisingen, — all of which belong to the 11th and 12th centuries, Hartmann finds that our Auto or Misterio is closest to the Latin liturgical play written at Orleans (12th century). He deems the Orleans document superior to the earlier pieces of Limoges, Rouen, Nevers, Compiègne, and Freisingen. This last alone has the prologue in which the shepherds figure. The Spanish piece, incomplete as preserved, since it breaks off at the point in which Herod is conferring with his rabbis and sages, shows a great advance over even the Orleans play: motivation, action, dialogue, and characterization are all much better. It is especially by a study of the history of the names given in the Spanish piece to the three kings — Caspar, Melchior, and Baltasar — that Hartmann seeks to arrive at a date for the document, and he thinks that there is reason to believe that these names were not definitively attached to the personages until after the mid-point of the 12th century. His view has been accepted by Morel-Fatio (Romania IX. 467), who says: "in order that a text as popular as ours should make an allusion to them, the names had to be universally known and accepted; that takes us perforce to the end of the 12th century." It is a little too much to say that our text is a "popular" one. Besides, Baist has thrown considerable doubt (cf. Ztschr. f. roman. Philol. IV. 455) on Hartmann's arguments as to the late acceptance of the names of the Magi. He believes — and he speaks from a knowledge of details — that at an early date, even so far back as 700, the names began to receive diffusion in Western Europe, and, with seeming good reason, he does not see why a twelfth-century writer in Spain should not be acquainted with them. Menéndez Pidal, Cantar de Mio Cid, Vol. I (Madrid, 1908), pp. 25 ff., also deems the names much older in the Occident and even quotes them in a document of the end of the 7th century, which, however, has them in a more archaic or distorted form. In fact, Hartmann's arguments are not conclusive against an assignment of the Misterio to at least the same period of the 12th century as that in which the Poema del Cid (or Gesta de Myo Cid) was written, and, as we have said above, Menéndez Pidal is of the opinion that on the basis of linguistic and scribal considerations the Misterio MS. is to be placed in the middle of the 12th century.

To the complicated nature of the riming scheme Baist has called attention, pointing out that Latin and other prototypes present the same features. Rime of the rich sort, and not simple assonance, is preferred in the document. Some of the faulty rimes appear due to the scribe.

61 We begin with verses of eight syllables. — Instead of marauila we need maravella (or maraviella), whose e answers better to the Lat. ī of mirabilia, for the rime with strela (= strella). Confusion with the diminutive ending -iello(a) or a contamination of maravella and maravilla will explain a maraviella. The Loores of Berceo, stz. 29, shows maraviella in rhyme with estrella and ella; in his Milagros we see, stz. 327, maravella rhyming with those same words, whereas in stz. 215 we find marabilla rhyming with villa etc. Of course these texts have not been edited in the most critical fashion in the Biblioteca de autores españoles, 57, yet these rimes may all be good and indicative of varying forms of our word. The Aragonese José (ed. M. Schmitz in Roman. Forschungen XI) has, stz. 31, maravella in rime with ovecha (i.e. oveja, ovella), peleja (Arag. pelella), etc.; in stz. 38 it rimes with camella, ella, etc.; in stz. 252, with bella, aquella, etc.

6 2 achesta: ch = k, qu. — strela = strella: l = palatalized l as in l. 34 fulada, etc. The prosthetic e is not needed here after the vocalic ending of achesta: it was required at first only after a consonantal ending of the preceding word syntactically related to it; cf. ll. 19, 37, etc., and l. 36.

6 3 Without synalephe of la e, the line seems too long. In early Spanish, hiatus in verse was more likely than synalephe, and the latter occurred usually only when the final and initial vowels were the same, as in l. 4 que es.

6 6 la: scribal error for las: cf. l. 57.

6 7 uerdad: it is curious that, while we have some three cases of this form in the earlier part of the play, in the latter and greater part it is uertad that appears, as already in l. 10.

6 8 We may read, for the meter, ual and un. After l, in verbal forms as elsewhere, unaccented e could drop.

6 9 nocte: noch, used in the Cid and elsewhere (cf. Vocab.), will improve the meter; in O. Sp. palatal sounds of the sort are occasionally found in the final position. Of course noche had already developed and nocte is only etymological in spelling; cf. v. 27.

6 10 bine: bien, certainly the pronunciation of the scribe, makes the meter good. So in ll. 11, 38, 50, etc.

6 12 Assonance appears here.

6 13 seer: as in l. 25, so here seer seems a monosyllable = ser. Perhaps the poets used now the dissyllabic and now the contracted form according to verse exigencies.

6 14 i: it is curious that, while e < et is the more usual form of the conjunction "and" in O. Sp., the Misterio shows regularly i = y, whether the following word begin (or the preceding word end) with a vowel or not. Cf. Vocab. s.v. et and i. Menéndez Pidal, Gram. elem., 2d ed., p. 241, (and before him Gessner, Das Altleonensische) regarded the Leonese ie and the occasional Old Castilian ie as representing a diphthongization of et in a certain quasi-tonic position, as when adjacent to another atonic word (los cuendes ye los res, 'the counts and the kings'). He thinks, then, that this ye > y before a word beginning with e. It is very doubtful, however, that ét ever had a strong enough accent to lead to its diphthongization. Cf. Staaff, l.c., pp. 195 ff.: for him the Leonese form arose in syntactical and not purely phonological conditions: e was the original form < et; this before a vowel, and especially before the e of the article, became the semivowel y, e.g. e ella > yella; then, by erroneous redivision, ye (l)la, a division due to the tendency to generalize la, lo, etc., which had been developed in various combinations.

6 15 The verse is bad: the omission of por uer suggests itself, but dios would then have to be a dissyllable, which is unlikely: cf. l. 18 etc. There is neither rime nor assonance in 15-16.

6 16 Read acheste.

6 17 Menéndez Pidal notes that the MS. puts a mark of division of the verse after Ala ire. May we not then read (admitting a verse of 4-5 syllables):

Alla iré,
O que fuer, aorallo e.

For the sequence of three rimes, cf. ll. 102-104. — aorallo e = aorallo < aorar + lo (with assimilation of r to l, whence palatalized l) and e 'I have'; 'I have to adore him,' i.e. 'I shall (will) adore him.' In early Span. there was still consciousness of the compound nature of the indic. fut. and cond. (infin. of main verb + the pres. indic. and impf. indic., or the endings thereof, of the verb 'to have'), wherefore the parts are regarded as divisible and the object pronoun could appear between them.

7 22 Is mos a scribal error for mios? Cf. ll. 119, 121, etc. The latter is probably monosyllabic in our document. — on: a scribal error for non.

7 23 The rime shows that we must read tierra.

7 24 qui: perhaps a Latinism for que. — For the meter read paz; cf. 85. — guera = guerra; r scribal for rr as l is for ll: ala for allá.

7 25 Synalephe of a a and contraction of seer > ser give a good verse. — da: seems Lat. de + ad; cf. Ital. da. It is more probably scribal for de.

7 26 For the meter omit in.

7 29 May we read tod for the first todo? Cf. Vocab. s.v. and cf. l. 40.

7 31 Cf. l. 58; both are good seven-syllabled lines. On the basis of 17, 51, and 105, and omitting the not really essential lo (cf., however, 17, 58, 59, 62), perhaps we may read in both cases Al[l]a iré, aoraré.

7 33 There is no line to rime with this.

7 38-39 There is neither rime nor assonance here. — Perhaps que uno should be omitted: in O. Sp. omne had sometimes the value of an indefinite pronoun; cf. Fr. on and early Ital. use of uomo.

7 40 Perhaps we may read tod; cf. l. 29. — The rime with l. 41 is imperfect. Was there a popular mondo < Lat. mündum? As 41 is metrically imperfect, perhaps we may regard 40 and 41 as an interpolation, anticipating the statement as to senior in 42.

7 42 But for 49 and 57, we might be tempted to read de toda gent (cf. Vocab. s.v.); cf. the parallel singular in 43 todo seglo.

7 43 iugara: cf. Vocab. s.v. It is a question whether we must interpret this as judgará. It is true that the usual O. Sp. result of Lat. iudicāre is judgar, but is the loss of the d impossible? Cf. sosegar, which has been referred to V. L. subsedicāre*, and trigo from Lat. trīticum. The mod. juzgar probably owes its z to the influence of juez, O. Sp. juizio (juicio), etc.

7 44-45 non is Menéndez Pidal's resolution of the ñ of the MS., which seems to occur elsewhere in it too. — The relation of these two verses to the metrical and rime structure is not clear. Cf. 131-132. Certainly they correspond well enough to the emotions of the characters concerned at these particular stages of the drama.

8 52-53 strelero: we have Alexandrines here as in other parts of Scenes II. and III. Baist (Ztschr. f. roman. Philol. IV. 450) thinks that he reads estrelero (= estrellero) here: the line calls for that. The facsimile published by Menéndez Pidal shows how bad the MS. is here. — The rime shows quiro = quíero.

8 54-55 The MS. seems to show fairly well the two last syllables of nacida; may we not write it [na]cida? L. 54 is Menéndez Pidal's conjecture, and is not unreasonable. Of course the rime requires maraviela = maraviella. L. 55 is not a good six-syllabled line; la strela would make it one. Cf. the note of Menéndez Pidal: "By a cut made by the binder there were destroyed the words which I restore conjecturally. There can be seen only the top of a d under the l of the strelero of the preceding line; something like a small s a little more to the right; . . . cida under uertad is almost certain."

8 60-62 The MS. is in a poor condition as regards parts of these lines. — In 62 the order of lo is a common one for the O. Sp. conjunctive object pron.; it is often simply enclitic to the preceding word, as here to auedes. Cf. 63 sil = si le, 72 quel = que le, where the pron. is enclitic to a conjunction.

8 64 As Baist says (Ztschr. f. roman. Philol. IV. 450), we must read la strela here.

8 65 The order prouar podremos will give a good Alexandrine half-line, with the allowable unaccented syllable after the accented 6th syllable; cf. 89 and 91.

8 67 Read bien and saberemos for the meter. The latter has been proposed by Lidforss and Morel-Fatio, as well as ofreceremos in 68 and querera in 69. In the last case we might suggest el oro él quera.—In the first half-line of 68 perhaps the conjunction may be omitted between mira and acenso; a comma suffices there.

9 70 Read fur = fuér; cf. Vocab. s.v. fust.

9 73 Perhaps the first half-line should be Andemos tras la strela; cf. 64.—There is no rime for this line; cf. 33.

9 74 te el: one syllable; so que and es in 78.

9 78 The MS. clearly shows fallar here as against the falar of 63, falada of 34, etc.

9 79–81 These three lines recalled to Hartmann certain verses in the Latin piece of Orleans:

Quae rerum novitas aut quae vos causa subegit
Ignotas tentare vias? quo tenditis ergo?
Quod genus? unde domo? pacemne huc fertis an arma?

These Latin verses are obviously from Vergil, Aeneid VIII. 112–114. Hartmann supposed that the author of the Spanish piece and the author of the Orleans play simply used a common source; Morel-Fatio (Romania IX. 467) deems that the Spaniard drew from the Frenchman. Without impugning Morel-Fatio's contention, we may point out that the verbal resemblances between the Spanish passage and the two Latin passages are not very great. From Cañete (ed. of Farsas y églogas de Lucas Fernández, Madrid, 1867) Morel-Fatio derives other testimony to the taking over into Castilian of the Latin plays of France, and especially to the translation from Latin into Castilian, at the end of the 13th century, of the Office of the Shepherds and the Sibyl of Christmas Night, which belonged to the ritual of the French Benedictines.

9 81 Nom would be better than no m'; the m(e) is enclitic to non: non + me > nom(e).—The second half-line has a syllable in excess.

9 82 Have we a combination of a six-syllabled line with Alexandrines, or is the first half-line of 82 lost?

9 84–85 Cf. 24–25 for the rime.—paz is needed here as in 24.

10 89 Perhaps ia = ya may be omitted here and que in 91. Ll. 92, 93, 95, 98, 101, all present greater or less difficulty as regards converting them into six-syllabled lines (or rather seven-syllabled lines from the Spanish point of view, since where the ending is feminine the line has that number of syllables).

10 92-93 ma[ra]uila: the MS. has only mauila without any indication of a contraction; hence Menéndez Pidal puts brackets on his emendation. We need marauila to agree with the strela of 93, which must be rearranged to es nacida una strela (or la strela, which will correct the meter). — By omitting grand, we make 92 a line of seven (six) syllables.

10 94 Read faz. Synalephe is needed in que es.

10 95 A ready correction is not clear, unless we omit carne.

10 96 Perhaps the particle i < Lat. hīc 'here' may be omitted.

10 97 percibistis: a Latinism for percibistes.

10 98 Tredze is Menéndez Pidal's interpretation of the "XIII" of the MS. — 98 and 101 lack each a syllable; in 101 bine is for bien; in 100 there is synalephe in la auemos.

10 101 percebida: in O. Sp. the p. p. conjugated in the perfect tenses with aver (haber) might agree with the direct object. The agreement seems to have been optional; in a sporadic way it continued down into the Golden Age, when it must have smacked of the archaic.

10 105 Read i io ala ire, and put a comma after tornad in 104.

11 109-110 Menéndez Pidal (Cantar del Mio Cid, Gramática, pp. 144-145) thinks that in the Misterio the stage ue of the diphthong from Lat. ŏ had not yet been reached, and would read here muorto and puosto instead of muerto, puesto. The theory has not much evidence back of it for the Misterio. He has developed it chiefly in connection with the Cid and its assonances. It is clear that we have only assonance in 109-110, as also in 121-122, 125-126, 127-128, 134, 136-137.

11 113 caga: scribal for çaga. The scribe does not use ç before e and i, as is so commonly done in many other O. Sp. documents, and has omitted the cedilla in the only case of ça- in the Misterio.

11 115 no lo: the MS. seems to have nolo, which is the better reading for this early period; the redivision, which produced no, is perhaps somewhat later, and non is the regular O. Sp. form in the independent use. Cf. 137.

11 116 ueo: observe the indicative after ata que referring to the future.

11 117 mio: the scribe here uses mio, mios (both monosyllabic) before masc. nouns, and mi, mis (120, 142) before fem. nouns; cf. Vocab. Meos, 122, is a Latinism for mios.

11 118 qui: does this represent el que, or is it a Latinism?

11 121-124 Read escriuanos and estreleros. There is a syllable lacking in 122, 124. In 123-124 we have neither rime nor assonance. Baist (Ztschr. f. roman. Philol. IV. 450) seems to think that 121-124 should be read as two Alexandrines; in which case, as he says, gramatgos, an "einfacher Schreibfehler," rimes with retoricos. For what does he deem gramatgos erroneously written here?

11 127 Read Rei, que te plaz ? etc. — he: here is one of the earliest examples of the use of the word still found in hé aquí etc., in which it appears with imperative or interjectional force. O. Sp. shows also the forms afe and fe, as well as e, ahe, ae. Dealing with afe and fe as existing in the Cid, I have proposed (in Modern Philology I. 49 ff., following clues given by Diez, Cuervo, Bello, etc.) that we see in these forms with f the primitive forms of the word, that we regard afe(vos) as a possible starting-point, and that it may be regarded as habete + vos > avedvos >, by assimilation of the d, avevos >, by dissimilation of the first v, under the possible influence of the interjectional á fé 'on my faith,' afevos. Under the influence of á fé, it was possible for the afe of avevos to be divided into a + fe, whence a new interjectional and demonstrative fe. In all this there is much assumption and mere suggestion, and Pietsch (Modern Philology II. 197 ff.) properly challenged many of my remarks, which were intended, however, only to raise the whole question. The semasiology of the case is clear enough: 'have ye here,' 'behold.' The assimilation of the d to the v following, Pietsch believes unlikely, as there are no similar cases of dv > v (I have referred to other possible cases of dl > ll, and there are also septimāna > setmana* > O. Sp. sedmana > mod. semana, and advocatum > abogado). It is true the dv generally occurred only in combinations in which the v was first lost and then later the d: amadvos > amados > amaos (although the v may have gone first in other combinations, e.g., dígovos, ámovos), but the vos there was an atonic object pronoun. In habete vos it is the vocative (if not nominative or ethical dative). Could not the v of this latter maintain itself and could there not have occurred the more usual process of assimilation, that of the first consonant to the second? Baist (in Vollmöller's Kritischer Jahresbericht VIII. i. 211) thinks the dissimilation of v to f in avevos* "a strange one." Perhaps it is unparalleled, for v-v like b-b, where dissimilation has occurred, might be expected to result in the total loss of one of the v's; but the possible influence of the interjectional á fé must not be overlooked. However, all that I have said lacks absolute proof, as does also the derivation from the imperative of vidēre, already suggested by Diez. Pietsch argues for the priority of our he, occurring here in the Misterio and listed by him for other early documents. This would represent an imperative sing. of habere, viz. habe, or rather V. L. hae* (contracted even as habes, habet, were to has*, hat*), whence (h)e, with meaningless h, which also was often not written in O. Sp. Ere long this assumed interjectional demonstrative use, and then, its true verbal origin being forgotten, its association with a plural vos was not impossible. O. Sp. ahe, ae he deems to have the same relation to (h)e that ahí has to O. Sp. (h)i (the y of hay). It remains for Pietsch to dispose of the Cid forms with f. Here, regarding the fe as the important form, he declares that all the Cid forms (between 20 and 30 cases) are dialectal, i.e. are Asturian. Asturian has retained original Lat. initial f, and occasionally seems to change, he says, forms having initial Lat. h to forms with f. Now, as Vulgar Latin h meant nothing, this seems to mean a change of nothing to f. This part of Pietsch's argument is not supported. Menéndez Pidal in his study of modern Leonese-Asturian seems to find no cases of f- for Lat. h- words; cf. El Dialecto Leonés, p. 29. In seeking to find Asturian dialect forms in the Cid, Pietsch is ranging himself on the side of Cornu, who has argued therefor on the basis of fuller article-forms and certain assonances found in the Cid. But Menéndez Pidal (Gramática del Cid, p. 36 et passim) controverts Cornu's arguments, and there seems to be no basis for the supposition that the Cid is Asturian. For the Cid I am still of the opinion that afevos is the original form, since it serves to correct verses into the romance type, as I believe with Cornu (Études romanes dédiées à G. Paris; Romania XXII. 153; Ztschr. f. roman. Philol. XXI. 461) that the Cid was originally composed in romances (8 or 7 syllables + 8 or 7 syllables, i.e. in two half-lines): see per contra Menéndez Pidal, Gramática del Cid pp. 80 ff.

After all is said and done, the origin of he, fe, etc. remains in doubt. Menéndez Pidal, in a recension of the article in Modern Philology I, states his belief in an Arabic origin, but has not cited any Arabic form. As in line with this early appearance in the Misterio of he as a form in h- resulting from a form fe with f-, we may cite the prohio (pro- + a simplex having initial h-) of l. 12, the hata of l. 26 beside the ata of l. 116, all of which suppose an original initial f- which aspirated, or an Arabic initial strong aspiration which O. Sp. generally denoted by f-. Pietsch knows these forms, but is disposed to disregard them. Cf. further Menéndez Pidal, Gramática del Cid, pp. 173 ff.

12 129-135 We seem to have lines of different lengths riming or assonating together.

12 134 Read estos.—rees: represents the proper development of Lat. rēges, whose g should drop; cf. Vocab. s.v. .

12 136 uo: This is for uos = vos; cf. Vocab. s.v. uo.

12 137 Read scripto after the word ending in a vowel; fallo is a conjecture of Menéndez Pidal; the scribe ran escripto on after nolo.

12 138-147 G. Paris proposed (Romania IX. 469, note 2) the present distribution of these lines, which Lidforss had arranged otherwise.

12 138 Hamihala: this word, apparently interjectional in force, has not yet been explained satisfactorily. Morel-Fatio (Romania IX. 469) would connect it with the preceding speech as Lidforss did. He interprets then: "In truth I tell you, my Allah (God) has not written it," and then says: "It matters little that a rabbi is speaking, and the presence of the initial h is of no importance." Of course he has not Menéndez Pidal's conjectural fallo. But, as the latter points out, the MS. has the usual mark denoting the end of a verse after escripto. The enjambment is not likely. G. Paris, l.c., also objects to Morel-Fatio's interpretation: does not think that the combination mi Ala has ever been found, or that any one would ever think of having a rabbi invoke Allah. He agrees with Hartmann in finding the verse a mangled one. May we possibly read Ha Mihala! 'Ah, Michael!' (or whatever Mihala represents), assuming that we have here the name of the rabbi addressed?

12 146 Synalephe in la auemos.

IV. LA GESTA DE MYO ÇID EL DE BIUAR

The title which we use is derived from l. 1085, which clearly marks the beginning of a new division of the poem. No less appropriate would be the term Cantares de Myo Çid, for the designation Cantar is used in l. 2276, which indicates the close of another division of it. The name most employed is Poema del Cid. For brevity's sake "the Cid" may suffice as a reference.

As for certain other O. Sp. documents, so for the Cid there is extant but a single MS., which is now in the possession of the family of the Marqués de Pidal. It is said to have been sent across the Atlantic at one time, in order that Ticknor, the historian of Spanish literature, might examine it. The MS. is in a handwriting of the 14th century. Near the end of it (ll. 3732-3733) it is stated: "Per abbat le escriuio en el mes de mayo, En era de mill. e. CC. XL. I. años." Per Abbat is generally considered to have been the scribe to whom we owe the MS.; the date 1245 of the era corresponds to 1207 of our calendar, but in the vacant space between the second C and the X it is deemed probable that another C has been erased, and that the real date of the completion of the MS. is 1307. It belongs, therefore, to the early 14th century. The first printed edition of it is that prepared by T. Sánchez for his Colección de poesías castellanas anteriores al siglo XV, Vol. I (Madrid, 1779). The most important reprint of this is that of Janer in Vol. LVII of the Biblioteca de Autores Españoles (Madrid, 1864). Based directly upon the MS. was the edition of K. Vollmöller (Halle, 1879). This has given way to the best edition now accessible, that of R. Menéndez Pidal (Madrid, 1900). To this same scholar we owe, as a companion volume to his edition of the text, a very valuable Gramática dealing with it (Madrid, 1908), in which will be found a wealth of information regarding all things appertaining to the poem. A Vocabulario is to follow. A splendid édition de luxe, with an English translation and much apparatus criticus, is that of A. M. Huntington (New York, 1897-1903). Resort to the MS. was apparently also had by Damas-Hinard for his edition (Paris, 1858), accompanied by a juxtalinear French translation and a large amount of annotation of a lexical and geographical nature, etc. The South American savant A. Bello, who died in 1865, prepared a text (modified to suit his views): this, with a Glosario, notes, etc., appeared in Vol. II of his Obras Completas (Santiago de Chile, 1881). To the Swedish student of Spanish philology, E. Lidforss, we are indebted for an edition with an introduction and notes, including a discussion of the prosody of the document (Lund, 1895). Extracts from the poem have been given by Keller (in his Altspanisches Lesebuch), by E. Gorra (Lingua e letteratura spagnuola delle origini, Milan, 1898, pp. 187 ff.; with a good bibliographical note), by A. Restori (Le Gesta del Cid, Milan, 1890; contains extracts also from other documents dealing with the story of the Cid), by A. Zauner (in his Altspanisches Elementarbuch, Heidelberg, 1908, pp. 136 ff.; his text follows that of Menéndez Pidal), etc.

Into the literature dealing in extenso or only partially with the Cid we may not enter here. An excellent statement of the essentials is given by G. Baist in his Spanische Literaturgeschichte (Gröber's Grundriss II. ii. 395 ff.); a full and clear exposition is that of Menéndez Pidal in his precious Gramática of the Cid, already mentioned. For a very useful bibliography, with entries coming down to a recent period, cf. J. Fitzmaurice-Kelly's Littérature espagnole (Paris, 1904, pp. 452-453). There references are given to the publications of Wolf, Cornu, Dozy, Koerbs, Restori, Milá y Fontanals, Beer, Hinojosa, and others.

As preserved, the MS. is in a deplorable state, especially as regards the versification of the poem. There are also some lacunæ, for the first page of the MS. is missing and within it two other pages are wanting. The losses consist then of some verses preceding l. 1 of Menéndez Pidal's edition, and some more following l. 2337 and l. 3507. In extent they are not great, and the substance of them can be supplied from other documents, especially from the O. Sp. Chronicles that treat of the Cid. In the course of time various copyists have altered the original readings here and there in the MS., but by the use of reagents Menéndez Pidal has usually been able to decipher the words of the scribe Per Abbat.

In the opinion of Baist and Menéndez Pidal the MS. is not the first in which the poem was set down; it is clearly a copy, as certain errors (e.g. lapsus calami) show, of a preceding MS.; and the theory of Cornu (cf. his articles in Études romanes dédiées à Gaston Paris, Paris, 1891, and in Symbolæ Pragenses) that the extant MS. represents something written down from memory is untenable. Several copies doubtless intervened between our MS. and the original composition of the poem. This is generally put at about 1140—or half a century after the death of the hero—on the basis of general linguistic conditions, which seem to indicate the 12th century, and in consonance with certain fairly definite references in the body of the poem and in other works not much later than it.

To the fact that the versification of the Cid is in a sorry state we have already adverted. It is very obviously in assonance, as is the case with so many of the Old French epic poems; but the lines—and there are somewhat more than 3700 of them—vary greatly in length at times, some being very short and others very long. This has led some persons—and Menéndez Pidal is now of their number—to think that the poet was a rimester who had no idea of metrical regularity. In reply to this it may be said (cf. Modern Language Notes XXIV. 86) that the poet of the Cid—and there is a unity of composition in the work which implies a single poet for the form represented by our MS.—shows himself otherwise too good an artist to be so ignorant of metrical principles, and that there is no reason to suppose the work a primitive one in the evolution of the Spanish epic tradition or of Spanish poetry. Already, dealing with the Misterio, we have made reference to the theory, to which Cornu has given its greatest development (cf. Études romanes dédiées à Gaston Paris, Paris, 1891, pp. 491 ff.; Romania XXII. 531 ff.; Ztschr. f. roman. Philol. XXI. 461 ff.; Symbolae Pragenses, Vienna, 1893, pp. 17 ff.), that the meter of the Cid is the same as that of the ballads, the romance line, which in the ballads appears as a line of 8 syllables with the stress on the 7th (and with only 7 syllables if the line end with the accented syllable). Each ballad line is really only half of an original long line of 16 (14) syllables, and the long lines all assonated together, while the shorter ballad lines assonate only for the second, fourth, sixth, etc., i.e. only for the second half of the former long line. Now, we have preserved, in a 13th-century form, another long epic on the Cid, the Rodrigo or Crónica rimada del Cid (cf. Baist, Grundriss II. ii. 398 ff.), and we have discernible still in verse form some parts of an epic poem on the Infantes de Lara (cf. Menéndez Pidal, Leyenda de los Infantes de Lara, Madrid, 1896), in both of which the principle of the long line of 8 (7) + 8 (7) syllables prevails. It is this long line that Cornu would regard as the proper verse of the Cid. Upon examination he has found that many lines and half-lines are already true to this type: 8 (7) + 8 (7) or simply 8 (7). By means of corrections based on internal criticism he can restore many more of the same type. On the whole his theory has been regarded as acceptable by many scholars, while others, e.g. Restori (in Propugnatore XX), Lidforss, etc., think that the original meter was the Alexandrine. It is true that there are many good Alexandrines in the poem, but the difficulties of the situation are met if we say that a redactor, taking a poem written originally in the long 8 (7) + 8 (7) lines, made it over in the 13th and 14th centuries — the time when the Alexandrine was used so largely in the didactic and religious verse of Castile and for epic purposes in the Fernán González — into Alexandrines as well as he could. He had but poor success. Some of the lines and half-lines he had to leave as they were; others he distorted without making Alexandrines out of them; in some other cases — and these are not the majority — he produced good Alexandrines. Baist (Grundriss l.c.) believes in Cornu's theory and thinks that the 8 (7) + 8 (7) type was evolved out of the French Alexandrine. Paris (Journal des Savants, 1898) believes it of antiquity in Spain: he says, "the verse of 14 (16) syllables, which continues the trochaic tetrameter of popular Latin, had doubtless maintained itself in Spain, and there was adapted to this national measure the French system of laisses made up of long verses having the same assonance."

It is an attractive theory that the measure of the popular Latin trochaic tetrameter, found in soldiers' songs during the classic period, was the basis of what even Menéndez Pidal (Gramática del Cid, p. 101) admits as probably a popular form in ancient Spain.

Not only have we these longish lines in the Cid, but we have them arranged in irregular stanzas, such as in the French epic (chansons de geste) are called laissez or tirades. The stanzas may embrace but a few lines, they may comprise a hundred or more. The lines of each stanza (laisse, tirade) are bound together by assonance, i.e. by vocalic rime, independently of consonantal agreement, as a glance at our extracts will show. The assonances are in a fairly good condition, wherefore Menéndez Pidal (l.c., p. 103) has argued that assonance was developed earlier in Spain than the metrical principle; for this, however, there is no proof. A study of the assonances and of the theories based on them has been made by several scholars; cf. those cited by Menéndez Pidal, and also by A. Coester (in Revue hispanique XV). Baist and Menéndez Pidal have opposed the theory based in part upon certain assonances in o, ue, that our poem was written in Asturian. Menéndez Pidal, following a theory already put forth by Fitzmaurice-Kelly (Littérature espagnole, p. 48), has tried to fix the region to which the poet belonged, and finds that he is acquainted at first hand — as his itineraries and descriptions of places show — only with the region between Medinaceli and San Esteban de Gormaz, i.e. in Castilian territory not far from Aragon. This region was under Aragonese dominion for part of the 12th century, yet our poem displays no Aragonisms; it is in Castilian. Cf. Coester, l.c., for a theory that the poem as preserved represents a reduced form of the original document. On the other hand, Menéndez Pidal (Gramática del Cid) thinks that the poem is substantially the original epic.

Paris, in the passage quoted above, says that to the national measure there was adapted the French system of laissez. This means that he regards the Spanish epic, as we know it, as one modeled on the French epic (chansons de geste). This may certainly hold true for the Cid and other Spanish epics, especially for that of Bernardo del Carpio, which, as Milá y Fontanals has made clear (in his Poesía Heroico-popular Castellana, Barcelona, 1896) is, in so far as the hero is concerned, a transformation of the Chanson de Roland, or rather of the latter's hero. There are elements of the Cid that recall others of the Roland; cf. especially the part played by the militant bishop Gerónimo in the Cid with that of Turpin in the Roland. The pilgrims from France who were constantly visiting Santiago de Compostella in the peninsula, and the knights who, from the 11th century on, came into Spain to aid the Spaniards in reconquering the land from the Arabs, brought with them their epic poems and their minstrels, and from them the Spaniards could gain an early knowledge of the French epic; cf. the Légendes épiques of J. Bédier (Paris, 1908 ff.) on the importance, for epic genesis, of these wanderings of pilgrims and soldiers. Of course this theory, holding good, as it doubtless does, for a good part of the extant Spanish epic matter, should not preclude the possibility of a purely native epic, exemplified possibly in the Fernán González story and even in that of Roderick the Goth. There is much uncertainty, however, in this regard. What is certain is, that any theory according to which the Spanish epic grew out of antecedent epico-lyric ballads (a theory exploited with debatable success for the Greek and the German epic traditions) is hardly true. The oldest epic ballads preserved in Spanish are later than the epic period, and seem to derive from the epics or from the Chronicles dealing with the epic heroes.

In so far as its contents go, our poem on the Cid deals with his banishment from Castile, where he was the most powerful baron, by his overlord Alfonso VI, the King of Leon and Castile. He had offended that monarch and was therefore driven forth. He betook himself to the territory occupied by the Moors, and there, joined by many free lances who came from Castile to help him, he was able to take many Moorish strongholds, and finally to establish himself in Valencia as a virtually independent ruler. Then, after a reconciliation between himself and King Alfonso, there were arranged by the latter the marriages of the Cid's two daughters with the Aragonese Infantes de Carrión. These proved to be cruel husbands as well as poltroons, and, because of the gross insults which they inflicted upon his family honor, the Cid sought vengeance from the monarch. The Infantes were compelled to fight in the lists against the Cid's champions, and were ignominiously overcome. The poem closes with an announcement of the coming second marriages of the Cid's daughters, really historical marriages as opposed to the former fictitious ones, for now the poem deals with the union of the ladies in question with the heirs to the kingdoms of Navarre and Aragon. As a result of these second marriages, the royal house of Spain is of the Cid's kindred. So the poem states, l. 3724:

Oy los rreyes d'España sos parientes son.

With the element of history in the Cid — and it is no slight one — there has been blended much that is pure poetic fiction. This is due to the poet's tendency, as a good Castilian, to laud the virtues and prowess of a great Castilian noble, who represented Castilian aspirations and efforts at a time when Castile was still subject to the overlordship of the hated Leon, as was the case under Alfonso VI. On the various documents treating of the historical Cid see Baist, Grundriss II. ii. 395 ff. First mentioned in 1064, he was a doughty warrior under Sancho II of Castile and helped the latter to dispossess his brother — later his successor — Alfonso, whence the latter's hatred of the Cid, which was intensified when the Cid, at the head of a body of nobles, compelled Alfonso to swear that he had no part in the murder of Sancho before the walls of Zamora in 1072. Although married to the king's cousin Ximena (the Chimène of Corneille's Cid), the Cid was banished by Alfonso in 1081. Then he spent some time, with a following of free lances, in serving this or that Moorish princeling against an enemy, and even fought against a Christian antagonist in the person of the Count of Barcelona, until finally in 1094 he took Valencia from the Moors. He died in 1099. According to Baist (Grundriss, l.c., p. 396), "the first half of the poem, from the banishment to the taking of Valencia, is rather a piece of biography carried through in epic fashion; it became an epic through the addition of a wholly fictitious tradition, the marriage of the Cid's daughters to the Infantes of Carrion." In the opinion of Menéndez Pidal (l.c.) the author of this poem was a mere minstrel with little knowledge of the leading historical facts of the Cid's life, and interested chiefly in keeping alive a certain local legend relating to his daughters. With this view it is perhaps unwise to agree fully, yet the marriages are certainly very important for the poet. For objections to the view cf. Modern Language Notes XXIV. 83 ff. See also the interesting chapter Le Poème de mon Cid, in Menéndez Pidal's Epopée castillane, Paris, 1910.

As has been stated above, the first page of the MS. is missing. It described the preliminaries of the Cid's departure into exile from his native place Bivar. In our opening line he is departing from Bivar and looking back regretfully at it.

The first laisse extends from l. 1 to l. 9. Its assonance is á-o.

13 1 Delos: the modern division of words developed syntactically, as for Lat. de + illos > de ellos > dellos > de (l)los, is not regularly observed in the Cid or in O.Sp. generally. Moreover, the scribe often divides words erroneously here, and again he erroneously runs them together. — sos: the poss. adj. is here combined with the definite art., as often in O. Sp. — oios: the i = j. In O. Sp. script i stands for i, j, or y. — The second half-line, tan . . . lorando, is of the ballad type, 8 (7) syllables, and so is the second half of l. 2. According to Cornu's very reasonable theory, the second half-lines, containing as they do the assonating words, and therefore commending themselves to the memory of scribes and all others, are likely to preserve their integrity better than the first half-lines.

13 2 cabeça: cf. Vocab. s.v. In O. Sp. ç denoted a voiceless dental sibilant sound = ts, while z denoted properly in the intervocalic position a voiced dental sibilant = dz, as in uazias, l. 4. Before a consonant and at the end of a word z = ç in value. Cf. Ford, The Old Spanish Sibilants (in Studies and Notes in Philol., Boston, 1900). — los = the palaçios of the Cid, which he was leaving.

13 6 The Arabic title Cid = 'Lord' would seem to indicate the respect in which the Moors held the hero. — mucho: this is practically an instrumental use of the adverb. Cf. F. Hanssen, De los adverbios mucho, mui i much (in Anales de la Universidad de Chile, 1905, p. 30): "The adverb which modifies the verb has invariably the form mucho. Everywhere there is said mucho amaba. . . . When the adverb is separated from the adjective, participle, or adverb which it modifies, mucho is used: ca mucho auie grandes cuydados (Cid). . . . This construction is much used in the Poema del Cid; in the other documents [i.e. of O. Sp.] examples are not lacking, but they are exceptional." Cf. the same scholar's Dos problemas de sintaxis (in the Anales, 1907). Of course Lat. multum is here developed in an emphatic and not in an atonic proclitic position: hence it should have its full form mucho as distinguished from mui (mu), which properly can stand only before adjectives, passive participles, and adverbs.

13 9 buelto: on the use of b and v in O. Sp. cf. Cuervo (Revue hispanique II, and in the Notes to his edition of Bello's Gramática). The scribes often wrote b for either initial b or initial v of Latin origin; in the intervocalic position they preferred u (= v) or v for the Sp. results of both Lat. b and v; cf. beuir, bevir, < Lat. vivere, V. L. vivire*.

13 10 From here through l. 14 the assonance is in ié-a. This particular laisse has no é-a. — pienssan = piensan. After n and l (cf. falsar) the s is often written double in O. Sp. The reason thereof is not clear. Were the l and s pronounced far enough forward in the mouth, i.e. with so marked a dental quality, as to convert a following s into a sound almost that of ts (written ç in O. Sp.), and did the scribe protest against such a change of the s by writing ss which meant a clear voiceless s?—aguiiar = aguijar; cf. Vocab. The i after the u has not been explained yet, any more than the diphthong ui of French aiguille. Cf. Cornu in the Grundriss, I, 2d ed., p. 934, note 3.—Riendas: the scribes often denoted the reënforced (double) r sound by writing a capital in the initial position. Sometimes they wrote rr initially as well as in the intervocalic position or after certain consonants.

13 11 Biuar: Bivar, the Cid's native place and fief, was not far from Burgos.—corneia = corneja. The Cid seems to have lent much credence to augury. His enemy, the Count of Barcelona, is said, in the Crónica General, to have written a letter taxing him with this superstition. References to augury occur in the poem also in ll. 859, 1523, 2366, 2369, 2615. Menéndez Pidal (Leyenda de los Infantes de Lara, p. 8, note) gives information and references as to the widespread belief in augury in Spain and southern France. See likewise Restori (Gesta del Cid, p. 28).

13 12 1a: this is the pers. pron. obj., enclitic to ouieron.

13 14 Albrīgia: the Arabic etymon generally cited for this word (cf. Vocab.) is not satisfactory. Baist (Roman. Forschungen IV. 408) doubts it. Cf. Ford, The Old Spanish Sibilants (Boston, 1900), p. 64.—Albarffanez: Álvaro Fánéz (or Fánéz?) was a doughty warrior of the Cid's time, and survived him by some fifteen years. In the poem, the Cid calls him his "right arm" (l. 753 etc.), and he really figures as the chief lieutenant of the hero. So also in a Latin poem on the taking of the town of Almería from the Moors in 1147—the Latin poem was probably written shortly after the event—he is celebrated as only second in importance as a fighter to the Cid. Historically it does not seem certain that Álvaro Fánéz was closely associated with the Cid.

The Latin poem just mentioned is interesting in that, written about the middle of the 12th century, it states that the deeds of the Cid were already in song, and the presumption is that the Poema del Cid is meant. It says (ll. 220 ff.):

Ipse Rodericus, Mio Cid saepe vocatus,
De quo cantatur quod ab hostibus haud superatur,
Qui domuit Mauros, domuit comites quoque nostros, Hunc [i.e. A.F.] extollebat, se laude minore ferebat.
Sed fateor verum, quod tollet nulla dierum, Meo Cidi primus fuit, Alvarus atque secundus.

And this Roderick, often called "my Cid" (my lord), about whom it is sung that by his enemies he was in no way overcome, who conquered the Moors, and also conquered our Counts [it is an Aragonese poet who speaks, and he means the Count of Barcelona, twice defeated by the Cid, according to traditional accounts], extolled him [Álvar Fánez], and termed himself less praiseworthy. But I acknowledge the truth, which no course of time shall obliterate, Meo Cidi was first and Álvar second.

It was apropos of a descendant of Álvar Fánez, who played a part in the taking of Almería, that the Aragonese poet felt prompted to write the verses cited.

The doubling of f in Albarffanez may seem strange. Fánez must have been clearly the patronymic here, and therefore the ff is initial. Did the doubling of the f indicate a desire to retain the real f sound, as against the ordinary popular process of changing initial Latin f to h- (originally an aspiration and now nothing)? The doubling may have conveyed the sense of reënfacement. Ordinarily the Cid has Albarfanez. On Spanish names cf. J. Jungfer, Über Personennamen in der Ortsnamen Spaniens, etc., Berlin, 1902, and W. Meyer-Lübke, Romanische Namenstudien, Vienna, 1904 (in Sitzungsberichte der Akademie der Wissenschaften, Vol. CXLIX). For the patronymic ending -ez, -az, as a Latin genitive, see Jungfer, p. 15.

13 15 en traua: scribal for entraua = mod. entraba. — There seems to be no assonance for en traua, but l. 16 is really two lines written as one, and should end with leuaua. The rest forms a new line, which we may call 16 a. The laisse á-a is then limited to two lines only. The chances are that the original poem had other verses in this same laisse: a system of compression has eliminated them; cf. Coester, l.c. Does the uarones of 16 a make a good assonance with ó of ll. 17-20? Menéndez Pidal (Gramática del Cid, p. 116) thinks that the poet assonated ó-e with ó and á-e with á. It is to be remarked that the sense, the meter, and the assonance of 16 a are satisfied with la mugier e el uaron instead of mugieres z uarones.

13 17 son: ser and estar were not kept apart, with respect to the idea of place, in O.Sp.; cf. Ford, *Sedere, Essere and Stare in the Poema del Cid (in Modern Language Notes XIV).

13 18 ayuen = avien = avian = mod. habían. As in l. 6 auie, 16 exien, we see here, and in many cases in the poem, the impf. ending -ia, -ian changed to -ie, -ien. The weakening of the ending -ia, -ian seems to be a current O.Sp. phenomenon. Various articles and remarks have been written on it by Haanssen, Sobre la formación del imperfecto, etc. (Santiago de Chile, 1894), Sobre la pronunciación del diptongo ie, etc. (ibid., 1895), Das Possessiv-Pronomen in den altspanischen Dialekten (Valparaíso, 1897); by Gassner, Das altspanische Verbum (Halle, 1897); by Baist (in Kritischer Jahresbericht der roman. Philol. IV. i. 307); by Pietsch, Preliminary Notes on Two Old Spanish Versions of the Disticha Catonis (Chicago, 1902); by Zauner (in Literaturblatt f. germ. u. rom. Philol. XIX and XX); by Porębowicz, Revision de la loi des voyelles finales en espagnol (Paris, 1897); and by Fitz-Gerald, Versification of the Cuaderna Via (New York, 1905, pp. 68 ff.). Cf. also Menéndez Pidal, Gram. elem. (2d ed., pp. 212 ff.). Fitz-Gerald sums up the findings of all the investigators: cf. l.c., p. 84: "Hanssen, Gassner and Pietsch prove that there was an O.Sp. paradigm -ta, -iēs, -iē, -iēmos, -iēdes, -iēn [i.e. a weakened to e in all forms but the 1st sg., and the accent shifted to the e in those forms]. Zauner proves, in agreement with Baist, that there was an O.Sp. paradigm -ta, -tes, $\begin{cases} -te \\ -ta \end{cases}$, -iēmos, -iēdes, -iēn [i.e. with e in all but the 1st sg. and with the accent retained on the i, as in mod. Sp.]. Hanssen and Pietsch admit as a doublet to their 3d -iē a form -ta. Porębowicz calls attention to the fact that there is much evidence in favor of the forms -tas, -tes, -tamos, -temos, -tan, -ten." Fitz-Gerald finds also an -ie for the 1st sg. In spite of all that has been written upon the matter, it cannot be said that all the evidence has been examined; and, besides, corrupt or badly edited texts have been given undue weight among the material used. The change of -ia to -ie in all the forms seems clear (although not so frequent for the 1st sg.), and the forms with a maintained themselves beside those with e. There seems to be evidence in favor of the shift of accent to the e, especially in the forms in which a consonant followed the e (cf. Fitz-Gerald, p. 87, sabiēmos rhyming with auēmos, and podriēdes, a conditional with impf. ending, rhyming with temēdes). That the consonant determined the -ia > -ie seems phonologically unlikely in the cases concerned, in spite of what Hanssen and Zauner say. Granting the endings -iēmos, -iēdes, etc., may we not rather opine that the analogy of other past tenses occasioned the change? The pret. indic. in O.Sp. showed in the 2d and 3d conjugations not only the regular -imos, -istes endings, but also -iēmos (cf. Cid, 1116 partiēmos, 1117 pudiēmos) and -iēstes (Cid, 3260 descubriēstes, 3265 firiēstes): these latter endings reflect the analogy of the 3d pl. -iéron and also of the impf. subj. forms in -iēsse etc. The combined influence of -iēmos, -iēstes, -iéron, -iēsse (and in the 1st and 3d sg. it seems that -iēsse could become -iēs, cf. toviēs of Marden's Fernán González, so that we have an impf. indic. form ending in -iés like the impf. indic. 2d sg.), etc., provides a possible factor in the change of the impf. indic. endings which we should not ignore. The phonological change of a > e in Castilian is not very likely unless a palatal follow the vowel. In dialectal mod. Sp. -ie, -ies, etc. may still be heard in certain localities and -ié, -iés, etc. in others, all as impf. indic. endings; cf. Menéndez Pidal, Gram. elem. (2d ed., p. 214). Through the analogy of -ía, -ías, etc. the O. Sp. -iē, -iēs, etc. might become -ie, -ies.

13 19 dizian: the first i corresponds properly to the ī of Lat. dūcere, V. L. dūcīre*. It is dissimilation from the accented i following that explains O. Sp. dezían, mod. decían, just as it does dezir and other forms.

13 20 si . . . Señor: an optative use: 'Oh, if he only had a good lord!' 'Would that he had,' etc.

13 78 ff. Here comes the trick played upon the Hebrew bankers of Burgos, while the Cid is encamped not far from that city. The incident is narrated with great zest, a zest which is easily understood when we remember the traditional Spanish hatred of the Jews, who really seem to have been allies of the Arabs in the subjugation of Spain. But the poet, it is to be observed, does not let our hero appear here as a bare-faced swindler. The Cid says (cf. ll. 84 and 95) that he does the deed against his will and because just now he has no other way of raising the money needed to pay his men and obtain provisions. The 13th-century Crónica general of Alfonso X — which records both historical fact about the Cid and also the contents of the songs about him — makes him say (ed. Menéndez Pidal, p. 524): sabe Dios que esto que lo fago yo amidos; mas si Dios me diere consejo, yo gelo emendare et gelo pehare todo ('God knows that I do this in spite of myself; but if God gives me counsel — i.e. shows me how — I will make amends for it and pay it all back to them'). In the ballads (15th–16th centuries) the moral speculation and the safeguarding of the Cid's character are carried further. Later in the Cid (ll. 1431 ff.), where the hero sends back money to Castile for certain purposes by Álvaro Fáñez, the Jews come to the latter and beg for payment, and he, apparently not having the wherewithal to pay them, promises to "see about it" when he returns to the Cid.

13 78–87 Assonance in á-a, broken in l. 82. But the first part of l. 82 (Bien . . . auer) is not necessary to the sense and may be an interpolation. Instead of the present ll. 82–83 perhaps we may read: E huebos me serie pora toda mi compañía.

13 79 Martin Antolinez: the chronicles appear to treat this trusty follower of the Cid as one of his kinsmen.

13 80 On the position of uos cf. the note to l. 17 of the Misterio.

13 81 Espeso e: in the 12th century the auxiliary could not begin its clause, the present order was the normal one. Cf. Hanssen, Dos Problemas de Sintaxis, p. 22.

14 88-95 Assonance in á-o.

14 89 Rachel z Vidas: the Hebrews formed a firm and are always mentioned together.

14 90 As the Cid was now an outlaw, the King had sent letters to Burgos and elsewhere forbidding loyal subjects to entertain him or sell him anything.

14 91 el auer: in ll. 109 ff. we see what this aver 'wealth' is supposed to be, viz. booty taken from the Moors.

14 92 gelo: cf. Vocab. Baist in the Grundriss, I, 2d ed., p. 910, thinks that gelo (pronounced dʒelo, i.e. with an initial sound like that of English j), through enclitic use after verb forms in -r and -u, changed its dʒ to z (as happened in a few cases in O. Sp.), and then the ze became assimilated in value to the reflexive se, whence the mod. se as a nonreflexive pronoun as well as a reflexive pronoun. But O. Sp. z did not change to s. Moreover, the regular development of O. Sp. dʒ (written as g before e, i, or as j) was > ʒ (i.e. it lost its dental stop element) and then > ʃ (i.e. English sh). When the stage of ʃ or palatal s was reached, then the confusion of the two pronouns occurred. In the late O. Sp. and down into the 16th century the spelling xe (= ʃe) occurs instead of ge. Cf. Ford, Old Spanish Sibilants (Boston, 1900).

14 96-99 Assonance in á-a.—de tarua is a scribal error for detardana. Cf. the frequent use here of the imperfect tense where the modern rule calls rather for the preterit. This use—a popular one—continued in the ballads of the Golden Age.

14 97 Probably an erroneous anticipation of l. 99 by the scribe. It has been pointed out that Martín Antolínez would hardly inquire for Rachel and Vidas before entering Burgos. He needed secrecy in his movements; cf. ll. 106-107.

14 98 castiello: Damas-Hinard (cf. his ed. of the poem, p. 10, note) thought that 'castle' here meant the Jewish quarter. Bello (in his ed., p. 210) says: "There were many rich Jews in Burgos. In 1123 they played a leading part in the rising against the Aragonese, whom they dislodged from the castle of the city; perhaps on this account it was thought that the castle was guarded or inhabited by them."

14 100-173 Assonance in á-o, with several brief interruptions, which are perhaps due to scribal errors in the case of l. 116, which seems corrupt, and l. 124, which might be changed to que el gaño algo or que el algo a gañado.

14 101 ganados: the Cid seems to have both ganar (which remains the mod. Sp. verb) and gañar. Cf. Fr. gagner and It. guadagnare with palatalized n; mod. Sp. has also the noun gañán 'day laborer.' Cf. note to Misterio, l. 101.

14 109 Campeador: one of the current epithets applied to the Cid in the poem. From an early date in his career the Cid is said to have signalized himself in single combats. These we find recorded in the Crónica General of Alfonso X and elsewhere, e.g. in the Rodrigo (Crónica Rimada). For a brief statement of the supposedly historic facts of the Cid's life cf. Restori, Gesta del Cid, p. 257. It is a question whether Campeador may not have also the general sense of 'fighter,' 'campaigner.' — parias: the assumption here is — but, of course, Martín Antolínez is not necessarily stating facts — that the Cid made an incursion into Moorish territory to exact tribute from the Moors, that he made much booty and retained a good part of it. The king had the right to a certain part of all booty taken from the Moors, and the Cid was accused of not having delivered over this part, wherefore the king exiled him. But the Crónica General (ed. Menéndez Pidal, p. 523) gives a different account. It says that the Cid was accused of making an unwarranted attack upon Moorish territory (at Sant Esteuan) which was protected by a treaty between the Moors and King Alfonso, and that the king believed the accusation because he did not like the Cid "on account of the oath which he had exacted from him at Burgos, with regard to the death of King Sancho, . . . and straightway he sent his letters to the Cid to go forth from the realm." The Crónica General, in explaining the aversion of Alfonso to the Cid, is referring to another tradition, to the effect that the Cid, at the head of a body of nobles, had compelled Alfonso to swear solemnly that he had had no hand in the murder of King Sancho, his brother and predecessor. — fue entrado: as often in O. Sp., the perfect tense of a verb of motion is here made with the auxiliary ser.

15 116 Aquelas: i.e. the arcas of l. 113.

15 122 seyen se conseiando: 'were sitting, taking counsel with each other.'

15 124–125 Although we have proposed a possible amendment of 124, both of these lines may be corrupt as to their assonance. As they stand they form a couplet in ó, and some admit a couplet as a good laisse breaking a long laisse. In ll. 127–128 we appear again to have a couplet, now in d-a, breaking the same laisse. Ll. 124 and 127 are manifestly too short.

15 136 Dixo: the verb agrees with the nearer of its two subjects; cf. 139, 146, etc. Of course the two men form a single firm. With the present punctuation we must supply hemos after gelos. Some editors prefer to omit the colon after Vidas and treat the rest of the line as an accusative-and-infinitive construction.

16 152 Afeuos: cf note to Misterio, l. 127.

16 154 estaualos: the conj. obj. pronoun, as an enclitic, is properly joined to the preceding word, as here. In his very capricious writing, the scribe often neglects to join it so. Instead of los we expect les here.

16 163 dieran: the collocation of dieran with auien iurado in the same construction must indicate that it is also a pluperfect indic. here. It is still occasionally used as an indic. pluperfect (its force in Latin) or preterit.

16 170 gozo: the origin of this word is not clear. Lat. gaudium should give Sp. goyo, and this form is found in Aragonese. Cf. Vocab. for other unsatisfactory etyma. May not the word be a loan-word from Provençal? As gauz (beside gaug, jauz) and the verb gauzir (jauzir) it occurs in the language of the troubadours as a stock term descriptive of one of the necessary courtly attributes. The wandering troubadours may have brought it to Spain.

16 174 This line does not assonate fully with the laisse in d-a following.

16 175-190 Assonance in d-a, broken in l. 184 by echaron. This, as Lidforss says, may be placed before .iij. or it may be changed to echaban. The line is bad anyway as to its length.

16 179 que la yo aya: this is an example of the interposition of another word, not an unstressed object pronoun, between the conjunctive object pronoun and its verb. Common in Portuguese-Galician, i.e. in the western part of the peninsula, it appeared not infrequently in older Castilian, yet it was not a feature of that language. The phenomenon is one of interpolation. It has been studied with much care by W. H. Chenery in his Object-Pronouns in Dependent Clauses: a Study in O. Sp. Word-Order (in Publications of the Modern Language Association of America XX. 1 ff.). He finds that (p. 1) "in O. Sp. this phenomenon is almost without exception confined to dependent clauses, i.e. clauses that begin with a subordinating conjunction, a relative pronoun, or a relative adverb with conjunctive force." It is a phenomenon (p. 6) "hardly appearing in Castilian texts before the latter part of the 13th century and then probably due to western [i.e. Ptg.-Galician] influence. . . . It is most prevalent in works of the courtly school of Alfonso X and his successors, and least frequent in works farthest removed from the influence of that school." It should be said here that that courtly school, although made up of Castilians like King Alfonso X and his nephew Juan Manuel, wrote love lyrics and other verse compositions in Portuguese-Galician. Chenery seeks to prove further (p. 7) "that in Castilian there is no enclisis of the pronoun in interpolation, and that the phenomenon is merely one of word-order, influenced by analogies of certain frequent collocations." In the Cid he finds (p. 38) only 8 cases of interpolation of this sort, and one anomalous case, while the cases of the normal order are in a great majority, wherefore he suspects "that the phenomenon is not a feature of the Cid in its original form, but is due to later scribes." He adds: "The proportion of interpolated subject pronouns is much greater than that of examples in other categories [4-9] and it is possible that some of these cases may be original." . . . "After the close of the 14th century," he says (p. 67), "interpolation becomes very rare in Castilian texts; in works of the second half of the 15th century we can regard it only as an archaism inherited from older sources; and in texts of the 16th century the phenomenon is nearly or quite absent." Chenery advances certain theories with respect to the origin of the phenomenon in O.Sp. and contends (p. 91) that "the problem of interpolation in O.Sp. resolves itself mainly into one of the relative order among words of weak stress." He argues that the O.Sp. object pronoun preceding the verb was proclitic to that verb and not enclitic to the word preceding. He does not allow the theory that one weak word may be enclitic to another word of weak stress. On this side, and in other particulars, the discussion should be carried further. For other interesting suggestions regarding the possible rise of the construction, cf. pp. 95-96. In our selections we meet other examples in 42 32 and 54 3. See E. Staaff, Contribution à la syntaxe du pronom personnel dans le Poème du Cid, in Romania XXIII.

16 180-181 da qui (= de aquí), etc.: the words seem to mean 'From here [i.e. this moment] let it be promised to you. If I bring it to you from yonder — the land of the Moors — [you shall have it]; otherwise, you may count upon getting it out of the chests.' Cf. Lidforss (p. 109) for a discussion of the passage. He thinks that there is an anacoluthon in l. 181. Cornu would put a comma after mandada, in which case we translate 'from this moment be it promised to you, if I bring it to you from yonder.' The Cid seems to have other examples of the anacoluthon in a conditional statement.

17 182 The scribe has omitted a passage which described the return of the Jews and Martín Antolínez to the castle of Burgos to get the money; palaçio = castiello of l. 98; but cf. posada in l. 200. — vn = un = una. In O.Sp. un might stand before a fem. noun beginning with unaccented a.

17 185 Note the full form Martino used when it is not proclitic to the patronymic: cf. ll. 187, 199.

17 190 calças = mod. calzas. As Restori says, the price of a pair of hose or breeches is asked here as a commission or fee. The Libro de Alexandre (ed. Morel-Fatio, stz. 1065) has non gano calças 'he derived no advantage.'

17 191–208 Assonance in á-o.

17 192 no lo = nos lo. This may be a phonetical loss of s before l (cf. also 197, nolo), like that which occurs in Portuguese. If this be so, it is probably due to the scribe.

17 1085 Here begins a new division of the poem, which provides a possible name for the whole.

17 1085–1093 Assonance in á.

17 1086 This verse seems to have been misplaced by the scribe. It really belongs to a passage anterior to l. 1085, which describes the defeat and capture of the Count of Barcelona by the Cid and his men and dwells upon the great booty which they took from him.

17 1087 Alucant: cf. l. 1108, a variety of the same name. For the names mentioned in the lines following here, cf. in general Menéndez Pidal, Gramática del Cid, pp. 41 ff., where the itineraries mentioned in the poem are traced out as well as possible. Some of the places have disappeared. See also Restori, Gesta del Cid, p. 254, as to Alucant.

17 1088 duca: probably a scribal error for daca = de acá 'on this side.'

18 1092 Al menar: this is metrically equivalent to a Almenar with synalephe.

18 1094–1097 Assonance in íê-o.

18 1095 Muruiedro = Muravedro. Of the many places mentioned in the poem as captured by the Cid, this is the most important next to Valencia. The poet has inverted the historical order of their capture, for he really took Valencia first, in 1094, and Murviedro only later, in 1098.

18 1098-1121 Assonance in á. In l. 1098 we may read plaz; in l. 1106, aquesto nos (= no se) partirá. In l. 1105 fazen, and l. 1115 salue, we may have d-e in an á laisse: Menéndez Pidal admits this concomitance. L. 1113 is faulty beyond amendment. Cornu would change fazen of l. 1105 to O.Sp. fun (cf. far beside fazer), which is found elsewhere; and Restori suggests simply the rearrangement of the line to Con derecho lo fazen si nos vienen çercar. In l. 1113 Lidforss would change son to se han.

18 1099 viniesen çercar: in O.Sp. the verb of motion often, as invariably now, takes a preposition (á) before the dependent infinitive, but again we find no preposition used. Before infinitives beginning with a- the preposition á is frequently suppressed.

18 1100 Perhaps the comma after noch should be omitted; Lidforss prints without the comma.

18 1111 conpeçaremos: começar is related to O.Sp. pieça 'piece,' empeçar 'begin.' Cf. Vocab. and also Ford, Old Spanish Sibilants, p. 50.

18 1112 enadran: Lidforss derives this from Lat. inaddere, whence O.Sp. eñadir, mod. añadir. He does not explain the ñ of these latter. Cf. Vocab. He translates "ajouteront à notre avantage." The syncope of i in the infin. stem is not rare in O.Sp. for regular verbs. The Libro de Alexandre (ed. Morel-Fatio, stz. 953) has A los que fueren Ricos añadire en riqueza.

18 1116 partiemos = partimos, 1117 pudiemos = pudimos. On these preterit forms, due to the analogy of partieron, pudieron, etc., cf. above, note to 13 18.

18 1117 This line is parenthetical.

18 1121 son a escarmentar: a gerundival construction, 'are to be given a warning lesson.'

19 1122-1126 Assonance in á-a.

19 1125 Oñe and ome, both found in O.Sp. texts, must represent omne; De Lollis probably argues wrongly for ome as a good form (cf. Studi di filologia romanza VIII. 371).

19 1126 pareçra: as a result of syncope ç coming before a consonant was sometimes allowed to stand in O.Sp.; generally, however, the scribe wrote z = ts.

19 1127-1128 Couplet in á-e. This may be admitted as a good concomitance with the following laisse in á extending to l. 1149. Of course

l. 1128 and l. 1134 plaze may be changed to plaz; but ll. 1127, 1138, 1142, cannot be corrected away easily.

19 1132 del otra part: 'from the other side,' cf. 1144. Note el, del, standing even before a feminine adj. not beginning with á.

19 1146-1147 es logar, es alcaz: this es is Lat. ipse > ese > es. It is not necessary to assume (as Meyer-Lübke does, Grammatik der roman. Sprachen I. 522) that it is iste > este > est > es.

19 1185 This line, ending in á-a, does not adapt itself well to the á laisse following. It is preceded also by a series of lines in á. Although á-e may be admitted as a concomitance for á, there does not seem to be sufficient evidence to admit á-a; cf. Menéndez Pidal, Gramática del Cid, p. 114.

19 1186-1191 Assonance in á, with á-e in l. 1188.

19 1186 amaneco amyó (= á mio) Çid: we expect amanecer here in a direct personal construction, with Çid as the subject. Cornu and Lidforss dubiously suggest the suppression of the á. As the line stands, the construction is impersonal, 'it dawned for (dawn came to) my Cid,' etc.

20 1189 cueta: cf. Menéndez Pidal, Gramática del Cid, p. 146: "The word cueta [and he cites other instances of it in Berceo] is an Aragoneseism, being a reduction of cueyta [this he finds in other early documents, including the San Millán of Berceo]; there are also found without the diphthong [ue] coyta [this he finds in Berceo's Santo Domingo; we have it here in Juan Manuel, 55 3] and cuyta [in Berceo etc.], forms likewise dialectal in the treatment of the consonants." He finds cueta < cueyta an Aragoneseism because a following y does not prevent diphthongization in the Aragonese dialect. On p. 76 he says that the Cid possesses few certain examples of Aragoneseisms, and he does not include cueta among them. Diez (Etym. Wtb., p. 103, s.v. coitar, cochar) takes as etymon the V. L. frequentative cōctāre* from Lat. coquēre, cōctum, and points out that Lat. coquēre had already the sense 'to vex,' 'harass,' etc., which is possessed by the O. Sp. cochar, coitar. The noun coita (coyta) he seems to regard as a derivative from the verb. Admitting an Aragonese development for the forms with t, we may say that the oi (oy) forms reflect the treatment in the unaccented syllable (as in coitar, coytar), while the ue < uei forms reflect the treatment in the accented syllable (e.g. cōctat* > cueyta > cueta). In cuyta = mod. cuita perhaps the uy (ui) is due to the influence of cuydar (cuīdar) < Lat. cō(g)ŭŕare (from which came O. Sp. coydar, with a diphthong never popular in Sp.). The closing force of the y may have produced uy, ui, in Castilian itself.

That ney ever gave ui in Castilian is not certain. Of course cochar is the proper development from cōctāre* in Castilian. Coyta, if adopted early enough from Aragonese into Castilian, might also have closed of itself to cuyta, cuita. Restori would derive all the forms mentioned from cogitare.

20 1192-1194 A brief laisse in é-(i)a.

20 1194 sperare: even though written esperaré, this would count the same after le.

20 1195 There is no assonance for this line, nor for l. 1196.

20 1197-1220 Assonance in á with the concomitance in á-e in ll. 1197, 1206, 1213, 1217.

20 1198 quiere: probably a scribal mistake for quieren; cf. yentes in l. 1199.

20 1208 siles, etc.: 'to see if they (any one) would come to succor them [the Valencians].'

20 1212 çibdad: what is the value of the b? Corresponding to Lat. intervocalic v, it should have become the bilabial spirant ɸ, and this, before a consonant after the loss of the intervening vowel (cīv(i)tdtem), should have vocalized as u (cf. audīvit > audiut). Our extracts show also 60 19 çiubdat—whose u can only have been developed from the ɸ (v), and therefore b is erroneously written in it, perhaps through the influence of çibdad—and 60 23 çiudat, which is the mod. ciudad. The writing of final -t, where Lat. had intervocalic -t, shows the O. Sp. unvoicing of consonants at the end of a word. The mod. regular spelling—and the occasional O. Sp. spelling—with -d is due to the analogy of the properly written intervocalic -d of the plural and derivatives. Are we to assume that in çibdad we have at so late a period as the 12th-14th centuries a bilabial ɸ before d? It is not unlikely that in popular use civitas developed at a relatively late date in O. Sp.: la(s) casa(s) was a current term for 'town,' 'city' (cf. Cid, l. 62 en Burgos la casa, 'in the city or town of B.'; l. 1161 Deyna la casa; l. 1550 entrados son a Molina, buena e Rica casa; and again in l. 1232 casa 'city' in apposition with Valençia); villa was also a current term. Note the b also in the half-learned dubda (see Vocab.), where it vocalized and was absorbed by the preceding u.

20 1214 qui en = quien; cf. l. 1218.

20 1216 quinta: the Cid, acting now like an independent ruler, takes to himself the fifth part of all booty, even as, under the old Spanish laws, the rulers of Castile and Leon did.

20 1218 elos : probably e los, 'and the,' as Lidforss believes, and not the full form of the article. Cf. note to 4 27. Cornu (cf. his articles cited above) believes in restoring elle, ella, etc. as the forms of the article in the Cid, but this is a questionable policy to follow.

V. DISPUTA DEL ALMA Y EL CUERPO

This Spanish version of a debate between body and soul — a not uncommon medieval form of the debate — is found written on the back of a document (now in the Archivo Histórico-Nacional) containing a deed of gift made by the Abbot of San Salvador de Oña in 1201. The document is cut on one side in such fashion that the initial letters of each of the 18 lines on it are missing, one letter in the earlier lines and several letters in the later lines. The debate is not complete : it ends in the middle of a phrase. According to Menéndez Pidal, in the Introduction to his edition reproduced here, the handwriting of the fragment is of the very beginning of the 13th century and contemporary with that of the deed of gift (1201) ; it might even belong to the 12th century. Baist (Grundriss II. ii. 401) ascribes the debate to the 13th century and believes that its 74 verses (as printed by Octavio de Toledo) belong to the western part of the Spanish speech domain. He thinks that it renders, although not in a perfect fashion, the six-syllable verses of a French original, and that the original Spanish form of our debate was metrically correct, although it ventured upon certain strong contractions to achieve that correctness. The first edition of our fragment was that of the Marquis Pidal (Madrid, 1856 ; also in his works published in the Colección de Escritores Castellanos, Madrid, 1890). A reimpression appeared in F. Wolf's Studien zur Geschichte der span. u. port. Nationalliteratur (Berlin, 1859, pp. 55 ff.), along with the corresponding verses of the supposed French original, whose likeness to our Spanish text is perfectly obvious. Directly from the MS. an edition was made by F. Monlau, in his Escuela Superior de Diplomática : Colección de documentos, etc. (Madrid, 1865), in which he improved upon Pidal's ed. and even gave better readings, in certain cases, than those appearing in the next edition, that of J. M. Octavio de Toledo in the Ztschr. f. roman. Philol., II. 60. Besides a paleographical edition of the poem, Toledo gave a transcription in heptasyllabic verses or modifications thereof. Toledo also printed two later Spanish versions (the Visión de Filiberto and the Revelación de un Hermitanno) of this same debate form. Finding the versification rude, he admitted that many of the defects might be due to the negligence of the copyist. In regarding the composition as made up of short verses—and not of long verses as printed in our text—he follows Pidal and Wolf. The latter thinks that the Spanish rimer was striving to render the six-syllable verses of his Northern French original and generally succeeded, although occasional verbal difficulties in translation compelled him to lengthen or shorten the line.

Beyond a doubt, the Debate, like the Misterio, is a borrowing from France. It is a form, showing reductions and also additions, of the French (Anglo-Norman) original reprinted by Wolf from an edition of it given by T. Wright in his Latin Poems Commonly Attributed to Walter Mapes (London, 1841). Wright ascribes the French poem to the beginning of the 13th century; but as Menéndez Pidal finds that the MS. of the Spanish fragment is of the very beginning of the 13th century, if not of the 12th century, we should expect to date the French document back in the 12th century, and in fact there seem to be reasons for placing it at the mid-point of the 12th century: cf. Gröber in his Grundriss, II, i, 482, for the literature on the subject. The tradition of the Debate between Body and Soul is an old and widespread one in the Middle Ages. On the forms of it in Latin (the Rixae animi et corporis) cf. E. Du Méril, Poésies populaires latines antérieures au 12^e siècle (Paris, 1843). Among the oldest forms is the Anglo-Saxon of the 10th century, which is in the Exeter Book. Cf. E. Mätzner, Altenglische Sprachproben I. 90 (Berlin, 1867); Kleinert, Über den Streit zwischen Leib u. Seele (Halle, 1880); Romania XX. 1 ff. and 513 ff. The general situation, in so far as our document is concerned, is that of a soul returning to chide its body for the evils that it did.

21 1 In the present state of the MS., sometimes we find perfect rime of the couplets, as here in oir and dezir, again we have assonance, as in ui and fallir, and again all form of rime is missing, as in l. 4 uision and dormient. Menéndez Pidal, like the previous editors, has filled in the lacunæ of the MS., according to his judgment, with the bracketed letters and words. His facsimile, printed with the text here given, shows that the ends of the lines (which are written as though they were prose) are sometimes impaired.

21 2 i: superfluous here, as j is in l. 16. — quedo = cuedo; cf. l. 30 quendes = cuendes.

21 3 esient = exiente with the force of exiendo; amanezient (z = ts, i.e. ç) = amaneçiente for amaneçiendo. Wolf (l.c., p. 58) puts the question whether the appearance of these present participial forms with the force of the usual Spanish gerund in -ando, -iendo is not due to French influence, i.e. are not the forms Gallicisms? The same question suggests itself with regard to 60 17 alegrantes and 26 deziente, as well as the other forms in the present extract.

21 6 Western Spanish (Leonese) showed a tendency to diphthongize ǵ even more than Castilian did in certain cases: hence uemne here, if Baist is right in considering our document as western. Cf. Menéndez Pidal, El Dialecto Leonés, p. 18; Staaff, Étude sur l'ancien dialecte léonais, p. 206.

21 7 ell: note that ell and all appear here only before words beginning with a vowel. — plera: Lat. plōrat should have given only plora, mod. llora. Menéndez Pidal believes the rimes here to be fuōra, plora, i.e., the former word represents here an earlier stage of the development of Lat. ǵ (fōra(s) > fuora > fuera). He says: "The scribe, copying these rimes, rejuvenated the first, putting down fuera, and, on reaching the second, went on regardless of facts and put down plera." Of course Menéndez Pidal believes that for the Cid the stage of uo was the regular one for original Lat. ǵ: this uo has been found also in Leonese and persists still in Asturian; cf. Menéndez Pidal, El Dialecto Leonés, p. 18, and Staaff, l.c., p. 205. If about 1201 a scribe was "rejuvenating" a form, our text would seem to antedate that period considerably.

21 9 e: Menéndez Pidal in his edition says: "I do not know whether e for en is a piece of forgetfulness on the scribe's part or corresponds to some phonetic law." No such law seems concerned here; we need en.

21 10 al: Menéndez Pidal finds the a of this word not very clear, yet does not think that he can read el; cf. al in l. 11.

21 11 fazi: the meter calls for this form, which represents fazte with loss of final unaccented e. — grant de: scribal error for grande.

21 16 oferda: perhaps a scribal error for oferta; cf. mod. Sp. oferta, Ital. offerta, Fr. offerte. The scribe may have been thinking of ofrenda, and in any event his d is an emendation of an a which he wrote first. Cf. the da of dar following.

21 19 elguesia: cf. Menéndez Pidal: "The a of el[gue]si[a] was forgotten, like that of penitencia in l. 17; the cut on the margin compels us to supply three letters or four, and I find the form elguesia in a document of San Millán de la Cogolla of 1244, and elglesia in another of La Vid of 1212." The phenomenon would, then, seem to be one of the metathesis of l. The western igreja (cf. Menéndez Pidal, El Dialecto Leonés, p. 40) would make a perfect rime here.—asentauaste: sentáuaste (enclitic t = te) would make a good line: cf. Dim, l. 27.

21 20 Is it I fazies (with dissyllabic fazies), or should el be omitted? Cf. l. 29 solies, seemingly solîes.—As to tos(dos) Menéndez Pidal says, "The copyist made a mistake, repeating the word todos, and then intercalated an s without striking out the superfluous dos."

21 22 iure: we expect here the 2d pers. sg. of the pret. indic. iurest (= mod. juraste).

21 24 This line is manifestly too long for a double verse of 7 (6) syllables.

21 25 fadado: this is simply a guess of all the editors.—For ta' mal the MS. has simply tamal. The scribe forgot the n, or the nasal dash above the a which regularly denoted an n after a vowel.

21 26 Que: an early case of que = adverbial conjunction 'though.'

22 27 The letters sist en supplied here are conjectural only. Menéndez Pidal says: "There are lacking four or five letters which I cannot restore in any better way; I understand estero = estelo." What is this estelo? The passage is obscure. The O.Fr. text (Wolf, p. 57) has Ou sont ore li denier ki tant estoient chier.

22 28 morauedis, etc.: the MS. has ñazaris. Cf. Menéndez Pidal: "All the editors read, without concerning themselves with the meter, o los tos moazaris et melequis. I do not know the word moazari; it is true that I have not found azari either; but I suppose that it is an adjective like melequi, modifying the substantive morauedi; in a document of Sahagún, 1140, . . . we find III morabitis melquis." Octavio de Toledo (l.c., p. 62) says: "Moazaris et melequis, Arabic coins."

22 30 ie: cf. note to 6 14.—res: the true development of Lat. reges: cf. Vocab. s.v. rees.

22 33 asuueras: cf. Octavio de Toledo, l.c., p. 62: "from azvver [sic], which means in Arabic the rope or strap joining the breast-leather to the crupper." If the first s means š (sh) here—cf. l. 3 esient = exient, etc.—this word may be related to the O. Sp. axuar 'outfit' < Arabic aš-šuar, mod. ajuar 'bridal outfit,' used here perhaps in the general sense of 'trappings.'

22 36 Do: elsewhere, the document uses o.

22 37 festir: the scribe certainly means vestir; cf. bestimentos = vestimentos in l. 36. One thinks here of the O. Sp. femençia < Lat. vehementia.

VI. GONZALO DE BERCEO

A. VIDA DE SANTO DOMINGO DE SILOS

This critical edition of one of the several works of Gonzalo de Berceo has been based by Fitz-Gerald upon two 14th-century MSS., the one of them in the library of the Real Academia Española de la Lengua at Madrid and the other in the library of the Real Academia de la Historia at the same place, and upon the first printed edition of the poem made by the cleric Fray Sebastian de Vergara at Madrid in 1736. He gives to Vergara's edition the importance of a MS. because it is based on a lost MS. which seems to have been different from the extant MSS. There are some omissions in both of the latter: cf. the description by Fitz-Gerald (in the Bibliothèque de l'École des hautes études, fascicule 149, pp. xvi ff.). Cf. for a critique of Fitz-Gerald's edition F. Hantsen, Notas á la Vida de Sto. Domingo de Silos, etc. (Santiago de Chile, 1907).

The other printed editions—that of T. A. Sánchez in Vol. II of his Colección de Poesías Castellanas (Madrid, 1780), which reprints Vergara's without improving it and was itself reproduced by E. de Ochoa (Paris, 1842), and that of F. Janer in Vol. LVII of the Biblioteca de Autores Españoles (Madrid, 1864), which marks little critical advance over Sánchez's edition—are of little value for the reconstituting of the original text.

The source of Berceo's poem on the life and miracles of this St. Dominick was a Latin account, Vita Beati Dominici Confessoris, etc., written by a monk Grimaldus. It was published by Vergara in his edition already mentioned. Cf. Fitz-Gerald, l.c., pp. xii, xliii, lx.

For a general account of the labors of Berceo, cf. J. Fitzmaurice-Kelly, Littérature espagnole, pp. 55 and 447, with the literature cited by him; E. Mérimée, Précis d'histoire de la littérature espagnole, p. 36; Puymaigre, Les Vieux Auteurs castillans I. 267 ff.; and especially G. Baist in Gröber's Grundriss II. ii. 402.

Gonzalo de Berceo seems to be the oldest Spanish poet known to us by name, as a certain Lope de Moros (cf. Fitzmaurice-Kelly, l.c.), supposed to have preceded him, was probably only a scribe. He was also very fertile in his vein, having left us over 20,000 verses (if the Libro de Alexandre be included) in the cuaderna ríta, i.e. in monorimed quatrains of Alexandrines, a metrical form much affected by the didactic and religious poets of the 13th and 14th centuries and used by them as something quite distinct from the measures of the minstrels who dealt with the epic matter. They termed these latter measures the mester de juglaría (meaning probably the double romance verses of the Cid etc.), while they styled their own the mester de clerecía. The Alexandrine was an importation from France.

Berceo's name is found in about a dozen documents ranging in date from 1220 to 1246. It is thought that he did not long survive this latter date. He became a priest, and as such (not as a monk) was attached to the monastery of San Millán de la Cogolla in the diocese of Calahorra in Old Castile. His compositions (exclusive of the Alexandre, to which we return later) embrace the Vida de Sto. Domingo de Silos, the Historia de S. Millán, the Vida de Sta. Oria (his last work), the Martyrio de S. Laurençio, the Milagros de Nuestra Señora, the Duelo que fizo la Virgen, the Signos del Juicio, all of which seem to follow written sources, and the Loores de Nuestra Señora and the Sacrificio de la Misa, which appear to show a more original treatment. Three hymns ascribed to him are of doubtful authenticity.

Berceo emphasizes in the course of these works his purpose of speaking in plain terms to his fellow-man. As Baist indicates, he eliminates the bombast and rhetoric of his sources, he allows his fancy little play and expresses the dry fact in a realistic and pious fashion, combining therewith, however, no little harmless humor.

For a study of the cuaderna vía cf. Fitz-Gerald, Versification of the Cuaderna Vía as found in Berceo's Vida de Sto. Domingo de Silos (N. Y., 1905), and F. Hanssen, Metrische Studien zu Alfonso u. Berceo (Valparaíso, 1903).

23 1c que equal: note the hiatus, which is frequent here.

23 1d prosa: used here in the general sense of "composition."

23 2b We seem to need En [el] qual here.—It is doubtful that su had already become generalized in the masculine use at the time when Berceo was writing.

23 2d Berceo speaks of himself whimsically as though he were a minstrel and entitled to a minstrel's reward.—bon: cf. 86b buen, and many other cases in the document. The MS. of the Academia de la Lengua seems to have un buen uaso de vino, which is what we need here. But the poem seems to require the rime bonas in 233c: still?

23 3d Silos: on the road to Burgos from Madrid; it is not far from Burgos and therefore is in Old Castile.

24 91a frades: Cf. 104b frayres. One wonders whether Berceo could have used these two forms interchangeably. Yet there are strange phenomena here. Compare el in 87c with elli in 91b. Our

MS. and other information is not sufficient for a critical edition unless that edition be based on a general study of the linguistic conditions of Berceo's time and locality.

24 92d algun: O. Sp. shows algun and algun beside algun and the full form alguno; cf. Vocab. The d and t are inorganic. They are due to the analogy of grande, grand, grant, segund, segunt, segun, quando, quand, and other words having an etymological -nd-.

24 96d entendremos: an example of the tendency in O. Sp. to abridge the infinitive basis in the future and conditional even for regular verbs.

24 97a Not only have we hiatus in z es, but oy has to be read as a dissyllable here, if the half-line is correct.

25 103d Plaz, a true O. Sp. form, would make the line good. Apparently the editor does not care to admit apocopated forms in such cases as this. Cf. iaz in 356 b, and his own correction of plaze to plaz in the present line, on p. xxxii. — enna: on this dialect form cf. Baist, Grundriss I, 2d ed., p. 905. Like other forms found here, e.g. fizi, elli, essi, it probably belongs to the dialect of the scribe. Instead of enna for this line, the MS. of the Academia de la Lengua has enla, the Castilian form; and again where 361 b shows here enna, that same MS. shows enla. Into his text Fitz-Gerald has also admitted 108 a enlas, 358 d enla, and 367 b conlos (instead of connos). The complete text shows many more examples of the same sort.

26 108d este: the verse requires est; cf. Fitz-Gerald, p. xxxii.

26 109a Gonçalo: cf. 40 13 Gonçaluo = Gonçalvo and 44 7 Gonçaluez = Gonçalvez; cf. also 28 and 13 Gundesaluo = Gundesalvo and 26 Gundesalbiz. Gundesalbus is a frequent Latinized form of this originally Germanic name.

26 110c mezquinos: the MS. of the Academia de la Historia has mesquinos, the earlier and better form, here and in 353 d, 356 a.

26 111b ouo afinar, and 112c ouo a morir: these are periphrases equivalent to the pret. indic. finó and murió. Aver + á or de + an infin. = pret. indic. of the main verb occurs frequently in the 15th and 16th century ballads.

26 289a Note un otro contrary to the modern usage.

27 353c los cosas malas: Fitz-Gerald treats los as agreeing logically with the masc. obj. to which cosas malas applies, i.e. the Moros of 353 a. In 480 a the fem. art. is used with cosas under similar circumstances to the present. The Libro de Alexandre (ed. Morel-Fatio), stz. 689 d, has el otro cosa mala (but possibly the construction is different there), while in 2337 a it has la cosa mala. Cf. Cornu, Romania XIII. 313, for other cases of cosa used of persons and seemingly always treated as feminine.

27 351 d fallezco: for this substitute fallesco, the good early form, which is given by the MS. of the Academia de la Historia and by Vergara's MS.: the z supplanted the s only later in the inceptive verb. On the analogy of falleçes ($\zeta = ts$), falleçe, etc., fallesco was made over into fallezco (with z originally = ts when before a consonant).

27 356 c affontan: O. Sp. fonta, in the Cid, is a loan-word through the French honte (with aspirated h) from the Germanic. Lat. f initial had in popular treatment before a vowel given O. Sp. aspirated h, but the f long continued to be the only character used for the new sound; hence it was used also for the aspirate sound at the beginning of the borrowed word.

28 361 b presion: the Academia de la Historia MS. and Vergara's have prision, the reading already accepted by Fitz-Gerald for 358 d.

28 362 d al qui, etc.: this half-line has a syllable in excess. Omit al, and qui remains = 'if one,' 'if any one'; cf. O. Fr. qui and also Ital. chi = se alcuno.

B. LIBRO DE ALEXANDRE

Since the present extract was published, M. Morel-Fatio's critical edition of the Paris MS., whence it was taken, has appeared (El Libro de Alexandre, Manuscrit esp. 488 de la Bibliothèque nationale de Paris, published in the series of the Gesellschaft für romanische Literatur, Vol. X, Dresden, 1906). What changes M. Morel-Fatio has found it advisable to make since he did me the favor of letting me use his transcript of several years ago, will be indicated in the notes.

In the Romania, IV. 7 ff. (1871), M. Morel-Fatio presented his dissertation entitled Recherches sur le texte et les sources du Libro de Alexandre. This useful study is in certain respects modified by the Introduction to his edition of the text. Therein he indicates the great importance of the Alexandre, as being "the sole example of the ancient [i.e. the Greco-Roman] epopee in Spanish literature of the 13th century." He continues: "The principal source of the Libro is the poem of Gautier de Chatillon, the Alexandreis, which dates from the end of the 12th century [cf. the note thereon by Gröber in his Grundriss II. i. 408, and see the edition prepared by Müldener, 1863, of this Latin poem by a Frenchman]. . . . But, in addition, the Castilian rimer has derived inspiration from several Latin writings, notably from the Liber de praeliis [an epitome of the Pseudo-Callisthenes.

This Greek document, really a novel on Alexander, was made around 200 A.D. The epitome, called Liber or Historia de praeliis, was made by the Neapolitan priest Leo in the second half of the 10th century]. Then, he derived inspiration from French poems, or, at least, from the best-known of them, the Roman d'Alexandre of Lambert le Tort and Alexandre de Paris."

The first edition of the Alexandre was that of Sánchez in 1782, in Vol. III of his Colección de Poesías Castellanas. This edition, based on a MS. which for a while was in the private collection known as the Osuna Library—whence it is referred to as O.—but is now at Madrid in the Biblioteca Nacional, was repeated by F. Janer in 1864, in Vol. LVII of the Biblioteca de Autores Españoles. In his Recherches of 1871, Morel-Fatio noted that an Augustinian community at Lyons had still in the 17th century a MS. of the poem. This MS., after having been long lost from view, came to light again in 1888, and is now at Paris—therefore known as P.—in the Bibliothèque Nationale (Fonds espagnol, 488). "The importance of P.," says Morel-Fatio, "results first of all from the fact that it contains about a hundred more strophes than O., and fills in an important lacuna in this latter MS." In fact, in O. there are missing 111 strophes between stz. 1183 and stz. 1184 of the Sánchez-Janer edition, and these appear as strophes 1213-1323 of Morel-Fatio's edition. P. is in a handwriting of the middle of the 15th century, and may be due to several scribes, and like O. it seems to show much garbling by scribes. Yet, bad as they are, P. and O. often mutually correct each other; nevertheless, it must be borne in mind that they have, in all probability, greatly impaired an original MS., from which they are somewhat distant, and which had greater merits than they exhibit on its behalf. On brief remnants of two other MSS.—or, possibly, of a single MS.—cf. Morel-Fatio, Introduction, p. ix ff.; they concern only some 18 to 19 strophes of our poem, which extends to 2639 strophes in P.

A reference in O., the MS. published by Sánchez-Janer, led to the idea that a certain Johan Lorenzo was the author of the poem. Nothing is known of him, and he may merely have been the scribe of that MS. Now the last strophe of P. attributes the authorship to Gonçalo de Berceo, natural de Madrid (a little town near the monastery of San Millán de la Cogolla), én sant Myljan criado. Baist (Roman. Forschungen VI. 292) thinks that the Berceo of our Sto. Domingo is meant. But Morel-Fatio thinks that a falsification is possible here: cf. Introduction, p. xxi, "En somme, rien ne s'oppose à ce que la strophe ait été fabriquée par quelqu'un qui avait lu les explicit de Berceo, savait certaines circonstances de sa vie et qui, pour une raison à lui seul connue, voulut faire passer le Libro de Alexandre pour une œuvre de ce versificateur."

In his edition, Morel-Fatio does not concern himself at all about O., published in a faulty way by Sánchez and Janer. He simply hopes that a critical edition of it may appear soon. "It is easy to see," he states, "that the language of P. is neither central Castilian nor the Leonese which characterizes MS. O. Beyond a doubt we find in it in great number forms purely Castilian, but, beside them, others peculiar to the Aragonese dialect and more particularly to that part of the Aragonese domain which borders on the region of the Catalan language." He is not ready to say yet whether the Leonesisms in O. belong to the scribe or to the poet. Menéndez Pidal argues (in El Dialecto Leonés, Madrid, 1906, p. 7) that if they belong to the poet, he must have been some one other than Berceo. Of course, in discussing the question of authorship, it must be borne in mind that the undoubted works of Berceo are religious in nature; could he have written this long secular poem on Alexander? In all probability, the composition of the work belongs to the mid-point of the 13th century; certainly its use by the Fernan González would make this appear to be the case. For a list of other sources of it, cf. Baist, Grundriss II. ii. 403, and see E. Mérimée, Précis d'histoire de la littérature espagnole, p. 40, and M. Menéndez y Pelayo, Orígenes de la Novela (in Nueva Biblioteca de Autores Españoles, Madrid, 1905), I. lxxix. Much interesting matter regarding the nature of the medieval literature on Alexander will be found in P. Meyer's Alexandre le Grand dans la littérature française du moyen âge (Paris, 1886). Our passage (whose metrical conditions are not perfect) describes a procession of Darius's household etc. The Spanish author got his information rather from Quintus Curtius's Historia Alexandri Magni, III. iii, than from the abridged account in Gautier de Chatillon.

29 1 This is stanza 831 of Morel-Fatio's edition.

29 1 a fazienda: Morel-Fatio writes fusienda here and fazienda in d. In the Introduction, p. xxiii, he says: "I cannot always answer for having distinguished well between z and s, which are easily confused in cursive script: our scribe seems to have employed them indifferently, and it even happens to him to write z at the end of words with the value of a final s." Cf. Ford, Old Spanish Sibilants, p. 100. O.Sp. z never became s. Many printed O.Sp. texts showing, apparently, s for z (i.e. in cases where the phonetic development calls for z), are uncritical; their editors confused cursive s and z of the MS. But 15th-century scribes must also have been guilty of some confusion, as Morel-Fatio's text shows. We have printed z here according to the best O.Sp. usage in diez, lazada, dozientos, etc., where Morel-Fatio gives the real or seeming s of his MS. The peculiar scribal diacritics of his edition have not been employed here, as they are for the most part, if not wholly, without phonological importance: cf. the description of them in his Introduction, pp. xxiii ff.

29 1*b* fuesen: the O.Sp. voiceless ss of the intervocalic position seems already simplified in the modern way: cf. asy, esas, eso, guardasen, etc. Of course these are scribal spellings, not those of the 13th-century author.

30 5*a* mill carros: cf. 6*a* mill escogidos. Before the vowel of the next word mill had the palatalized ll; although written before a word beginning with a consonant the ll meant in Castilian the simple l sound.

30 5*b* de el rrey: perhaps el rrey formed a compound title — cf. el rrey still so used in Portuguese — and therefore the contraction del did not occur.

30 5*d* conosçrie: as a result of syncope of the vowel of the infinitive basis in the fut. and cond. indic. ç came sometimes before a consonant.

30 6*c* In this passage my seems always dissyllabic.

30 7*b* pphan: in the edition Morel-Fatio now reads prophan, which is obscure. May the abbreviation stand for Prest Johan = Preste Juan, i.e. Prester John, who for the Spaniards is a paragon of magnificence?

30 7*d* The que is superfluous both for the meter and for the syntax.

30 8*d* olor: in O.Sp. and down into the Golden Age, the abstracts in -or were treated as feminine; labor still remains so.

31 11*d* Morel-Fatio's edition puts a comma after oro. But should we not rather omit one of the era's?

31 13*a* Morel-Fatio now prints Viene[n], supplying an n to make the verb pl. In this case, the piesdes of this same line is its subject.

31 13*b* lydones: obscure. Some such sense as 'rampant' seems required here.

* 31 13*d* solas: Morel-Fatio now reads so las, 'under the.'

31 14*a* Uenien: Morel-Fatio now reads Venje = venta, for which aguilla (= águila, with erroneous scribal ll) appears to be the subject. — color: should not this, or the color of d, be changed to calor?

31 15*b* A los before tres would correct the verse.

31 16*b* Morel-Fatio now reads enperant, but the final c is needed.

31 16 c Morel-Fatio now has argent.

31 18 b las non, etc. : observe the interpolation already noted above in other documents.

VII. POEMA DE FERNÁN GONÇALEZ

Our extract is taken from Professor C. C. Marden's critical edition of the incomplete and sole MS. of the epic on the historical Fernán González (died 970 A.D.), a lusty warrior who fought against the Moors and at the same time, as the chief noble of Castile, protested against the suzerainty exercised over that region by the king of Leon. Hence the appeal to the patriotic feelings of the Castilians and the epic importance given to his story. The MS., now in the Escorial Library (Escorialense B-iv-21), is not earlier than the 15th century. It shows the writing of two scribes, who modernized earlier readings of the text, and is very defective in that it often omits whole lines and lacks the conclusion of the poem. We are fortunate, however, in having other documents that deal with Fernán González's career and give us the complete account. The most important of these is the Crónica General of Alfonso X (second half of the 13th century), which gives exactly the same account as the Poema in so far as the latter extends, and, therefore, may be deemed to contain the narrative of the missing final part of it. The Crónica dwells, in particular, upon a supposed redemption of Castile from the overlordship of Leon through the sale by Fernán González to the king of Leon of a certain horse and a hawk, whose price, if not paid on a fixed day, was to double on every succeeding day. As the king allowed the day of payment to pass by, his treasurer found that not all the gold in the world could pay the large sum entailed (as a simple computation in geometrical progression shows); and to redeem his royal word the king had to accede to the request of Fernán González that Castile be declared independent of Leon. As a matter of fact, the battlesome Fernán González, as Count of Castile, was virtually, although not nominally, ruler of that region. Other early documents recounting events of Fernán González's career are—in the 13th century—Berceo's Vida de San Millán and the Crónica Rimada del Cid.

In all probability the Poema was composed by a monk of the monastery of San Pedro de Arlanza, and, as certain references in it indicate, it was put together about 1250; cf. Marden in Revue hispanique VII. 22. The author drew from Berceo's religious verse and also from the Alexandre, therefore his work is subsequent to them. It is likely that he was acquainted with other epic songs (cantares de gesta) and especially with the Poema del Cid.

Baist (Grundriss II. ii. 393) has analyzed the whole poetic tradition of Fernán González, and believes that only that part of it which deals with his marriage to an Infanta of Navarre and his double captivity in Leon and Navarre may be deemed to have been originally treated in a popular epic; the rest is of the category of the school epic. From the fact that the monk to whom we owe the present form of the epic repeatedly mentions his source of information as an escriptura, a lehenda, etc., Baist infers that he used Latin material. Perhaps so, but in any event he was certainly working over an antecedent popular poem which dealt already in epic fashion with either part — as Baist says — or a good deal of the heroic career of Fernán González. The monk uses the learned form of the cuaderna vía, the quatrain of monorimed Alexandrines, but a considerable number of his verses show only assonance; and in the imperfect half-Alexandrines of the work, which are clearly good romance verses or epic hemistichs containing irreducible epic formulæ, we are tempted to see remnants of an earlier cantar de gesta which furnished the monastic writer with his basis.

Utilizing all the documents that have treated poetically or historically of Fernán González, and governed by his own knowledge of O.Sp. phonology, morphology, and syntax, Professor Marden has endeavored to establish a critical and restored text of the monk's poem. Cf. his discussion of all the apparatus criticus in the Introduction to his edition; Baist, Grundriss II. ii. 393; Milá y Fontanals, De la Poesía Heroico-popular Castellana (Barcelona, 1896, p. 173); Modern Language Notes, February, 1905; Puymaigre, Les Vieux Auteurs castillans, II. 153 ff.; Gorra, Lingua e letteratura spagnuola, p. 265; Janer's earlier edition of the poem in the Biblioteca de Autores Españoles LVII; Menéndez Pidal, Notas para el Romancero del Conde Fernán González in the volume Homenaje á Menéndez y Pelayo, I. 429 (Madrid, 1899).

33 71 In the opening stanzas of the poem there is given a compendium of the early history of Spain. The present passage deals with the legend of Count Julian and Roderick the Goth. According to the chronicles, as well as the poetical accounts, Roderick seduced the daughter (Cava) or wife of one of his nobles, Julian, who was in command of a fortress on the sea-coast. In revenge, Julian went over to Africa and urged the Moors to invade Spain. Then he treacherously induced his master, King Roderick, to convert all his weapons of war into plowshares and other instruments of peace, and when the land was devoid of means of defense he admitted the Moors, who rapidly overran Spain after defeating Roderick in 711. As to whether there ever was an epic on the story of Roderick the Goth much doubt has been expressed: cf. Baist, Grundriss II. ii. 395, Milá y Fontanals, De la Poesía Heroico-popular Castellana p. 107, J. Menéndez Pidal, Leyendas del Último Rey Godo (Madrid, 1906). While Milá and Baist deny the existence of cantares de gesta on the subject and consider it as a matter which passed from early fictitious Arabic accounts in chronicle form to the O.Sp. chronicles, J. Menéndez Pidal, like Menéndez y Pelayo (Antología de Poetas Líricos Castellanos XI. 156), believes that there were epics on the loss of Spain in 711.

33 71 a In Marden's text the brackets indicate the letters and words which he restores, the parentheses mark the letters and words which he expunges.

33 72 a Spanna: this form, by redivision of preposition and noun, could easily arise from dEspanna 74 d, 80 b, etc.

33 73 b de Oropa: cf. Vocab., and see Baist, Grundriss I, 2d ed., p. 890, where he gives other instances of eu > o: Santoveña < Sancta Eufemia, Santolalla < Sancta Eulalia.

34 78 b tovo, etc.: i.e., he intercepted them on their way.

34 78 c Sangonera: a river and the neighboring territory in the province of Murcia. According to Milá y Fontanals (cf. Marden, p. 168) the poet has confused his geography here.

34 81 d sy, etc.: 'If it were not for him (Julian?) on account of whom may they have no pardon for their sins.'

34 83 d and 84 Accounts vary as to the fate of Roderick. Cf. J. Menéndez Pidal, l.c., pp. 141 ff. He perished in the battle according to some; he survived it, and, being captured, was tortured to death, according to others; while still others speak of his repentance in a hermitage.

34 84 b This line is corrupt. The general sense is that an inscription stone was found on a grave.

35 328 Fernán Sánchez had laid low King Sancho of Navarre, and to obtain revenge for the deed the latter's kinsman, a southern French noble, invaded Castile. By a study of this passage Marden (Revue hispanique VII. 22) has obtained a certain basis for the dating of the poem. The scribe, botching the passage, made it speak of two invading counts; but a critical examination of it clearly shows that but one person was meant and he was Count of both Poitou and Toulouse. In 1250, Alphonsus, Count of Poitou, became also Count of Toulouse; the two titles ceased to be united in 1271. We therefore have 1250 as a terminus a quo for the dating of this passage. Other evidence of an internal nature places the date of the poem at a period not long after 1250.

35 329 a vyo: this would be better written uvyó = pret. indic. 3d sg. of uviar < Lat. obviare 'to go to meet,' 'travel,' etc. Cf. Berceo's Santo Domingo (ed. Fitz-Gerald), stz. 506 huujados (= uviados) and 507 huujar (= uviar), which in the Biblioteca de Autores Españoles, Vol. LVII, stzs. 506 and 507, are printed improperly as viados and uyar.

35 329 d Getarea: a place in French Navarre.

35 330 b There is no satisfactory phonological explanation of commo with double m.

35 335 c estantigua: this term denoted a body of demons which were supposed to roam about in the twilight or at night; cf. C. M. de Vasconcellos in Revue hispanique for 1900. In Don Quijote, I, chap. xxxi, Cervantes seems to allude to the belief in the estantigua when he makes Don Quixote speak of una legión de demonios, que es gente que camina y hace caminar sin cansarse todo aquello que se les antoja. As the estadea the same superstition is found in Portugal: it is mentioned by G. Borrow in his Bible in Spain.

36 342 a mesmo: A. M. Espinosa, Studies in New Mexican Spanish, finds that mismo is the current form in O. Sp. and argues for the etymon metipsimus* > metismo > mismo.

36 350 b and d Note the equivalence of aver a and aver de with a dependent infinitive.

36 351 This stanza was copied from the Libro de Alexandre (ed. Morel-Fatio), stz. 2266.

37 356 c A comma is needed after syenpre.

37 356 d The sense seems to be: They saw themselves in great distress as to having any camp there.

38 367 b fincol: note the article treated here as enclitic to the word preceding it. Is it really assured for this document?

39 368 c Marden interprets: Á fin de que la gente no le tuviese por desamparado.

VIII. LA CRÓNICA GENERAL AND LA GENERAL
ESTORIA

To the personal interest of King Alfonso X (Alfonso el Sabio, who was born in 1230, came to the throne in 1252, and died in 1284) we have to attribute the first large use of Spanish prose. As a result of his personal endeavor and of the incentive which he gave to the many scholars whom he gathered about him at his court, Spanish became a supple medium of scientific and literary expression. The many works which have in the past been ascribed to him cannot all have been his individual compositions. For the more extensive among them he doubtless suggested the plan and superintended the working of it; in all probability he also corrected the style of certain of them.

He had a great liking for astronomy and caused compilations to be made which are valuable to those studying the Ptolemaic system; these are the Libro de Saber de Astronomía and the Tablas Alfonsíes (cf. ed., Madrid, 1863-1867). He showed the usual medieval fondness for games, by preparing, or commissioning others to prepare, manuals dealing with chess, draughts, etc.; and for lapidaries, or studies of gems and their relations to human fortunes, by having translated from Arabic a Libro de las Piedras. Other minor works have been attributed to him on no very certain evidence.

Beyond a doubt he was closely concerned with some four important works: the Crónica General (which more properly might be called the Crónica de España), the General Estoria, the Siete Partidas, and the Cantigas de Santa María. The last-named work we may dismiss at once, interesting and attractive as it is, because it is in Portuguese-Galician; for, following the custom of his time in Castile, Alfonso wrote love lyrics and religious verse in the language of the west of the peninsula. The Siete Partidas (edited by the Real Academia, 1807) is a codification of the laws of Spain arranged under seven headings, whence the title. The document gains in importance from a literary point of view in that it is more than a mere statement of the laws; it adds thereto moral and philosophical speculation, and is written in an engaging style. That part alone in which Alfonso discusses—or approves the method of discussing—the duties of monarchs to their subjects is a remarkable counterpart to Machiavelli's Principe, and is especially noteworthy for the way in which it stresses morality and religion, which Machiavelli excludes.

The Crónica General is the first great history of Spain. For its information — and it goes back as far as the history of humanity outside of Spain allows — it draws upon the Bible and certain ancient historians, upon contemporary historians dealing in Latin with the progress of affairs in Spain (Bishop Roderick of Toledo and Bishop Lucas of Tuy), and upon the knowledge which Alfonso himself and his coadjutors had of recent events. To us far more important than the information derived from these sources is that which he appropriated from the epic poems, the cantares de gesta. Dealing with national heroes, legendary or historical, such as Bernardo del Carpio, the Cid, Fernán González, the Infantes de Lara, etc., Alfonso and his cohistorians inform us also of the terms in which the minstrels sang of those personages. Doing this, they often cast into prose form the contents of lost poems; again they kept snatches of the lost poems, and it has been possible for Menéndez Pidal in the case of the Infantes de Lara to reconstruct in verse form portions of the lost epic or epics on them; for, apart from the chronicle accounts and the ensuing ballads, we have no important literary record of them. As the ostensibly poetic accounts of the Cid and Fernán González given by the Crónica General run parallel with the preserved poems, we may infer that its similar accounts of the Infantes de Lara, of Bernardo del Carpio, etc., likewise represent the contents of lost poems.

As regards its text the Crónica General is in a state well nigh dismaying to the scholar. In 1541, Florián Docampo (De Ocampo) published at Zamora a text which long passed as the Crónica General. But the studies of various scholars, and especially of Menéndez Pidal, have shown that Ocampo's edition represents a later and modified form of Alfonso's Chronicle. As a result of Menéndez Pidal's investigations (cf. his Leyenda de los Infantes de Lara, Madrid, 1896, pp. 49 ff., his Catálogo de Crónicas Generales de España manuscritas, Madrid, 1898, and his forthcoming study which will form Vol. II of his edition of the Crónica), it proves to be the case that, at the best, Ocampo's edition represents a form of a third edition of the text.

For some time it has been Menéndez Pidal's chief purpose to arrive at a pristine text of the Crónica. The difficulties in the way are enormous. As he says (in the Introduction Al Lector of his edition in the Nueva Biblioteca de Autores Españoles, Madrid, 1906): "What disheartens him who studies the Crónica is the great divergency which he discovers when he compares several MSS. out of the many in which this so long text is preserved." He thinks that in his text he has arrived at the "Primera Crónica General, free from large interpolation and rearrangements of any sort," and he states the following with respect to former versions: "The MSS. previously confounded with one another under the common title of Crónica General del Rey Sabio are the result of almost two centuries of historiographical activity, beginning with the Primera Crónica General, which Alfonso X had made, and continuing with the Crónica General de 1344, that of Veinte Reyes, the Tercera and the Cuarta Crónica General, that of 1404, and others of less importance."

From the text of our extract, published originally in the Leyenda de los Infantes de Lara, the editor has departed somewhat in the edition of the whole Chronicle: the important divergencies will be noted in the remarks following. In the passage chosen we have a bit of the epic tradition of the Infantes de Lara, so excellently studied by Menéndez Pidal in his Leyenda. It is the very opening of their tragic story that is presented here. The treacherous plot devised by Ruy Velásquez at the instigation of Doña Lambra, the betrayal of the Infantes into the power of a Moorish army which slays them, the carrying of their heads to Cordova, the Moorish stronghold in which their father had already been confined by the knavery of Ruy Velásquez, the father's recognition of the heads of his seven sons, all these traits, as well as the later vengeance wrought upon Ruy Velásquez and Doña Lambra by the Moorish half-brother of the Infantes, Mudarra, passed into the ballads of the 15th and 16th centuries and into the 19th-century Romantic production of the Duke of Rivas, the Moro Expósito.

The various details of the story have been worked out, not only by Menéndez Pidal, but also by G. Paris in his article La Légende des Infants de Lara in the Journal des savants, Paris, 1898.

The General Estoria (or Grande e General Historia) remains still unedited as a whole. Apparently Alfonso intended it to be a compendium of universal history, especially of ancient history, and perhaps to form an introduction to the Crónica General, which preceded it in date of composition. Much use is made in it of the Biblical narratives and of classical and Oriental works. As to the particular way in which the General Estoria utilized the Bible, cf. S. Berger, Les Bibles castillanes, p. 361 etc. in Romania XVIII. In the later aljamiado poem (cf. p. 63) we have the story of Joseph again told. The source of Alfonso's account of Joseph was an Arabic work, the Book of Roads and Realms of Abū Obaid, King of Niebla, according to Menéndez Pidal, Poema de Yúçuf, p. 72. Cf. Menéndez y Pelayo, Orígenes de la Novela, I. xlv.

On Alfonso el Sabio and his various works, cf. Baist in the Grundriss II. ii. 408 ff.; Fitzmaurice-Kelly, Littérature espagnole, pp. 60 ff.; Mérimée, Précis d'histoire de la littérature espagnole, pp. 58 ff.; Puymaigre, Les Vieux Auteurs castillans II. 3 ff. On the tradition of the Infantes cf., besides the works already cited, Milá y Fontanals, De la Poesía Heroico-popular Castellana, p. 202.

40 2 era: the era was 38 years ahead of our normal reckoning, whence the date 959 A.D. given in l. 4.

40 7 alfoz: as f here represents an Arabic aspirate, the doubling may indicate the force of the aspiration. However, the doubling of f is also often inorganic in O.Sp. — caso: note casar used already in O.Sp. with the force of casarse.

40 9 Ferrandez: in the complete edition Menéndez Pidal writes Fernández, the more usual form. He also uses como, conde, etc. instead of the diphthongized forms. It is somewhat a matter of doubt whether his use of su instead of our so, before masculine nouns, is an improvement upon his present text. Garci-Fernández is but one of several really historical figures in the Infantes legend: he ruled Castile from 970 to 995.

40 10 Llambla: the later documents, ballads, etc. call her Lambra. It seems to be the Lat. Flammula; cf. Boccaccio's Fiammetta.

40 14 infantes: this term does not necessarily imply that the young men in question were of royal origin. Menéndez Pidal (Leyenda, p. 443) calls attention to the fact that in the O. Fr. epic enfant meant the youth who had not yet received the dubbing to knighthood (cf. Gautier, La Chevalerie, p. 193). He adds: "In Spain it seems that the name infante was given to noble youths, even though they were already knights (perhaps until such time as they inherited from their fathers), as happened to the Infantes de Lara."

40 15 Salas: Salas, the domain of Gonzalo Gustioz and his sons, was situated in the district of Lara. Hence, by extension, the later and more general use of the term Infantes de Lara.

41 11 iogar tablas: cf. the mod. jugar á tablas. Suppression of prepositions was more common in O.Sp. than now, if we may trust MS. readings; cf. l. 21 etc. fue alañçar. — açedexes: Menéndez Pidal now reads açedrexes. This represents the mod. Sp. ajedrez 'chess,' which looks back to O.Sp. axedrez. The word may have some connection with the Persian shah 'king'; cf. the importance of the king in chess, and the terms "checkmate" etc. The Fr. échec and Ital. scacchi suggest shah. Cf. Diez, Wtb., p. 428: "from the Arab. ash-sha'trenġ

'chess-board,' and this from the Persian, and the latter is of Indian origin and means 'having a hundred, i.e. different, colors,' etc.

41 30 Menéndez Pidal now reads alli el solo.

42 11 Menéndez Pidal now prints the better O.Sp. leuantasse. So also in 43 18 he now has desuiasse.

42 32 uos yo meresçi: for the interpolation cf. also l. 34 and 43 2 and 5.

42 34 muriero: instead of this interesting form, Menéndez Pidal now prints murier. Cf. his Gram. elem., 2d ed., p. 219: "In the fut. subj. the 1st person with etymological final -o was used in the 12th-14th centuries: fullaro, tomaro, pudiero, sopiero, beside the forms in -r or -re which later prevailed entirely."

43 6 enel: Menéndez Pidal now has en ell.

43 9 ell: observe the ll of the pronoun retained even in the final position. It is ordinarily so in the article before a word beginning with a vowel.

43 25 Menéndez Pidal now reads muy mester.

43 26 del mayor prez: this use of the article with the true comparative is found as late as the Don Quijote, where (with archaic effect) it appears in Part I, Chap. IX: festa Dulcinea . . . tuvo la mejor mano para salar puercos, que otra mujer de toda la Mancha.

43 34 Menéndez Pidal now has complirie, which is the better O.Sp. form. The u appeared first in the unaccented position before a following accented diphthong ie or io.

44 1 The extracts dealing with Fernán González were taken by Marden from the MS. of the Crónica General numbered X-i-4 in the Escorial Library. The text printed by Menéndez Pidal (p. 392) is substantially the same. The incident in Fernán González's career treated here is dealt with briefly in the 37th Exemplo of Juan Manuel's Conde Lucanor (Knust-Birch-Hirschfeld ed., p. 165).

44 10 fuessen . . . con ell: 'should . . . go to him'; cf. mod. ir con, 'to go to.'

44 17 uiniesen: Menéndez Pidal has uiniessen.

44 21 atender los: in such cases Menéndez Pidal writes the pronoun as enclitic, atenderlos.

44 24 poro: here and in l. 26, Menéndez Pidal has por o.

45 3 mas: here the modern language would prefer sino.

45 4 contar: Menéndez Pidal has cotar and gives contar as a variant. Cotar, = mod. acotar, is based on the Lat. quot, quotus -a -um, and here has the meaning of 'comment upon,' 'interpret.'

45 9 ganarnos: Menéndez Pidal prints ganar nos, apparently regarding nos as the subject pronoun. — pechar les: read pecharles, and in l. 10 fazernos emos, and in l. 11 doblargela emos.

46 3 sopiera: here an indicative pluperfect or preterit.

46 15 atamana = atamaña. Cf. tamanna l. 16.

IX. CANTICUM CANTICORUM

The manuscript I-j-6 of the Escorial library, in which this Old Spanish translation of the Canticle of Canticles (Song of Solomon) occurs, is described by S. Berger in Romania XVIII. 380 ff., 391 ff., 560 ff. According to him the portions of the Old Testament and the Four Gospels comprised in the manuscript constitute "la plus ancienne traduction textuelle de la Bible" in Spanish. Cornu, who intends to publish the Four Gospels also, attributes the language of the manuscript to the 13th century (cf. Festgabe f. Foerster, p. 121, note); Berger (l.c., p. 560) states that the manuscript itself seems to be of the first half of the 14th century. Moreover, he finds that this manuscript is not the only one to transmit to us all or part of the Old Spanish translation in question. "Nous en retrouvons," he says (l.c., p. 391), "le Nouveau Testament dans un manuscrit interpolé de l'Historia general [i.e. the Grande y General Historia of Alfonso X, a thirteenth-century document still unedited, except for some passages of it] . . . et peut-être les Prophètes, en tout ou en partie, dans un autre manuscrit interpolé." These manuscripts are also in the Escorial library (I-j-2 and Y-j-8). In his interesting general account of the Bible in Spain, the land which in the age of the Renaissance presented us with the first polyglot edition of the Bible, Berger remarks (l.c., p. 361): "Avec Alphonse X l'amour de la Bible se manifeste, uni à une conception historique très remarquable, dans l'Historia general. . . . Vers le même temps on commence à traduire la Bible elle-même en castillan et ces traductions textuelles rentrent peu à peu dans l'Historia general pour la compléter, pour se fondre avec elle et pour en faire une Bible autant qu'un livre d'histoire."

Cornu publishes the whole Canticle. Six of the twelve verses given here are printed by Berger, whose transcript differs slightly from Cornu's. Sometimes the translator quite mistook the meaning of his original — the Vulgate — but in general he is rather faithful to it.

47 10 levantedes: observe levantar in the transitive use: cf. l. 15, where levantat seems to be levántate.

47 18 tiempo, etc.: the Vulgate has tempus putationis advenit 'the time of pruning has come.' Ordinarily the Sp. verb cuedar has only the sense of 'to think': here it seems that the other sense of Latin putare, 'to prune,' is passed over to it. The translator is not too clear as to the meaning of the word, as the correlation with vino shows.

X. JUAN RUIZ: LIBRO DE BUEN AMOR

In the preface to his paleographical ed., Ducamin has described fully the 3 MSS. of Ruiz's work. One of them, S, is in script of the end of the 14th or the early 15th century and is posterior to the other two. It was originally at Salamanca (whence the S), but is now at Madrid in the Library of the Royal Palace. Ducamin has made it the basis of his text, taking variants from the other MSS. The second MS., G, once belonged to the archivist Gayoso; it is now in the Library of the Real Academia de la Lengua at Madrid. It is in script of the 14th century, having been completed in 1389, and, like S, is the work of a single scribe: it lacks the first ten quatrains of the work as well as a passage in prose which follows them. The third MS., T, belonged once to the Cathedral at Toledo: it is now in the Biblioteca Nacional at Madrid. It is also due to a single scribe and is of the same time as G. A fragment, F, containing a few verses, is in a manuscript of the private library of the King; it is valueless: cf. Ducamin, p. xxx.

The first edition of the work was that of Sánchez, who published it as Poesías del Arcipreste de Hita in Vol. IV of his Colección de Poesías Castellanas, etc., in 1790. It is neither critical nor paleographical, and suppresses certain stanzas deemed immoral. It was reprinted by Ochoa (Paris, 1842). Amador de los Ríos, in Vol. IV of his Historia Crítica de la Literatura Española (1863), printed some of the suppressed verses, but his text is very faulty. In 1864 Janer reprinted Sánchez's text in Vol. LVII of the Biblioteca de Autores Españoles, pretending, however, to include all the passages omitted by Sánchez. But he did not do this with completeness, and his text is also uncritical. Hence the necessity for a complete text. Ducamin aimed at giving the paleographic conditions and has not sought to amend the text.

Juan Ruiz, Archpriest of Hita, is the first true poet in the history of Spanish literature. Not inaptly he may be termed the Villon of Spain, for, like Villon, he was both a reprobate and a real singer. We have not the dates of his birth and death; but as he was imprisoned by his ecclesiastical superior, Gil de Albornoz, Archbishop of Toledo from 1337 to 1367, and remained in prison for thirteen years, and as another cleric is mentioned as Archpriest of Hita in 1351, it is generally assumed that his activity belonged to the first half of the 14th century. His incarceration was probably occasioned by the irregularities of his life. As it seems, he improved the opportunities presented by his enforced leisure to develop his poetic genius, but just how much of his preserved verse was written in jail is a matter of conjecture. As we have it, his work must represent a selection out of a larger mass of compositions: it really forms a kind of versified diary of his amorous experiences, interspersed with many other poetical elements, erotic, didactic, religious, etc., in their nature. He appears to have intended to give the title Libro de Buen Amor to his book — it is not actually so styled in the MSS. — in order to indicate to us that we should all strive to love divine things and not the things of this world. This is humorous on his part and quite in keeping with the general humorism of the book, for the moralizing purpose is entirely subordinated to the amorous and playful impulses of the author, who unblushingly narrates the vicissitudes of his culpable love affairs, in the conduct of which he is aided by a go-between, the old woman Trota-Conventos. She is one of the chief characters in the work, and is interesting for the later history of Spanish literature as being the prototype of the Celestina of the similarly-named dramatic novel. Trota-Conventos is herself a descendant from the go-between in the Pseudo-Ovid or Pamphilus de Amore (cf. Gröber, Grundriss II. i. 427), a medieval document of amorous import. Of course the great authority on scabrous love affairs was known to Juan Ruiz, for the impress of the Ars Amatoria of Ovid is clear. Fables drawn from Old French Isopets and possibly other collections, smutty stories derived from Old French fabliaux and revealing their origin by even retaining Old French words, a version of the contest between Lent and the Carnival season, based on an Old French Debat de Quaresme et de Charnage, — all these evince the author's acquaintance with foreign literature. Not the least charming elements in the book are the religious lyrics (like the one addressed to the Virgin Mary), undoubtedly sincere in tone, — for in characters like Ruiz extremes touch, and they easily pass from the immoral to the devout, —and the little pastoral poems in which he tells humorously of his encounters with mountain girls (serranas) and dairymaids, thus anticipating the similar poems of the Marquis of Santillana (15th century).

The meters used by Ruiz are of the most varied kind. In the more purely narrative and descriptive parts of the book he uses Alexandrines in the Cuaderna vía arrangement. In the more lyrical passages he employs verses of 4, 5, 6, and 7 syllables. The exact metrical constitution of the whole work cannot be determined independently of a critical study of the text, and this has not yet been made; see, however, F. Hanssen, Los Metros de los Cantares de Juan Ruiz (Anales de la Universidad), Santiago de Chile, 1902.

Cf. Baist in the Grundriss II. ii. 405 ff.; Fitzmaurice-Kelly, Littérature espagnole, pp. 71 ff.; E. Mérimée, Précis d'histoire de la littérature espagnole, pp. 76 ff.; M. Menéndez y Pelayo, Antología, III. liii ff., Revue hispanique VIII. 553; Puymaigre, Vieux Auteurs castillans II. 257 ff.

48 11a The MSS. seem to show s and z confused: we have here interpreted the sibilant signs in accordance with the correct O. Sp. usage of the 14th century. Ducamin tried to render the conditions of the MSS., but of course, as Morel-Fatio states for the Alexandre, it is not always easy to distinguish the scribes' cursive s and z from each other, and, besides, the scribes ignorantly interchanged them. By writing espíritu in l. a, and suppressing the El of l. b, we obtain a perfect stanza in cuaderna vía. In like fashion many of the irregularities in the text might be remedied. The text shows Leonesisms, as Menéndez Pidal indicates in his review of Ducamin's edition.

48 13b acipreste: why the loss of r? Did it disappear in popular speech before the dental sibilant ts (ç) as before the sibilant s (coso < cursum; O. Sp. vierso < vërsum)?

48 13c This line gives the true title of the book. For fazer we should substitute far or fer to correct the line; cf. stz. 498a. No attempt is made here to correct all the faulty lines.

49 298a As a story of the wolf, the fox, and the mule, this little apologue appears in the Italian Novellino (ed. Gualterazzi, No. XCIV). A form of it occurs also in the Old French Roman de Renard. On its history in general cf. A. d'Ancona, Del Novellino e delle sue fonti (in Studj di critica e storia letteraria, Bologna, 1880, p. 339).

49 298 b conel . . . pesa: is the idea this: la caça non pesa con el, i.e. 'he is not overburdened with prey'?

49 299 c en eso, etc.: i.e. 'I find myself resting under that obligation.'

49 300 d faz . . . quito: does this mean 'deal with me as with the one whom thou hast freed'? Probably not, although quito = 'set free,' 'left free,' occurs in O. Sp.; cf. Cid 1370 De mi sean quitos 'Let them be left free by me' and 1539 quito seua Minaya 'Minaya goes off free (of expense),' and Berceo, Loores, stz. 147, Era todo cativo quito de la presion 'Every captive was set free from prison.' The more exact sense here is 'deal with me as with one left free to thy treatment,' i.e. with whom thou mayst deal freely. Cf. Berceo, Milagros, stz. 86, where the demons are claiming a certain soul and striving to drive the angels away from it:

Fizieron los diablos luego muy grant querella,
Que suya era quita, que se partiessen della.

'The Devils then made very great complaint,
For it [the soul] was freely theirs, so that they [the angels] should depart from it.'

49 490 a The theme of this passage reappears in the 17th century in Francisco de Quevedo's poem

Poderoso caballero
Es don Dinero.

50 491 a This ome, like the ōme of 490 b, should be interpreted as omne. De Lollis in his Noterelle spagnole (in Studj romanzi for 1900) expressed belief in a form ome, but Baist (in Ztschr. f. roman. Philol. IV. 451) had already termed omme very doubtful. There is no evidence of the survival of homo in Spanish; besides, it could only give uomo or omo; hōm(ž)nem has the secondary combination mn, which dissimilated one of its nasals to r, after persisting for a while (omne > omre > hombre; nomīnare > nomnar > nomrar > nombrar, etc.). Original mn assimilated the m to the n (damnare > dannar > dañar).

50 509 c alguaçil: this should be alguazil, as its Arabic etymon has a voiced sibilant z.

50 1661 a The verses of this song are intended to be eight-syllabled lines with the stress on the seventh syllable, and four-syllabled lines with the stress on the third.

51 1662 d It would be better to put no mark after maraujlla and a period at the end of the next line.

XI. JUAN MANUEL

Like his uncle Alfonso X, Juan Manuel (1282-1348) gave himself up with great zeal to the cultivation of the vernacular prose. His life was a very busy one, spent in good part on the battle-field or in the council-chamber. Still a youth, he was in Murcia fighting against the Moors. When Fernando IV died (1312) he became regent during the minority of his kinsman, Alfonso XI. Later, when the latter had assumed the reins of power, some unpleasantness arose between them and active hostilities resulted. They were reconciled, however, and in 1340 Juan Manuel helped the King to win his great victory over the Moors of Andalusia on the battle-field of Salado. Two years later he seems to have been present at the siege and capture of Algeciras by Alfonso XI.

In spite of this great activity, Juan Manuel found opportunity for a large amount of composition in Spanish prose, impelled thereto—as passages in his work, e.g. in the Prologue of his Libro de la Caça, expressly state—by the example of his uncle, Alfonso X, for whom he evinces the greatest admiration. He has left us two lists of his works: the one appears at the beginning of his Conde Lucanor (or Patronio); the other is in the Prologue to a MS. collection of all his works, which he thus brought together in corrected form and gave to the Monastery of Peñafiel. Unfortunately that MS. collection in its original form is not now discoverable. In the 15th-century copy of it (cf. Gräfenberg, 446, note 2), MS. S-34 of the Biblioteca Nacional at Madrid, several of the twelve works that should be there are missing, and some contained in it are defective, as e.g. the Libro del Cavallero et del Escudero, out of whose 51 chapters at least 13 are lacking.

It is at the beginning of the Prologue of this imperfectly preserved collection of his works that Juan Manuel narrates the little story given on pp. 52-53 of our Extracts. This has no direct relation to the Libro del Cavallero et del Escudero, although, following the example of Gräfenberg, we print it under that heading.

On the basis of the two lists mentioned, and in accordance with other references to his works made here and there by Juan Manuel as well as with the circumstances of his life, Baist (in his edition of the Libro de la Caça, Halle, 1880, p. 154) has drawn up a chronological list of the various compositions. It is this:

Crónica Abreviada	} 1320-1324
Libro de la Caballería
Libro de la Caza		1325-1326

Libro del Caballero y del Escudero	1326
Libro del Infante (or de los Estados).....	1327-1328
Libro de Patronio , Part I	1328-1329
Crónica Complida	1329
Libro de los Estados , Part I.....	1329-1330
Libro de los Estados , Part II.....	1330
Libro Infinito	1332
Libro de las Armas	1334
Libro de Patronio , Part V	1335
Prólogo General
Treatise addressed to Masquesa

The second, third, and fourth Parts of the Patronio (or Conde Lucanor) probably belong between 1329 and 1334. It is thus seen that this great literary activity belonged to the years 1320 to 1335. Of the works indicated, the Libro de la Caballería is not to be found. Also missing are the Libro de los Sabios, the Libro de los Engños, and the Libro de los Cantares, which Baist assigns to the period between 1320 and 1328, and the Reglas como se debe trobar, which he places between 1328 and 1335.

The Crónica Abreviada is a compendium of his uncle's Crónica General. The Libro de la Caballería may have been of the same nature as the preserved Libro del Caballero y del Escudero. This latter has a novellesque framework borrowed from the Catalan Ramon Lull's Libre del Orde de Cavalleria, and through the medium of conversations between an old knight, now a hermit, and a young squire, who soon becomes a knight, conveys much information of an encyclopedic nature. For this information J. M. drew upon other books, notably his uncle's Siete Partidas, but he also reflects his own experience of men and things. The idea of the Libro de la Caza, a treatise on falconry, came to J. M., as he tells us in the Prologue of the book, from one which Alfonso X had caused to be made; it ranks well among the books of its kind. The Libro del Infante is an earlier and still discernible form of the Libro de los Estados. In the earlier form it was J. M.'s Apology for his warlike attitude with regard to the sovereign, Alfonso XI; in the extended form it becomes a general consideration of the various stations and callings in life and of their relative value for human happiness and worth. The Libro Infinito ('Unfinished Book') is addressed to his eldest son and deals with the duties of rulers. The Libro de las Armas is a history of his own family, its emblazonments, etc. The Prólogo General, prepared, as has been said, for the MS. containing his collected works, must come late. Also one of his latest documents is that addressed to the Dominican monk Masquefa: it treats of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary. As to the nature of the lost works we can only speculate. The Libro de los Sabios was doubtless didactic; the Libro de los Engeños must have treated of engines of war, and may have been based directly or indirectly on Vegetius, De re militari, which J. M. cites elsewhere. According to most opinions, the Libro de los Cantares contained compositions in Galician-Portuguese, in which J. M. could probably indite verse, even as his uncle had done; and it is generally assumed that the Reglas como se debe trobar simply stated rules for such conventional verse compositions of the Provençalizing sort as those of the Catalanian and Portuguese-Galician schools. Baist is of the opinion (cf. Grundriss II. ii. 419 and 426) that the Reglas was a redaction of one of the several early Catalan treatises of the class. In Castilian, of course, we have some specimens of J. M.'s power of versifying in the rimed moralizations to the tales in the Conde Lucanor.

This last is the Golden Book of the Old Spanish period, in so far as Part I is concerned. Parts II-IV (in the Knust ed., Parts I-III) consist merely of sententious sayings derived chiefly from the older Bocados de Oro (cf. Baist, Grundriss II. ii. 411); Part V (in the Knust ed., Part IV) is concerned with spiritual and religious matters. The Libro de los Enxienplos del Conde Lucanor et de Patronio, as J. M. himself calls it in the opening of the book, is a framework of tales antedating the Decameron of Boccaccio and the Canterbury Tales of Chaucer. The framework is this: a ruling count, Lucanor, when in doubt as to the course to pursue in some matter of statecraft or with regard to affairs in general, seeks advice of Patronius, formerly his tutor and now his counselor. The latter does not respond directly to him, but answers with a tale involving a similar situation and the solution that was there found possible for the difficulty. Basing himself thereon, the count proceeds to act in a suitable fashion in his own case. The moral of the tale is reënforced, for not only does Patronius state it in prose, but J. M. repeats it at the end in verse form, employing meters of several sorts (cf. F. Hanssen, Notas á la Versificación de Juan Manuel, in Anales de la Universidad, Santiago de Chile, 1902, p. 26).

Baist, who knows so well the whole work of J. M., has given a succinct account of the sources of the Conde Lucanor (Grundriss, II. ii. 419): "The contents of the 51 tales, from which everything obscene is excluded, are of the most varied: historical matter or half-historical matter dealing with Spain, the author's own experiences, some Arabic traditions, Phædrus, the Calila and Dimna, the Barlaam, along with the whole European stock of anecdotes. Some of all this is told in incomparable fashion, all of it from memory; the diction is lively, the manner original." Above all, Baist (p. 414) stresses the author's indebtedness to the general European fund of anecdotes. Rhetorical flourish is lacking in J. M.'s style; he coördinates his clauses and avoids turgidness, the besetting sin of later Spanish prose and verse.

With the exception of the Crónicas and the Libro de la Caça, Gayangos published J. M.'s works, in a very incorrect form, in Vol. LI of the Biblioteca de Autores Españoles; of some of the works he made improper divisions. The Libro de la Caça was edited by Baist, Halle, 1880, and by Gutiérrez de la Vega in Biblioteca Venatoria, Vol. III, Madrid, 1877; the Crónica Complida by Baist, in Roman. Forschungen VII. 551 ff., the volume which has also Gräfenberg's good edition of the Libro del Cauallero et del Escudero, with a study of the text. As the Libro del Cauallero et del Escudero, in the collective MS. S-34, is preceded only by the General Prologue, Gräfenberg has included the latter in his edition. It is preserved only in the one MS., at the head of which it stands, being followed immediately by the Libro del Cauallero et del Escudero.

Besides S-34 there are four other MSS. of the Conde Lucanor (some of which omit Parts II-V): viz. (1) one in the Biblioteca Nacional, M-100; (2) one in the Library of the Academia de la Historia at Madrid, Est. 27. gr. 3 a; (3) one which belonged to the Conde Puñonrostro and was purchased by E. Krapf; all of these are of the 15th century; and (4) one which was owned by Gayangos and belongs to the 16th century. The first printed edition was that of Argote de Molina, Seville, 1575. Practically reprints of this are the edition of Madrid, 1642, that of A. Keller, Stuttgart, 1839, and that of Barcelona, 1853. Better than these is that of the Biblioteca de Autores Españoles, LI, but, like the other documents printed in that volume, it is philologically unsatisfactory, being neither paleographic nor critical. Two different editions by E. Krapf, Vigo, 1898, and Vigo, 1900 (this latter giving the Puñonrostro MS.), are likewise unsatisfactory. The best available edition is that of H. Knust, prepared for the press, after his death, by Professor Birch-Hirschfeld, Leipzig, 1900. It is based upon MS. S-34 and aims to give variants from the other four MSS. and from the edition of Argote de Molina and that of Gayangos. It is not a definitive edition, however, as it leaves no little to be desired.

Cf. Baist, Grundriss II. ii. 418 ff.; Fitzmaurice-Kelly, Littérature espagnole, pp. 76 ff., and the bibliography on p. 462; Mérimée, Précis d'histoire de la littérature espagnole, pp. 64 ff.; Puymaigre, Les Vieux Auteurs castillans II. 177 ff.; the Introduction to Gräfenberg's edition of the Caallero et Escudero, and the introduction to the Knust edition of the Conde Lucanor. There is a French translation of the Conde Lucanor by A. de Puibusque, Paris, 1854; and an English translation by J. York, London, 1868, based perhaps upon the French. An older version is the German by Von Eichendorff, Berlin, 1840. For congeners to Juan Manuel's tales see Liebrecht's edition of Dunlop's Prose Fiction, Berlin, 1851, pp. 501 ff., and Puymaigre, l.c., as well as the notes appended to Knust's edition. Much remains to be done in the way of comparative literature studies on the Conde Lucanor.

52 1 To explain why he took the trouble to prepare a corrected collection of his works, J. M. narrates this tale in his General Prologue. He localizes it at Perpignan in a time not long before his own birth, but the story is an old and widespread one. It is told in Greek by Diogenes Laertius (2d or 3d century A.D.) in his Lives and Teachings of the Famous Philosophers of Antiquity, apropos of the Greek poet Philoxenus (4th century B.C.) and some brickmakers. The Italian tale-teller F. Sacchetti (1335-1410) has a similar tale about Dante and a blacksmith (Tale CXIV; cf. also CXV, and see Papanti, Dante secondo la tradizione e i novellatori, Leghorn, 1873, p. 61, note 4), and Dunlop, History of Prose Fiction, London, 1896, II. 152, indicates it as told of Ariosto and still other poets (cf. the London Athenæum, June 17, 1854). See further Menéndez y Pelayo, Orígenes I. xcv, and Landau, Beiträge zur Geschichte der ital. Novelle, p. 20. — Asi: in the original document it was assi. According to the editors, S-34 seems to have simplified intervocalic ss.

52 2 e[n] la faz[er]: the MS. has e la faz. Baist, Gräfenberg, and others propose the change. The other changes indicated here in [] are necessitated by scribal omissions.

52 9 primero: even in the Don Quijote we find traces of the full form before a noun. — don Jaymes: Jaime I of Mallorca, 1248-1311.

53 23 afan: there is no satisfactory etymology for this word. Fitz-Gerald, Sto. Domingo, p. 137, proposes an unexplained ad + fannum*. There seems to have been an older Sp. afaño, still used in Aragon; afan may be a Provençal loan-word, as Fitz-Gerald suggests.

54 1 This story was utilized by Calderón in La Vida es Sueño I. ii. 253 ff. Cf. Liebrecht's edition of Dunlop's Prose Fiction, p. 544, and Knust's note, pp. 323-324, where an Oriental variation is given.

54 5 contesce de estar: observe the linking preposition which is not used now.

54 18 atramizes: the i appears regularly in our text; we expect u as in the heading. Apparently only S. 34 has the i; the other MSS. have u (atramuces, atarmuces, etc.). The Arabic source is attormoç or attormuç.

55 21 cred: just as seer > ser, seed > sed, so other verbs, as creed, show occasionally the same contraction.

XII. PERO LÓPEZ DE AYALA: RIMADO DE PALACIO

There are two long MSS. of this work, the one at Madrid and the other in the Escorial. They will be described by Professor Kuersteiner in the paleographic edition which he is preparing for the Bibliotheca Hispanica. Previous to the appearance of the edition of Janer in Vol. LVII of the Biblioteca de Autores Españoles, only portions of the work had been printed; cf. F. Wolf, Studien zur Geschichte der span. u. portug. Nationallitteratur, pp. 138 ff. Janer's edition is unsatisfactory for philological purposes, as it shows modernizations and arbitrary editorial changes.

A leading noble of Castile, López de Ayala was born in 1332 and lived until 1407. He was active in both politics and warfare, and served in succession four sovereigns, Pedro I, Enrique II, Juan I, and Enrique III, apparently modifying his political views to suit the changing administrative conditions, and becoming Grand Chancellor of Castile in 1398. He suffered two periods of captivity, being captured first by the English at the battle of Nájera in 1367, and again by the Portuguese at Aljubarrota in 1385. Legend has it that upon the occasion of his first capture he was carried off to England by the Black Prince, and, a prisoner there, wrote his Rimado de Palacio under conditions similar to those under which James I of Scotland and Charles d'Orléans wrote their works. But substantial proof of his having ever been in England has not yet been given. Fitzmaurice-Kelly, Littérature espagnole, p. 83, says: "We can determine approximately the different periods in which the Rimado de Palacio was composed. In the first part of the poem an allusion to the schism which declared itself under the pontificate of Urban VI must date from 1378 or the following years; a reference to the death of Hernán Pérez de Ayala, father of the author, takes us to 1385 or shortly thereafter, and the mention that the schism had lasted twenty-five years fixes the date of composition at 1403."

López de Ayala's literary output is no slight one. He shows himself an early man of the Renaissance in his translations from Livy (the Decades), Boethius (De Consolatione Philosophiae), and Isidore of Seville (De Summo Bono), and he added to these versions his renderings of the Historia Trojana of Guido delle Colonne and the De Casibus Virorum Illustrium of Boccaccio. Like Juan Manuel, he also produced his treatise on falconry, the Libro de Cetrería (ed. in the Bibliófilos Españoles, Vol. V; cf. also Biblioteca Venatoria of Gutiérrez de la Vega, Madrid, 1879, Vol. III).

As an historian Ayala has his merits. "With this contemporary of the Frenchman Froissart and the Italian Villani [Villani died when Ayala was sixteen years old], history loses the impersonal character which it had usually had up to that time; the author, the man, shows himself at last, and communicates to the narrative an accent of individuality. Ayala also makes of it — or, at least, strives to make of it — an artistic work, according to the ancient models with which he was familiar, and which at times he strives to reproduce, especially Titus Livius" (E. Mérimée, Précis d'histoire de la littérature espagnole, p. 84). These capabilities as a historian he shows in his continuation of the official chronicles of the realm (Crónicas de los Reyes de Castilla: ed. in Biblioteca de Autores Españoles, Vol. LXVI, and by Llaguno y Amírola in Crónicas Españolas, Madrid, 1779), which embraces the periods of the four monarchs whom he served.

But the most important of the works of Ayala is his Rimado de Palacio, which, like the Libro de Buen Amor of Ruiz, is, at least partly, autobiographical in its nature. It differs from Ruiz's work in being eminently serious of tone in the satirical arraignment of the society of the time, which forms a large part of the whole. All classes are passed in review, from the lowest to the highest, and the Court especially is pilloried. Our extract deals with the tribulations of the soldier who vainly seeks in a venal court for any requital of his service of his king and country.

The autobiographical and satirical parts of the work are in cuaderna vía, and this is one of the last important examples of the use of this form. In some interspersed hymns and songs, most of which are addressed to the Virgin Mary, Ayala employs lyric measures common in the Provençal-Galician school, using especially the short line of 8 (7) and 7 (6) syllables with interwoven rimes. In conclusion, it may be said that the Rimado has much value as a picture of manners of the time. The title Rimado de Palacio is not due to the author; Baist says (Grundriss II. ii. 421, note 3): "its meaning is not quite clear, for 'rime' in Spanish [i.e. the term rime] is doubtful at this early time."

But see above, 48 15*b*, where Ruiz says: Fablar vos he por tobras e cuento rimado.

Cf. M. Menéndez y Pelayo, Antología de Poetas Líricos Castellanos, Vol. IV, pp. ix ff.; R. Floranes Robles, Vida Literaria de Pero López de Ayala, in Colección de Documentos Inéditos, Vols. XIX-XX; Baist in Grundriss II. ii. 421 ff. and 434 f.; Fitzmaurice-Kelly, Littérature espagnole, pp. 83 ff., and p. 463 (Notes bibliographiques); Mérimée, Précis, pp. 82 ff.

56 422 It is apparently from this part of the whole book that the title was taken: it means, perhaps, Libro Rimado de Palacio. Cf. Biblioteca de Autores Españoles, Vol. LVII, stz. 422.

In certain cases the imperfect Alexandrines may be amended easily; e.g. by omitting A in line b and inserting y before the second mas in line d. In other cases the emendation is not easy. We shall not try to correct the whole passage.

57 427*c* veer = ver for the verse; cf. 429*a*.

57 430*a* podes = podedes.

58 438*a* The reading comidiendo is good.

58 439*a* allego: note the intransitive use. Cf. note to 4 19-20.

XIII. LA ESTORIA DEL RREY ANEMUR E DE IOSAPHAT E DE BARLAAM

Lauchert prints this document from a 15th-century MS. of the Library of Strassburg University, which has also another O. Sp. text, Estoria de los Quatro Dotores de la Santa Iglesia (ed. by Lauchert, Halle, 1897). Our Estoria del Rrey Anemur etc. is simply a translation of an abridged redaction of the Barlaam and Josaphat story given by Vincent of Beauvais in his Latin Speculum Historiale of the 13th century. The translation was probably made in the 15th century: cf. Baist, Grundriss II. ii. 445; Romania X. 300; and F. de Haan in Modern Language Notes, 1895, pp. 11 ff.

The general framework of the originally Oriental mystical novel of Barlaam and Josaphat is well known; with the Sindibad (Seven Sages) and Calila and Dimna, it is one of the most widespread of Oriental fictions in the West. In its origin it seems to have been an Indian story of the Buddha, which narrated his seclusion from the world in his veriest childhood, his education, from which was carefully excluded all knowledge of the objects of the outer world, especially of its diseases and miseries and the things that caused them, and then, in spite of these precautions, his gradual learning, through fortuitous circumstances, just the things against which he had been guarded. Many more factors entered into the make-up of the Barlaam and Josaphat, but not the least interesting are the tales and visions, such as those illustrated from our Spanish translation of Vincent of Beauvais's version of the Christian adaptation of the Buddhistic story.

The Christian form of the story has been summed up by J. Dunlop in his History of Prose Fiction, London, 1896, I. 66 ff. In early Christian times, Abenner, a king of India, signalized himself by persecuting the Christians. After years of fruitless expectancy, a son, Josaphat, was born to him. Of the astrologers summoned to cast his horoscope one announces that Josaphat is destined to become a Christian. To guard against this, Abenner secludes the child in a splendid palace, where, with suitable teachers and attendants, he is to be brought up in ignorance of the miseries and evils of this life. But, through various accidents, the young prince eventually comes into contact with examples of all such things. Finally, to frustrate completely the king's plans, he becomes a Christian, when a noted hermit named Barlaam gains access to his palace and acquaints him with the doctrines of Christianity. His father is angry upon learning of this event, and seeks, by various wiles, to win the lad back. It is all in vain, and finally the father becomes a Christian himself. He is succeeded by his son Josaphat, who ere long renounces the throne to go forth into the desert as a hermit.

This Occidental form of the legend seems to be represented earliest by a Greek version (first published by Boissonade, Anecdota Graeca, Vol. IV, 1832), which was long attributed to St. John of Damascus. But it is now ascribed to another John, of a monastery near Jerusalem (cf. Zotenberg, in Notices et extraits des MSS. de la Bibliothèque nationale, Vol. XXVIII, Part I, 1886), who preceded St. John of Damascus by more than a century. Before the 13th century the Greek version appeared in a Latin form wrongly ascribed to George of Trebizond, as it is earlier than his time (cf. Menéndez y Pelayo, Orígenes de la Novela I. xxviii). In the 13th century appears Vincent of Beauvais's epitome, which forms the basis of the Spanish version.

Cf. Menéndez y Pelayo, Orígenes de la Novela (in Nueva Biblioteca de Autores Españoles), Madrid, 1905, p. xxvi, for a good bibliography of the legend.

59 1 This story is important, not only for Spanish literature, but for comparative literature in general (cf. Dunlop, History of Prose Fiction

I. 76, note). It appears in the early Italian collection of tales, the Novellino (cf. A. d'Ancona, in Studj di critica e storia letteraria, Bologna, 1880, pp. 279 ff., and p. 307, note); in Odo of Cherrington's Narrationes written in England in the 12th century; in Boccaccio's Decameron, where it forms an addition to the hundred tales, since it is found in the Introduction to the Fourth Day. In Spanish it appears in the Libro de Enxemplos of Clemente Sánchez (cf. below, p. 61, and see Biblioteca de Autores Españoles, Vol. LI, 504, Enxemplo CCXXXI). The general influence of the Barlaam legend (and the related Sindibad or Seven Sages legend) is seen in Lope de Vega's play Barlam y Josafá (1611), whose first act operated powerfully upon the construction of Calderón's famous play La Vida es Sueño. For other instances of the literary influence of the story, cf. Menéndez y Pelayo, l.c., p. xxxvii. See also Mérimée, Précis, p. 72.

59 4 dexieron: the e may be due to the influence of dezir; cf. 19 dixiesen, etc.

59 6 commo . . . oyese: this construction of como with the impf. subj. is quite old.

59 9 moço: on this word of unknown origin cf. Ford, Old Spanish Sibilants, pp. 73 ff.

59 10 auiente = aviente < Lat. habiens, habientem. Throughout, this document shows the Lat. pres. part. in -ans -antem, -ens -entem, retained with sufficient verbal force to take a direct object. Regularly, in Spanish, it was the gerund of Latin that assumed such a function; whence the Sp. -ando, -iendo forms. The use of the pres. participial forms here is probably a Latinism, due to a close imitation of the Latin text of Vincent of Beauvais.

59 20 dezien: we expect dizen 'people say,' 'it is said.'

60 6 With the hope of shaking Josaphat's Christian convictions and his expressed celibate purpose, his father has him exposed to carnal temptation. When he is about to succumb thereto, a vision comes to him, in which he sees the glories of Paradise. This vision has certain relations to the general medieval literature dealing with journeys to, or visions of, Paradise and the Earthly Paradise. Cf. A. d'Ancona, I precursorsi di Dante (Florence, 1874); A. Maury, Essai sur les légendes pieuses du moyen âge (Paris, 1843); D'Ancona e Bacci, Manuale della letteratura italiana, 2d ed. (Florence, 1904), pp. 437 ff.

XIV. EL LIBRO DE EXENPLOS POR A.B.C. DE CLIMENTE SÁNCHEZ

In 1860, Gayangos published in the Biblioteca de Autores Españoles, Vol. LI, the Libro de los Enxemplos, from an incomplete MS. of the Biblioteca Nacional, which gives no indication as to the author. Later there came to light the MS. (now in the Bibliothèque Nationale of Paris, Fonds espagnol, no. 432) utilized by Morel-Fatio in Romania VII, whence we publish our extracts. The Paris MS. has a short prologue, in which the author announces himself with the words Yo Clemente Sanchez, arcediano de Valderas en la iglesia de Leon, and says that it had been for some time his intention to copilar un libro de enxemplos por a. b. c. e despues rreduzirle en romance. Further he stresses the didactic purpose by saying: ectiam exenplis utimur in docendo et predicando ut facilius intelligatur quod dicitur. Of this Clemente Sánchez, Archdeacon of Valderas, we have some knowledge. Nicolás Antonio, in his Bibliotheca Hispana Vetus (Rome, 1696) II. 138, speaks of a MS. of the Escorial Library containing the Suma de exemplos del arcediano de Valderas, i.e. our document. This MS. is not discoverable now. It is known also that Sánchez wrote a Sacramental or liturgical manual (printed several times from 1475 on), and that he finished this at Leon in 1423. Morel-Fatio argues (Romania VII. 482 f.) that he was born about 1370 and composed his collection of examples between 1400 and 1421.

Combining the Paris MS. with that of Madrid, we seem able to obtain the complete text of Sánchez's work. "The 71 examples that we are going to read [i.e. those published by him]," says M.-F., "represent the part of the text contained in the first sheets, now lost, of the Madrid MS. In this latter there was also omitted the example published at the end of this first series and numbered CCXVI a [so that M.-F. really prints 72 additions to the Madrid MS.]: it is, moreover, the only example that the Paris MS. has in excess; on the other hand, it lacks a certain number, above all at the end of the text. The scribe, it seems, was in a hurry to finish it. As one might expect, the language of the collection in the Bibliothèque Nationale, which was copied in the last years of the 15th century, presents a less archaic character than the text of Madrid." This last, like all the documents in the Biblioteca series, is not printed in such a fashion as to make it available for philological purposes. M.-F. thinks that the Madrid MS. dates from the beginning of the 15th century.

As regards the actual date of compilation, Menéndez y Pelayo (Orígenes de la Novela, I. cii) agrees with M.-F., although he thinks it possible that the work was done in the last years of the 14th century.

The Madrid MS. has 395 examples or tales and the Paris MS. 72 additional ones, so that the complete collection consists of 467.

Because of a lack of local and national color in the tales, M.-F. thinks that Clemente Sánchez de Vercial (his full name given in the prologue to his Sacramental) did not go directly to the various sources which he mentions for them. He deems it more likely that he simply translated (in spite of his use of the word copilar) one of the Alphabeta Exemplorum or Narrationum, often put together in the 13th century for the use of preachers. He is not able, however, to identify Sánchez's work with any of the known Alphabeta. Menéndez y Pelayo believes in more real activity on Sánchez's part. Cf. Orígenes de la Novela I. ciii: "The narratives of the Archdeacon of Valderas belong to the common fund, and he himself indicates the sources of many of them; but did he himself consult these sources? In some cases we think that he did. The Disciplina Clericalis of Petrus Alphonsus is integrally and faithfully translated in the Libro de Exemplos. We have not made a similar comparison with the Dialogues of St. Gregory, which he cites at every moment, with the Lives of the Holy Fathers, with the Memorable Deeds and Sayings of Valerius Maximus, with the City of God of St. Augustine, etc. . . . but we believe it certain that all these works, so commonly read in the Middle Ages, were familiar to him, and he exploited them directly. Other citations may be at second hand." Baist (Grundriss II. ii. 414) seems to agree with M.-F.; he says: "Perhaps a smaller Latin Alphabetarium has been combined here with another Latin collection." On the Alphabeta cf. P. Toldo in Archiv f. das Studium d. neueren Sprachwissenschaften u. Literaturen for 1907.

The proper comparative literature studies have not yet been made of the various exemplos of the collection. See, however, Puymaigre, Les Vieux Auteurs castillans II. 107 ff., Jahrbuch f. roman. Literatur VI. 128, and J. F. Crane, The Exempla, etc., London, 1890 (Vol. XXVI of the Folk-Lore Society publications).

Each of the examples is preceded by a Latin maxim, translated at once into two imperfect (at least in the MSS.) Spanish verses. In these the moral to be conveyed is stated beforehand, just as in the Conde Lucanor it is stated at the end of the tale. The Latin maxims are arranged in alphabetical sequence: hence the title of the collection por A. B. C. This arrangement would seem to suggest a Latin alphabetum as source.

A scholarly edition of the whole text of the Libro de Exemplos is a desideratum: we may expect it from Professor M. A. Buchanan of Toronto University, who has already done some work on the Paris MS.

The text of our extracts seems Castilian. G. T. Northup, El Libro de los Gatos (Modern Philology V, Chicago, 1908), points out (p. 489) that "Valderas is almost exactly on the border-line between Leon and Castile. We should expect a MS. written there to show traces of the eastern Leonese dialect. These peculiarities abound in the Madrid MS. of the Exemplos."

61 1 This often used tale is in the Disciplina Clericalis, in the Castigos of Don Sancho (Biblioteca de Autores Españoles LI. 156), in the Conde Lucanor (No. 2), in the Espejo de los Legos derived from John of Hoveden's Speculum Laicorum (a 13th-century work), etc. A transcript of the Paris MS. made by Professor Buchanan shows slight variations from Morel-Fatio's text: l. 8 como is coño, l. 15 secretamente and 62 4 sepultura have initial ss, etc.

62 13 Cf. Puymaigre, l.c., p. 112, note, for other applications of the advice contained in the inscription.

62 25 Observe penssar taking a direct object.

XV. EL POEMA DE JOSÉ

There are still extant a number of literary documents written in Spanish by Spanish Moors. In obedience to a hieratical custom, or for some other reason, these Moors used Arabic characters when writing their Romance text. The Spanish Jews did so, too, in the older period, and Yiddish is still written and printed in Hebrew characters. The Spanish documents thus written in Arabic characters are aljamiados, or texts in aljamía, from the Arabic word meaning 'barbarian,' applied by the Spanish Moslem to the Mozarabes, i.e. the Arabs who were not of pure blood or Christians whose blood was mingled with that of Arabs. In their turn (cf. M. Schmitz, l.c., p. 323) the Spaniards applied the term aljamía to the somewhat degenerate Spanish, intermingled with Arabic elements, which was spoken by the Mozarabes and the Moriscos. Here, we use the term in the general sense of works in Spanish written in Arabic characters. Of these the best is the Poema de José, or, to use the aljamiado form of the name, Poema de Yuçuf.

There is no complete MS. of the José that has yet come to light, but the larger part of its contents is known to us from two MSS. Of these the older, once possessed by the scholar Gayangos and now at Madrid in the Library of the Academia de la Historia (T-12), is the one published by R. Menéndez Pidal in his Poema de Yuçuf (in the Revista de Archivos, Bibliotecas y Museos, Madrid, 1902), along with a transliteration of it and a study of the text and its literary relations. There has been some variety of opinion as to the date of this MS. That part of it containing the José was by Gayangos placed first in the 16th century and then in the 15th. II. Morf (El Poema de José, Leipzig, 1883, p. x) does not believe that it belongs farther back than the end of the 15th century nor that it is more than three quarters of a century older than the other MS. (Gg-101). On the other hand, Menéndez Pidal, following the statement of E. Saavedra (in Discursos leídos ante la Real Academia Española, Madrid, 1878, p. 162), believes that the José part of this MS. — obviously the oldest part of it, much older than other parts, which are clearly of the 16th century — is of the 14th century, and thinks that the language of the document is a good argument to this effect. "The absence," he says (Yuçuf, p. 2), "of the strong Castilian influence which is observed in Aragonese writings of the 15th century, is an indication, and another is the retention of the dental in the paroxytonic ending of the 2d pers. pl. forms of verbs." This MS. has 95 stanzas of cuaderna vía (like Ayala's Rimado it still uses that form), extending from the beginning of Joseph's story down to the affair with Zaliha or Zaliha (Potiphar's wife). The account given has many things in it not found in the Biblical account in Genesis. The document (and this is true of the other MS. also, for they give the same account in their corresponding parts) follows rather the 12th sura or chapter of the Koran, with its variations from the Biblical story, and also adds elements due neither to the Bible nor to the Koran, but to the fantastication of such Oriental writers as the Hebrew Cab of Yemen, who became a Mohammedan under the caliphate of Omar. Throughout the whole poem, as exhibited by the combined MSS., there is little evidence of originality on the poet's part. On the lacunae and other defects in its text, cf. Menéndez Pidal, l.c., p. 2.

The other MS. (Gg-101) is preserved in the Biblioteca Nacional at Madrid. It was published by H. Morf in his Gratulationsschrift der Universität Bern an die Universität Zürich, etc., El Poema de José, Leipzig, 1883, with a description of the MS. Of the text thus published a transliteration was printed by M. Schmitz in Roman. Forschungen XI. 315. Schmitz repeats Morf's description of the MS. and enters into a discussion of the linguistic and literary nature of the document. This, in its turn, has been discussed by Menéndez Pidal in the article mentioned. This MS. Gg-101 appears to be of the 16th century. It lacks the beginning of the poem, some nine strophes, and also the end of it. The beginning is supplied by the other MS., but for the end we have no such help. Morf thinks that about 50 strophes are lacking, i.e. about eight folios of the MS., as he deems that in that space the poet would have covered fully the remainder of the account given in the 12th chapter of the Koran. Other defects in Gg-101 are described by Morf and Schmitz.

Schmitz believed that he found Orientalisms in the syntax of the José, but Menéndez Pidal (p. 52) regards his arguments as untenable.

Another very fragmentary MS., containing but four strophes, is described by Morf, p. x, and by Schmitz, p. 319. It belonged to the great collection of MSS. of aljamía made by Gayangos.

The language of the José is clearly the Aragonese dialect. This is even more markedly the case in the older MS. (T-12). Cf. Menéndez Pidal, p. 40: "Both A [i.e. T-12] and B [i.e. Gg-101] present Aragonese traits, but with this difference: B is very modern, of the second half of the 16th century, and its Aragonese is much Castilianized, although not completely so; A, being much older, presents the dialect with greater purity. Both represent a language more popular than that generally used by the Aragonese littérateurs at the respective dates." A detailed study of the Aragonese elements in the language of both MSS. is given by Menéndez Pidal, pp. 40-56. For another account of Aragonese traits cf. Saroihandy in Annuaire de l'École des hautes études, 1898 and 1901.

As to the date of composition of the original poem, Menéndez Pidal naturally places it at not later than the 14th century; cf. also Menéndez y Pelayo, Orígenes, etc., I. lxxv. Morf assigns it to the second half of the 15th century.

Schmitz, pp. 325-356, gives full directions for a system of transliteration of the Arabic script. For another description of a method of transliteration cf. Ford, Old Spanish Sibilants, pp. 159-160. The transliteration made by Gayangos of Gg-101 for Vol. LVII of the Biblioteca de Autores Españoles is quite incorrect, as was the earlier form which he provided for Ticknor's History of Spanish Literature. This is no longer included in the American edition, but appears in the German and Spanish translations.

On a later Moorish treatment of Joseph's story, the Leyenda de José, cf. Leyendas Moriscas, etc., published by F. Guillén Robles (Madrid, 1885-1886). Compare our José passage with that from the Estoria General given on p. 45; this latter was taken by Alfonso or his collaborator from an Arabic source also, the Book of Roads and Realms of the Moorish King of Niebla (near Seville). See Puymaigre II. 169 ff.

63 89 a It will be quite obvious that many of the verses are metrically imperfect, and that the rimes are sometimes supplanted by assonance.

63 89 b abiria: in Arabic two consonants cannot stand together in the same syllable. So, if two consonants come together in a syllable in Spanish, the José inserts between them a duplicate of the vowel following the second of them: therefore abria becomes abiria, ombres becomes omberes, etc. For such cases as abria, however, the Moorish scribe sometimes does not do this, regarding the b and r as in different syllables; cf. 90 d abre, 95 a Yabras. — quesido: in this dialect form the consonant of the pret. indic. etc. has been carried over to the past part.

63 89 c dixendo: this seems a dialect form and not simply a scribal error: the pret. stem has entered even into the present participle. 90 d deseyo, 91 c jaze, 93 d fegura, 97 c fues, and other forms here show sufficiently the dialectal nature of the language; cf., however, Menéndez Pidal's remark as to the large Castilianizing that this MS. Gg-101 has undergone.

63 91 a dieç: here the text has, at the end of the word, the letter sin which answers to the early Spanish ts sound. This O. Sp. wrote regularly as ç at the beginning of a word and between vowels, and as z before a consonant and also at the end of a word. This use of z was only scribal and conventional; it was not phonological, since O. Sp. z properly denoted the ds sound. Now, only in this one case does the José in our MS. write final sin = ç (i.e. ts) for what in Roman script is regularly final O. Sp. z = ts. In 1 b and 16 b it writes diez with Arabic zāy; but zāy was never ts in value in Arabic. Again in 91 a annos; 94 a suenno, etc., the Arabic text indicates a double nūn, which accords with the O. Sp. spelling nn, but not with the pronunciation, which was palatalized n. Could not the Arabic scribe have approximated more to the sound, writing ny or something of the sort? I have already pointed out (Old Spanish Sibilants, p. 158) that 105 b has tiepo (so in Morf's text and not tiempo) for tiempo and 103 d salia for salian, and ventured to suggest that the Arabic scribe was "rendering literally the words of a MS. in Roman characters, in which the nasal dash was sometimes lacking [i.e. the dash over a vowel indicating that a nasal consonant belongs after it], a common enough occurrence in other O. Sp. documents." Menéndez Pidal denies the copying from a MS. in Roman characters, and thinks that here, and in other cases cited by him (p. 57), we are in the presence of a phonetic phenomenon, the disappearance of the nasal consonant through a nasalization of the preceding vowel. Have we evidence enough of that? However the case may be, Schmitz (p. 355), in view of the care with which the Arabic scribe regularly differentiates r and rr, l and ll, n and nn, s and ç and z, infers that "the scribe of the José was adequately informed regarding both the pronunciation and the orthography of Spanish." Herein we see that the phonetic value of aljamiado texts must not be overrated: they give us certain corroborative information regarding O. Sp. sounds which have changed in the modern language, since the equivalence of the Arabic characters adopted impels us to suppose (as other testimony indicates) O. Sp. z = dz, ç = ts, j and g(e,i) = dž, etc.; but, on the other hand, they adopt also conventionalities of the Roman-script writing of Spanish; cf. Ford, l.c., p. 158.

63 93 a Yuçuf, understood, is subject to castigaba and curaba.

63 93 d gele: observe le here and in 89 b; elsewhere lo is used; cf. 94 b, 99 b, etc.

64 94 c disso: the MS. has šin, which in aljamía stands for both O. Sp. s and x (i.e. š, sh). The tešdīd or sign of doubling stands over the šin. This is probably an error of the scribe, who meant only dixo. At all events dixxo would be as correct as disso. Cf. 99 c. — fues = here and in 97 c fueste. So in 31 b fues stands for subj. fueses. With this loss of the final syllable Schmitz compares ley = leite in 104 a.

64 95 c ya = y a.

64 96 c If luzero means the morning star, we have an allusion to the belief that the dreams just before dawn come true. To this Dante refers several times.

64 97 b sacosele: cf. also 94 b sacoselo. Note the equivalence of sele, selo, with gele of 93 d. This writing of se = ge shows the lateness of the MS. So also does the regular appearance here of s for intervocalic double s.

64 97 d fiziestes: apparently here, and in 99 d dixestes, the 2d pl. form is mingled with the 2d sg. in addressing the same person.

65 103 b de que: i.e. a dream to the effect that, etc.

65 103 d The MS. has salia. Here, and in one other case, Schmitz needlessly saw an Arabicism of syntax, in the appearance of a singular verb before a plural subject. The scribe simply forgot his nasal sign; cf. note to 91 a.

65 106 c vaçia: again the scribe has confused his sibilants, writing voiceless sîn (ç) for voiced zāy (z).

65 108 b ye: Schmitz takes this as = le. It thus occurs side by side in this passage with ge and se.

XVI. DANÇA GENERAL

This anonymous document is preserved in but a single MS. It is in the Escorial Library (IV-b-21) and contains the Fernán González and several other important documents. According to Appel, the script of the part containing the Dança is not earlier than the 15th century.

The Dança appeared in print (and in a very imperfect form) first in Ticknor's History of Spanish Literature III. 459 ff. (cf. last ed., p. 531). Janer then printed it at Paris in 1856, and in 1864 reprinted it at Madrid in Vol. LVII of the Biblioteca de Autores Españoles. Janer's text is also bad, and therefore Appel prepared his edition, from which our extracts come. There is also now the edition of Barcelona, 1907, which agrees with that of Appel, yet shows the correct form dize in the three or four cases near the beginning of the poem in which Appel seems clearly to find dise (cf. p. 5, note 1, of Appel's ed.).

In point of composition the Dança is probably of the 15th century and not later than the middle of it (cf. Baist, Grundriss II. ii. 428); some put it in the first half of the century. A later elaboration of it, first printed in 1520, has been reprinted by A. de los Ríos in his Historia Crítica de la Literatura Española VII. 507 ff: this Appel deems of some value in suggestion of corrections to be made in the text of the Dança, which is, metrically and otherwise, sometimes at fault.

The Dance of Death is a subject which has figured in both the literary and the pictorial art of several countries, and there is reason to suppose that, at least originally, the literary forms interpreted the paintings. W. Seelmann, in his Totentänze des Mittelalters (Leipzig, 1893), has studied the literary category concerned, and has pointed out a certain resemblance between the Spanish poem and a Lübeck Totentanz of 1463. But the Dança also has affinities with a French Danse Macabré of the 15th century (published by V. Dufour in Recherches sur la Danse macabre, Paris 1873; cf. id., La Danse macabre des SS. Innocents de Paris, 1874). For a comparison of the three documents, cf. Appel, pp. 2 ff. The Spanish piece is far superior to the others in literary merit, excelling them in liveliness of spirit, in characterization, and in the keenness of its satire. Still, the origin of the Spanish work is probably to be sought in some earlier French poem. Cf. Fitzmaurice-Kelly, Littérature espagnole, p. 93: "This Dance of Death (Danse Macabré) is thought (as well as the German Totentanz) to be imitated from a French original as yet unknown; it is at present the oldest version of the legend that has come down to us. Although its form is superficially dramatic, the Danza is not a real drama. Death summons mortals to his sinister festival, forcing them to take part in his dance. The thirty-three victims — a pope, an emperor, a cardinal, a king, and so on (a cleric and a layman always alternate in it) — respond to the invitation in a series of octaves which will soon be surpassed by the sonorous music of Mena [Juan de Mena, the poet, 1411–1456], but mark an advance over the versos de arte mayor which some think they see in the Libro de Buen Amor of Ruiz (cf. F. Wolf, Studien, 413; Morel-Fatio, L'Arte mayor et l'hendécasyllabe, in Romania XXXIII; Foulché-Delbosc, Étude sur le Laberinto de Juan de Mena, in Revue hispanique IX). The poet of the Danza de la Muerte was an expert in morbid allegory."

In addition to the articles on the arte mayor cited by Fitzmaurice-Kelly, cf. F. Hanssen, Zur spanischen u. portug. Metrik (Valparaíso, 1900); id., El Arte Mayor de J. de Mena (in Anales de la Universidad de Chile, Santiago de Chile, 1906); and J. Schmitt, Sul verso de arte mayor (in the proceedings of the Reale Academia dei Lincei, Rome, 1905); as well as the older statement of A. Bello in his Ortología y Métrica (cf. his Obras Completas, Santiago de Chile, 1884, Vol. V). Appel (pp. 9 ff.) discusses the metrical condition of our poem. It has one of the usual stanzaic arrangements of the arte mayor, viz. that of the octave with its lines rhyming a b a b b c c b. What the original and perfect type of the individual line of arte mayor was, has been the subject of some debate. "The peculiarity of this verse," says Appel, "as compared with French, Provençal, and Italian verses, is, as is well known, that the number of its syllables seems to be no definitely fixed one. If, as usually happens, we regard as the basic form the decasyllable, which by a cæsure after the fifth syllable is divided into two equal parts, then the number of syllables should vary between 10 and, with feminine cæsure and feminine verse-ending, 12. (Even two unaccented syllables may stand at the cæsure.) But, now, the first syllable of every hemistich may also be omitted, so that we have in the half-verse 4 syllables instead of 5 (or, with feminine ending, 5 instead of 6); and just as the regular number of syllables may be diminished by one, so also one may be added, so that we may count 6 (or 7) of them in the half-verse."

When all is said and done, it is the accent that furnishes the fixed principle of the line of arte mayor. One wonders whether the initial principle was not that of two accents in each half-line. Perhaps the unaccented syllables were arranged symmetrically around those accented, and the perfect type was that represented by stz. I, l. h:

Con ésta | mj frécha || cruél tras|pasánte.

This, under a rhythmic stress scheme, corresponds to an amphibrachic arrangement under a quantitative scheme. Cf. Ford, An Old Spanish Anthology (N.Y., 1901), pp. xxxvi ff. To avoid monotony and sing-song effect various modifications may then have been made. Secondary accents might occur in the second and eighth syllables; and, even more than that, the accent might fail entirely in those syllables. But, of course, it is not certain whether the seemingly perfect type is fundamental or an elaboration.

Taking for the half-line a scheme such as we propose, viz.

with an optional suppression of the final unaccented syllable, Appel finds that 693 out of the 1264 half-verses of the Dança correspond to it. To these we may add 33 more, if we count the cases in which the first accent yields to a secondary accent, viz.

○ \ ○ | ○ / (○)

The next most frequent type appears in but 106 half-verses. On the other probable varieties represented in the document, cf. Appel, l.c.

66 1 trasladaçion: Appel (l.c., Anmerkungen, pp. 32 ff.) thinks that this indicates a literary taking-over, a translation or free rendering of, say, a French original, rather than a mere scribal copying.

66 2 tracta: this seems to have no subject. Appel thinks that it may stand for tractan (i.e. the nasal dash, = n, was forgotten over the last a) with indefinite subject. The indefinite 3d pl. occurs elsewhere in the poem. Of course the en might be suppressed.

66 3 abisa: was this originally the imper. sg. of the verb avisar, 'look out!' — pare = paren. The scribe forgot the nasal dash over c.

66 7 pugn: the MS. has pugnñi: but pugnén must be meant; l. 482 has pugnastes.

66 1 a The 1520 ed. has the metrically better line

Yo la muerte encerco á las criaturas.

This may represent the original reading of this verse, or it may be an elaboration.

66 Ig This is an interesting early use of cuando as a preposition. See Bello-Cuervo, Gramática Castellana, 1183, 1240. Cf. Eng. 'we did it when children' for a possible transition stage.

67 IIg landre: the reference is to the bubonic plague or pest. — ynplisyon: Appel would derive this from Lat. implēre and translate 'filling out,' 'swelling.'

67 IIh el tu: the article occurs frequently here with the poss. adj.

67 III d me: this is an ethical dative. The 1520 print has Que en mi venida me detardaré.

67 V b nascido: the rime requires nado.

67 V d traxo: there is a correction in the MS. here and Appel is not entirely certain whether traxo or truxo was the first reading. The 1907 ed. says that truxo was the original reading. At all events the correction is in the same hand as the original word. The sense is not quite clear here. The 1520 print has que traxo al mundo un solo bocado, i.e. '(death) which a single mouthful (i.e. of the apple of Paradise) brought into the world.' In v. 165 f. our poet speaks of mother Eve as having gained death for us by tasting forbidden fruit.

67 V h forçado: an adverb = forzadamente, forzosamente.

68 VII f nos otros: the modern form of the pronoun in prepositional use seems clear here.

68 VIII b soes: the d intervocalic is now gone. In later script a corrector of the MS. changed this to soys, i.e. our sois. Cf. f, vayaes.

68 VIII h Appel cannot make out what stood originally at the beginning of this line. In later script there is Per mj, not Pormi as Janer has it.

68 IX a We need A esta mj dança etc., as the 1520 print reads. The 1907 ed. has [A] Esta.

68 XVIII a Observe the article even in the vocative use of the poss. adj. In O. Sp. the article is found even directly before nouns in the vocative. Technically the nouns are in apposition with a pronoun "ye" understood.

69 XVIII c The first half-verse is too short. The 1520 print has agora after vos.

69 XVIII e f Appel says: "The MS. reading can hardly be kept unmodified. The 1520 print reads que veo en balança Estar mi vida, perder mis sentidos."

69 XVIII g The first half-line is improved by reading, as the print does, cor for coraçon.

69 XLII g peores amjgos: 'the worst of friends,' viz. libelo and fuero. The 1520 print has Lo peor es, amigos.

70 XLIII c Appel proposes nothing here, but one wonders whether there should not be an en before miente. If not, the latter seems to mean 'memory.'

70 XLIII e Cf. Appel: "Cino (da Pistoja, died 1337) and Bartholo (died 1357) are the well-known teachers of law. But who is meant by el Cole(c)torio (a real proper name is certainly not before us here), I have not been able to determine even with the help of jurists among my friends. Nor have I been able to discover a particular work called Collectarium."

70 XLIII h E vos: the print has Venid vos.

70 LII a sea: the print has será.

70 LII c The print omits santo; it should be stricken out here. — In contenple we have a poor rime. Did the poet say contempre? — Does the attitude of the monk here suggest that the poet was himself a monk? Of course our Dança is anonymous.

71 LXXIX e príncipe: Appel asks whether we should not read principio. The print has comienzo.

71 LXXIX h comedio: here apparently 'place,' 'site,' 'scene,' and in d 'course,' 'behavior.' But?

ETYMOLOGICAL VOCABULARY

NOTE. Wherever possible, Vulgar Latin etyma have been given for words not found in Latin. Of course, the V. L. forms did not necessarily ever exist in many of the cases. Analogy (especially in the verb system), working at an early date in the already developed vernacular, can explain many phenomena without recourse to V. L. bases.

encenso (n. from incensum, p.p. of L. incendere) incense, 9 72. (The mod. encenso either shows an ẽ in incensum or owes its diphthong to analogy. The form acenso is due to a confusion of prefixes; cf. old acender = encender.)

ençerrar (V. L. inserrare*, L. in + serare. The doubling of r is peculiar. The change of s- to ç-, originally = ts, is also strange; perhaps after the n the s organically developed to ts. A combination with the L. adv. intus > ents* could produce the ç,

- esto* (L. stō; the y of mod. estoy, like that of soy, voy, is unexplained; it may be due to the production of a glide vowel when the subject pron. was postfixed, esto yo > estoy yo. Perhaps the process started with O. Sp. so < sūm, which appears in Western Sp. as soe, regarded by some as the source of mod. soy; cf. estar) 46 17 etc.

In mod. Sp. é remains before words beginning with i- and hi-, where its greater sonority has preserved it; in enclitic or proclitic use with words ending in a vowel or beginning with any vowel except i- (hi-), the e, as an hiatus vowel, became y, whose

mesquinu (perhaps an error for mesquino; cf. mezquino in line preceding, 21 25) 21 26.

mester (a more popular development of menester, from L. genitive mīnistērī > menester > men'ster* > mester): ha mester it is necessary, 37 354 a; avedes mucho mester caualleros you have great need of knights, literally, you have knights [as a thing] of great need, 43 25; mucho era mester it was very necessary, 44 18. (Menester alone survives.)

mesura (L. mensūra) measure, moderation, 39 369 b; 43 7.

mesurado -a (p.p. of mesurar, L. mensurāre) measured, moderate, with moderation, 13 7.

meter (L. mīttēre, V.L. mīttēre* 'to send.' The sense development is this: 'to send' > 'to transfer' > 'to put,' i.e. somewhere else) to put, place, 15 119, 120; 20 1208; etc.; meter bozes to emit shouts, 42 23.

metyo = metiō (cf. meter), 38 365 a.

mi (as a poss. adj. this appears to have been at first only fem.; L. mēa > mīēa* > mīa and, in proclitic use before a word beginning with a vowel, especially with a, e.g. mīaalma, mīalma, mī alma, > mi. It is possible that the V. L. had mēa, whence directly mīa; cf. Zauner, Romanische Sprachwissenschaft, 2d ed., I 69. Of the 19 cases in these extracts, only 3 are masc., and they are not in the earlier texts. As the form later became generalized for masc. and fem. use, they may mark the beginning of the change. It is doubtful that it is necessary to pass from mīa to mi through a weakened fem. mīe. Cf. Menéndez Pidal, El Dialecto Leonés, p. 49. On mi was constructed the pl. mis) my, 11 120; 12 142; 14 83; 46 21; 56 422 a, 424 d, 425 a; masc. 56 425 c; 57 429 c, 433 b; 58 440 c; masc. 56 441 c; 61 19; 62 2; with prefixed art. as in Ital., la mi, 47 2, 8, 10; 54 4; masc. al mi, 62 1. (Cf. the retention of this usage in the Lord's Prayer, Venga el tu reino. These extracts do not show mīa as adj. before a noun. The masc. form as poss. adj. was regularly mīo.) Cf. mj.

mīa (fem. poss. adj. after its noun) my, 47 16; cf. mi.

miedo (L. mētus -um) fear, 18 1097; 38 366 e; etc.

miente (L. mens, mēntem): parar mientes to mind, pay attention, 46 9; 53 6. (Only in this expression and similar ones mientes persists; cf. mente.)

miente (cf. preceding word and mente) element of adv.: fyera miente fiercely, 38 364 a.

mientra (ety. not clear. Perhaps L. dum + interim, whence domentre*, and through some analogy, e.g. that of the adverbial miente, > domiente. Thence, by decomposition, mientre. Under the influence of advs. in -a (fuera, etc.), mientra may have been formed. But?): mientra que while, as long as, 16 158, 173.

mio, mios poss. adj. masc. sg. in proclitic use (L. měšs -ŕm, accusative pl. měšs > míeo, míeos > mílo, mílos), my, 11 117, 118, 119, 121, 123, 124; 19 1148; 21 4; 42 33; 43 29; with the art. as in Ital., el mio, 17 204; 47 4, 5, 11, 12, 15. (There seems to be some evidence, e.g. that of assonance, in O. Sp., to the effect that mio was at least sometimes accented míó. To this the analogy of to and so might have led; but the question is an open one. For mod. proclitic mi cf. mí.) Cf. mjo and myo.

mismo -a (cf. mesmo. Apparently mismo is equally early with mesmo, if not earlier, and has beside it also an O. Sp. meismo, for which there may be supposed a V. L. metēpsimus -a -um*, with ē. The word presents many difficulties, of which the entire disappearance in early O. Sp. of intervocalic L. -t- is not the least. On the supposition that mesmo was the earlier form, mismo has been ascribed to assimilating influence in the combinations mi mesmo, ti mesmo, etc. > mi mismo, etc.) same, self, 60 8; 61 20; esso mismo likewise, 30 8 b.

mj = mi poss. adj. proclitic, my, 49 299 b; 66 I 6; 68 IX 1; 69 XVIII 8; 70 XLIII 6; with art., la mj, 67 III 4; los mjs, 68 XVIII 1. (Cf. mi; only two of the cases of mj are fem., but they are all relatively late.)

Mont Aluan (pr. n.) Montalvan, 18 1089. (Cf. Mon Real; before a vowel proclitic monte at first kept its z.)

morar (V. L. mōrāre*, L. mōrārĭ) to dwell, abide, 25 100 c; 60 24. (The pres. tense forms with o instead of ue, e.g. moran, show either the analogy of the forms not accenting the first syll., or a learned treatment.)

morauedi = moravedí (Arab. morā-bitī) a coin, 22 28. (Cf. mod. maravedí, which perhaps shows the assimilating force of the a of the second syll.)

mostrar (L. monstrāre, V. L. mōs-trāre*) to show, exhibit, 26 289 c; 59 11; etc. (The pres. tense forms showing the diphthong are due to the analogy of o, ue verbs from L. etyma with ŕ.)

mouer = mover, 16 169; 24 93 c; etc.

mover (L. mōvĕre) to move, start, 37 355 d. (The pres. indic. muevo, pres. subj. mueva, etc., are due to V. L. mōvo*, movam*, etc., for L. mōvēō, mōvēām, etc.)

much apocopated form of mucho (adv.).

mucho -a (L. mūltus -a -um; the palatal developed after the ŷ, V. L. q, closed it to u; mūltum > mōlto > moyĭto* > muĭyo* > mucho) (adj.) much, many a, 32 19 c; 37 357 c; (pl.) many, 26 108 c etc.; (pron.) much, 24 93 d; (pl.) many, 61 22.

mucho (L. mūltum, ablative and instrumental mūlto 'by much,' i.e. 'a great deal') a great deal, much, 53 25; 54 16; modifying a finite form of a verb, as in mod. Sp. 19 1134; 41 25; 43 28; 52 4; 55 10; modifying an adj. or a part.: here (1) sometimes the verb intervenes between mucho and the adj. or part., and its instrumental use is clear, again (2) mucho stands immediately before the adj. or part. where the mod. Sp. uses only muy; (1) mucho avie grandes cuydados he had very great care, 13 6; mucho es pesado it is very heavy, 14 91; mucho era de malfado he was very unfortunate, 37 360 c; mucho fue espantado he was greatly terrified, Munno = Muño, pr. n., 40 16.

muriero fut. sbj. I of morir (V. L. fut. perf. I morivero*, moriero*. The form is interesting as tending to show that the fut. perf. indic. as well as the perf. sbj. entered into the make-up of the Sp. fut. sbj.), I shall die, 42 34.

muro (L. mūrus -um) wall, 60 20, 22.

muy (L. mūltum, ablative mūlto, developed in proclitic position and therefore shortened before an adj., an adjectival p.p., or an adv.; e.g. mūltum, or mūlto, bōnum > moyto buono > muyt [i.e. with a loss of palatalization in t before the following cons. after loss of o] bueno > muy bueno, with assimilation of t to b. The palatalizing effect of lt > yl closed the ŷ, V. L. ç, to u. The form mucho much could develop as an adv. before a word beginning with a vowel, e.g. much amado, but the form muy became generalized) very, 17 183; 24 97 c; 27 353 c; etc. Cf. muy mas rico, 55 8, and muy menos, 55 24, cases in which the mod. naçido -a (p.p. of naçer, earlier nasc, p.p. nascido -a, V. L. nascītus* -a -um, which was developed beside L. natus -a -um, giving the p.p. for perfect tenses, while the latter gave the adjectival nado -a. The s was absorbed by the ç = ts) born, 6 4, 5; etc.

nada (L. p.p. fem. nata, from nascor, used in such an expression as res nata, rem natam 'thing born,' 'thing existing,' 'anything.' In V. L. the noun was dispensed with. Originally the word was only positive in force; later by constant association with a negative non, no, it gained a negative force as well, and, when no verb was used with it, it could have this force. In these extracts it generally stands after a verb and non precedes the verb, as in mod. Sp., so that in and for itself it has only the positive sense) something, anything, 7 47; (non + verb + nada) nothing, 14 84; 25 98 a; 27 354 d, 357 d; 33 74 b; 46 24; 57 433 d; (in one case it is nada + non + verb) nothing, not at all, 64 97 b.

nado (perhaps an abstract from nadar 'to swim,' L. natare, rather than a direct derivative from the p.p. natus -a -um of L. no, nare 'to swim.' Apparently it exists in O. Sp., as in mod. Sp., only in the phrase á nado = nadando): salian a nado they got out by swimming, 37 358 d.

nado -a adjectival p.p. of nacer (L. natus -a -um), born, 21 25; oñe nado = omne nado, any one born, any living soul, any one,

16 151; cf. naçido. (O. Sp. uses nado, nadi [which owes its i — simply a pronominal ending and not necessarily a pl. one — to the influence of O. Sp. relative pron. qui], and nadie, which survives, all as pronominal forms. The ie of nadie has not been explained; it may be due to the analogy of alguien, or to a contamination of O. Sp. nadi and a nade* made up on the analogy of relative que, but this latter process has not been demonstrated.)

nariz (V. L. narix*, naricem*, L. naris) nostril, nose: narizes (mod. narices) nostrils, 43 12.

nascer (L. nasci, V. (Later the ç = ts absorbed the preceding s, whence mod. nacer.)

nasçido = naçido; cf. also nasçer and nado.

nasco strong pret. 3 of nasçer (V. L. pret. 3 nascūit*), was born, 17 202; 20 1195; 18 1114. Cf. the weak pret. nasçio, mod. nació; it is used side by side with this weak form in O. Sp.

nescesidad (cf. nesçesidad) 61 23.

nesçesidad (L. necessitas, necessitātem; the s before the ç is due to scribal error. In the later O. Sp. period, L. sc before e, i, had become ç, but the s was still often written; by transferal this meaningless s was written in cases in which it was not etymological) necessity, 71 LXXIX 2.

nesçio cf. neçio (the ç absorbed the etymological s), ignorant, silly, stupid, 50 491 a; 56 424 d.

Nicrao pr. n., 46 3.

niebla (L. něbŭla) cloud, mist, 65 106 d.

niece = nieve (this can hardly have come from L. nix, nĭvem, which should have given neve*. It is perhaps a derivative from the verb nevar, nieva [an analogical form], etc., 'to snow,' V. L. něvare* based on nix, nĭvem. It should be stated that L. has a p.p. nĭvātus -a -um 'cooled with snow') snow, 56 425 d.

njguna = niguna (cf. nigun), 68 VII 4.

njgunt = nigun (with inorganic t due to the analogy of forms like L. secundum > O. Sp. segund > O. Sp. segunt > según), 25 105 b.

njn = nin, 25 105 b; 68 IX 6; 69 XLII 6; 71 LXXVIII 6.

no = nos; possibly a scribal error, but as it occurs before l, no lo ha buscado, 17 192; mereçer nolo hedes, 17 197, it may be a Western dialectal suppression of s before l, as in Portuguese.

no (L. nōn, whence O. Sp. non, which in proclitic use, or in combination with a following pronoun, lost its final n, as in nol, nolo, nola, nos, for non le, etc. Hence, by redivision, no, which was then generalized) not, no, 6 2; 9 81; 11 115; 12 137, 146; 14 82; 21 22; 47 10; etc.

pelea (perhaps an abstract from pelear 'to fight.' This latter is of uncertain origin. The Gk. παλεῖν 'to struggle,' 'wrestle,' has been proposed. Not unlikely is a formation on pelo, L. pilus -um 'hair,' in -ear, V.L. -idhare, i.e. 'to clutch by the hair,' 'pull the hair out of,' 'fight') struggle, fight, 43 21.

appears to have been originally a plume or bunch of feathers. The d may be due to the influence of pender 'to hang'; cf. the interworkings of Eng. pennant and pendant. In O. Sp., loan-words in -nn- were sometimes rendered with -nd-, i.e. the second dental nasal lost its nasality and remained as a dental stop) pennant, number of men going with a pennant, i.e. a knight and followers, 13 16; 38 365 b.

penssar = pensar, 62 25. (Frequently in O. Sp. s is written double after n; cf. Alfonssso, etc. This may have been done to stress the importance of pronouncing carefully the combination of n and s, which was not a popular one, since L. ns properly became s in V. L.; cf. the doubling also of f after n, inffante, for a similar reason, since L. nf tended to become ff, f in V. L.)

- piadad (cf. piadat; L. piētas, piētatem; not wholly popular in its treatment; the first a of piadad may be due to the influence of the second and accented a. The mod. form of the noun is piedad, but the a still stands in piadoso -a, apiadarse, etc.) pity, compassion, 70 LI 2.

with a substitution in the ending of the 4th conj. -iērunt, > plog[u]ieron. The voicing of the c > g is peculiar, as epenthetic u seems to have prevented voicing; cf. sapuit > sopo. Of course the pl does not show the really popular treatment), pleased, 60 28.

The derivation from L. statio -ōnem, a 'standing still,' i.e. of the year's course, whence Ital. stagione, has been rejected by Diez, in view of the difficulty presented by the initial st. segund (L. secūndus -um — the ũ does not show the popular treatment; thence segundo, which in proclitic use lost its o, whence segund, which, before a voiceless cons., became segunt. By entire assimilation of the final cons. to the cons. beginning the following word both segund and segunt became the mod. según) as, just as, 41 23; 48 16c; 61 5, 22.

sele, seles, selo = se + le, se + les, se + lo (in early O. Sp. the se was always the reflexive pron. in this construction; in late O. Sp., e.g. in the José, we find already the non-refl. se < O. Sp. ge before another pron. beginning with l. The development of the se from ge is this: it was originally the L. dative illi before an accusative illum, illam, etc.; hence illi illum 'it to him' > [i]l[ɨ] el[l]o > lyelo > țelo, = the stage of Ital. glielo, > with total absorption of the l element by the palatal y [cf. Fr. fille > fi.y] yelo >, as the y was very palatal, i.e. produced with a very narrow passageway between the tongue and the palate, and therefore with much friction, gelo, i.e. dțelo; cf. dialectal and American Sp. jo = džo for yo. The dental element in ge = dž disappeared ere long, hence ž, and in the late O. Sp. period all voiced sibilants unvoiced, hence š = Eng. sh. The spelling ge still continued largely, but the spelling xe is found beside it, and O. Sp. x = š, i.e. sh. At the stage xe, i.e. še, confusion with the refl. se seems to have set in, partly because the Sp. s was then so cacuminal as almost to be palatal, i.e. it approximated greatly to xe, she, and partly because an aversion to the use of initial x, or g meaning x, showed itself, and s, as the sign nearest in value, recommended itself. So it is that the confusion of se, reflexive, and ge, xe, not reflexive, but simply dative, became absolute, and in mod. Sp. se does duty for both words), (as refl.) himself, themselves, etc. + to him, to her, to them, 15 134; 65 104 d; etc.; (as dative pron. not refl.) 64 94 b, 97 b.

sendos -as (L. pl. singŭlos -as > O. Sp. seños -as in a regular way. Then, because of sense relations Sp. had se < sēde, developed in atonic use, and sed from sēdēte > seed > sed: pres. part. syendo = siendo, 51 1664 c; but O. Sp. had also seyendo < sedēndum; the form siendo has been remade on s-er + the regular ending for -er verbs: p.p. does not occur here; but O. Sp. had seído < V. L. seditus*; the form sido has been remade on s-er.

seyer (perhaps an Eastern Sp. form of seer) 64 101 c.

seyes scribal error for seys, 15 147. (The occurrence of reyes beside seys might have led a scribe to write seyes for seys.)

seys = seis (L. sēs, i.e. sēs, developed in proclitic and atonic use. We might expect ses*.)

si (L. sic 'so,' which developed also the sense in Romance of affirmation) so (in an adjuration; si el Criador nos salue 'so may the Creator save you'), 18 1115; yes, 9 87 etc.

Silos pr. n., 23 3, 4 etc.

sin prep. (L. sine; this should have given sen*. The i may be due to the influence of sinon, mod. sino, which, like sin, is privative in force), without, 13 3; 17 185; 25 102 d; etc.

sines prep. (apparently an amplified form of sin; but the ending -es is rather adverbial than prepositional; is the form due to a combination of sine and ex? It is to be noted that O. Provençal has senes; is the Sp. form a loan-word?), without, 7 38; 9 85.

sinon = si if + non, if not, otherwise, except, 15 116; 41 29; 42 1; etc. Cf. mod. sino and si no.

so (L. sūm, pres. 1 of esse. This should have given son*; but as this form would be identical with the 3 pl. L. sūnt > Sp. son, and as most Sp. verbs [and especially the common monosyllabic forms, L. do, sto, etc. > O. Sp. do, esto] end in -o, the n was omitted) I am, 7 37; 11 109; 16 156; 19 1140; etc. (In late O. Sp. [cf. 63 89 d] the mod. form soy begins to appear. The y is difficult of explanation. Some refer it to an intermediate O. Sp. soe, i.e. soġ, found in Leonese, whose e is likewise not easily explained; cf. Staaff, L'ancien dialecte léonais, p. 309. He registers so, soy, and soey and says:

"The ordinary form of the Poema de Alexandre soe [therefore Leonese] is not represented in our charters [thirteenth-century documents studied by him]. As in general usage seyo < sedeo ran parallel to so, it is not impossible that soy represents a contamination of these two forms. Soey might represent the primitive stage of this contamination, soe and soy might be different reductions of this form." Possibly the form arose in the cases of inversion, i.e. when the order was so yo > soyo and with backward and forward action of the palatal > soy yo. But? The y appears in mod. Sp. also in voy and doy.) Cf. ser.

so (L. sūb; the disappearance of the b may be due to complete assimilation in proclitic use with a word beginning with a cons.) under, 11 110; 21 5; 44 6; 47 4, 8; 49 17 c; etc. (In mod. Sp. so has given way to bajo, debajo de, except in certain set phrases, e.g. so capa de, so color de, so pena de.)

so, sos (L. suus, sūūm, sūds > soo*, soos* > so, sos) his, her, their, its (before a masc. noun), 15 133; 18 1099, 1104; 21 23; 40 title; 41 2, 8, 21, 24, 26, 31; 42 3, 4, 8; etc. (in mod. Sp. so has given way to su, which, apparently, in early O. Sp. was only fem. and was later generalized. Still, early texts show already much confusion of so, su; cf. the O.Sp. Glosses. It is to be borne in mind that in hiatus, as between different words, especially before o- and a-, so might also become su, so ojo > su ojo [cf. ú for ó 'or'], and a new masc. pl. sus could then be formed. Another possibility, so ojo > s' ojo, does not seem to have recommended itself); el so, los sos (as poss. adj. before masc. n.; cf. la mi, el mio, etc.; cf. mod. Ital. use) his, her, their, 13 1; 14 94; 18 1104; 47 5; los sos (as pron.) his men, 17 1086; cf. su.

• sobeiano -a = sobejano -a (said to be derived from V.L. supercūlanus -a -um*, based on V.L. superculus*, cf. Ital. soverchio, from L. sūper. But the etymon should give soberchano*. The formation may rather be directly on L. sub: subicūlus*, subicūlanus*, which presents no phonetical difficulty. For sense development cf. subir) excessive, superior, excellent, 14 110. (The term is obsolete; cf. mod. sobrado -a.)

sobrar (L. supĕrāre) to exceed, be in excess, 60 16.

sobre (L. sūper; it is a question whether the -e is one of support, or whether we must suppose a V.L. sūpĕre* > sūpre*, cf. L. ante and supra) on, upon, over, about, 11 108; 16 161; 20 1203; 31 13 a, 14 a; etc.

sobrella = sobre ella, 17 183.

sobrellas = sobre + ella + se (enclitic), 20 1203; sobre ellas 20 1209.

sobрино (L. sōbrīnus -um, used at first of the children of sisters, and then for 'cousin' on the mother's side; in Sp. the sense was extended to that of 'nephew') nephew, 43 32.

soçiedat = sociedad (half-learned word; L. societas, sociĕtātem) society, community, 24 87 b.

sodes (V.L. sūtis, which, framed on the analogy of sūmus and sūnt, displaced L. estis. From sodes, by natural loss of intervocalic -d-, came soes, i.e. soes, whence mod. sois) you are (used sometimes as sg. of address), 8 52; 13 79; 14 103; 43 26; 57 434 c; cf. ser.

soes (cf. sodes) you are, 68 VIII b; 70 LIII c.

sofrir (L. sūffĕrre, V.L. sūffĕrĕre > soffrir > sofrir. Mod. sufrir arose in forms having z; sofriendo > sufriendo, etc.) to suffer, endure, stand, permit, 24 91 a; 26 107 d; 42 19; 43 2; cf. suffrío.

soga (of uncertain source; said to be connected with Basque soca, which may, however, be derived from the Sp. word. A Celtic sōca* has also been proposed; cf. Irish sūgān 'hay rope,' 'straw rope.' As the Sp. word seems originally to mean only a grass rope, the Celtic etymology is not unlikely) rope, fetter, 27 353 d; luenga sogá a never-ending tale, 24 93 b.

sol (L. sol, sōlem) sun, 18 1091; 59 5. solaz (L. solāctum. But this should have given solaço*; perhaps it is a loan-word from Provençal solatz; the word is common in the troubadour poetry, which was early brought to Spain) solace, delight, 48 12 d, 14 a.

soldada (formation on L. sōlidus -a -um 'whole,' 'entire,' occurring in expressions such as stipendium solidum 'the entire pay' given to a soldier, and also as a n. denoting a coin. Hence V. L. solīdātus* -a -um 'one paid,' 'soldier,' Sp. soldado, and solīdāta* 'money paid,' 'pay') pay, 13 80; 19 1126.

soler (L. sōlĕre) to be wont, 24 25 c; 54 19; 68 19 6; etc.

solien = solian, weakened impf. 3 pl. of soler, 22 31.

solies = solias, weakened impf. 2 of soler, 22 29, 37.

soltar (V. L. sōltāre*, a frequentative from p.p. solūtus, V. L. solūtus*, soltus*, of L. solvĕre) to loosen, solve, interpret, 13 10; 45 title.

sombra (apparently connected with L. ūmbra; but the s is difficult of explanation. The noun is regarded as an abstract from the verb sombrar, mod. asombrar 'to throw a shadow upon,' 'to astound,' etc. The verb sombrar has been explained as L. sūb + ūmbrāre, sūūmbrāre, whence by dissimilation of first b or by a vocalization of it, so. ombrar, sombrar. O. Sp. has also solombra, a form which shows the infl. of sol 'sun.' It is doubtful that the s- can be attributed, in sombra, to this form alone) shade, shadow, 47 4.

somo (L. sūmmum) highest point, top: en somo on top, 16 171; 20 1220; 41 19; etc.

son (L. sōnus -um; but this gave properly O. Sp. sueno; son is either an abstract from sonar, or, more likely, since this had ue in stem-accented forms, it is a loan-word from Provençal son.s; Fr. son; it was, of course, a troubadour word) tune, air, melody, 52 17; 53 18; 60 12. (In the general sense of "sound," sonido prevails in mod. Sp.)

sonar (L. sōnāre) to sound, resound, 20 1206.

sonbra = sombra, 31 14 c.

sonnar = soñar (L. sōmniāre; the ue forms, mod. sueño, sueñas, etc., may be due to the analogy of other o-ue verbs, in case the z of sōmniō, sōmniās, etc., could close the o and prevent diphthongization; cf. suennō) to dream, 45 title; 46 11; 64 94 a, 96 b, 99 a; etc.

sonrrisos = sonrrisē + se, pret. 3 of the refl. verb, sonrrisō obs., sonrrisarse (L. sūb- + V.L. rīsāre*, a frequentative from L. rīdēre, rīsus. We should expect sobrisar*, or, if the V.L. form were sūrrīsāre*, a sorrisar*. The Sp. prefix son- for L. sub- occurs in other words: sonreir, sonrodar, sonrojar, sonsacar, etc. As som- it stands before labials (or did so originally) in someter < L. submittere, sompesar < L. sub- + pensare. Its rise seems clear in someter < sūb.mittēre* > som.meter* > someter. L. had already summittere beside submittere. If a consciousness of this som- as a prefix = L. sūb- persisted, we could understand its substitution for the phonetic development of sūb- in sonrrisar and the other forms above. Before dentals and linguals son- would be the form. One thinks also of an accumulation of prefixes: sūb, Sp. so, + in, Sp. en, whence so[e]n; but this seems unlikely. The prefix sūb- seems to have undergone other deformations, e.g. sa-, za-, cha-. The doubling of r after n in sonrrisar was probably a scribal device to indicate the reënforced nature of r in that position, as still in mod. Sp. In thoroughly popular treatment nr > rr), he smiled, 16 154.

Spiritu = Espíritu (learned word; L. Spīritus -um): Spiritu Santo Holy Ghost, 23 1 c; 48 11 a.

sse = se, refl. pron. (enclitic to a verb form ending in a vowel; the doubling of s indicates that it is to be pronounced as voiceless, and not like usual O. Sp. intervocalic s, which was voiced): fuesse = fué + se, 42 4; cf. similar forms, 42 19; 46 23; 47 17; 61 20; 62 7; (after que and before verb; really enclitic to que although not added to it in writing) que sse darie, 43 17; (added to -r of infin.; as -rs- properly became -ss- in O. Sp., the doubling of s indicates the necessity of carefully pronouncing both r and s, which, of course, is voiceless) mudarssse, 62 21.

ssea = sea (cf. ser; after que and really enclitic to it; the ss must therefore indicate the voiceless intervocalic nature of s here; cf. sse), 15 132.

ssienpre = sienpre, siempre (the ss carried over from cases in which there preceded siempre a word related to it syntactically and ending in a vowel, e.g. lo de siempre), 62 15.

'staban = estaban (cf. estar; the preceding word ends in a vowel), 63 93 a.

strela = estrela, estrella (perhaps a Latinizing in the Misterio; but most of the forms occur also after final vowel of a word connected syntactically with strela), 6 2, 19; 8 55; el strela (but perhaps for la strela) 8 64.

su, sus (poss. adj. before noun) his, her, its, their: before fem. noun, 13 16; 18 1103; 19 1124; 20 1206, 1220; 26 107 b, 112 c, 289 c; 27 358 a; 28 366 a; 29 1 a; 32 19 a; 34 82 b; etc., in all about 41 cases in the extracts; add to these the cases of la su, las sus, 13 19; 24 91 d, 93 b; 26 112 d, 111 b; 37 359 c; 45 23;

47 7, 8; 70 LII 4; in all, 10 cases, which, with the preceding, give us about 51 examples of the fem. use: before masc. noun, 14 101; 19 1188; 23 2 b, 4 b; 24 91 a; etc., in all about 45 cases; add to these the cases of el su, los sus, 24 87 a, 92 b; 57 431 b; 59 6; 64 96 a, d; 65 102 a; in all, 7 cases, which, with the preceding, give us about 52 examples of the masc. use. So that the texts here given afford no evidence as to the preponderance of the one usage over the other. Of the use of so, el so, etc., appearing only before masc. nouns, the texts present 24 cases, without any exception; i.e. so never stands before a fem. noun. The assumption is that su began as a fem. form (L. sūam), and phonetically it would seem that the Sp. u (< L. ŭ, V. L. o) could occur only in the hiatus before a (whence sua*; cf. mia from mēam). Sūām, on the other hand, would give so; cf. so. For it is likely that in V. L. hiatus, the vowels had an open value before i or u and a close value before the other vowels; hence mēam beside mēum and sqam beside squm; cf. Zauner, Romanische Sprachwissenschaft, 2d ed., I, p. 69. A further closing in the hiatus would convert sqā into Sp. sua, and this, in the proclitic position, before words beginning with a vowel, especially a, could close to su; suaalma > su alma; cf. el alma instead of la alma. Of course all cases of the development of the poss. adj. were subject to the peculiar conditions of their atonic proclitic position.

We should expect teño*; cf. Ptg. tenho. As the n was unpalatalized in the other five forms of the pres. indic., a tendency to avoid the palatalization in the 1 sg.

asserted itself, but it can hardly be said that palatalized n, i.e. ñ, became n + a velar stop, g. The g may be borrowed from other common verbs, digo, hago, etc.; the combination -ngo exists also in Sp. verbs from L. -ngo, dis-tingo, etc., but they seem hardly popular enough to have influenced so common and important a verb as tener.) tobra metathesized form of troba, trova (an abstract from the verb trobar, trovar, 'to compose' verse, etc. The Sp. verb is perhaps a loan-word from the Provençal trobar 'to find' and also 'to invent,' 'compose,' and was introduced into Spain by the Provençal troubadours, being adopted in the poetical and musical sense and not generally used with the sense 'to find.' The ultimate source is a matter of some doubt; cf. V. L. tropare*, from L. tropus in the ecclesiastical sense of 'melody,' and L. tŭrbare, with metathesis trŭbare*, used as a term of fishing. Grave objections as to phonetic and sense development are to be met in both. In view of the fact that Italian, French, and Provençal all have for trovare, trouver, and trobar the more general sense of 'to find' as the essential one, tropare* seems unlikely. Schuchardt [Ztschr. f. roman. Philol. XXVIII. 36, and Roman. Etymologien, II] has argued ingeniously for tŭrbare), poetical composition, 48 15 b. Cf. trubada and trouauan.

There has been proposed also a V. L. trepalũum* [cf. L. tres and palus], i.e. a torture-frame made of three beams, whence the sense of 'trouble.' The usual Provençal form, *trebalh*s, favors the latter source, and the V. L. trabare* 'to catch in with beams,' etc., might have acted on the first syll. to produce the other Romance forms. But?) trouble, toil, labor, 52 2; 53 8; 56 423 b; etc.
